WOMAN MORTALLY WOUNDED IN HOME BY STRAY BULLET

Struck as She Sits at Window When Policemen Fight 3 Men in Auto Attacking Milk Wagon Driver.

DIES FEW MINUTES AFTER BEING HIT

Nonunion Worker Is Beaten With "Billy" in Front of 3967 Kennerly Avenue—No Attempt to Rob Him.

Mrs. Emma Foster Smith, 63 years old, wife of C. J. Smith, a fur dealer, was shot and mortally wounded when sitting at a second-floor front window of her home at 3967 Kennerly avenue at 6 a. m. today while two policemen were exchanging shots with three men in an automobile who had attacked a nonunion milk wagon driver in front of the Smith home. She staggered into an adjoining room and died there a few minutes later in the arms of her son, Ralph Foster.

The son was awakened by his mother's voice and heard her say: "Did you hear that shooting, Ralph? I believe I am shot." He arose and caught his dying mother in his arms as she was about to sink to the floor. The bullet had struck her in the left side near the heart.

Foster said it was his mother's custom to rise each morning at 4 o'clock and sit at the front window until time to wake other members of the family. Her husband had left the house at 5 o'clock to go to a farm at Affton, St. Louis County, in which he has an interest.

Three Men in Auto.

Shortly before 6 o'clock Walter Braun of 4054 Kennerly avenue, a driver for the St. Louis Dairy Co., delivered milk at the house west of the Smith home. About the same time, an automobile with three men in it drove up to the curb near the milk wagon.

Braun later told the police that when he was returning to his wagon the three men jumped out of the automobile and, without saying anything to him, two of the men attacked him and beat him, one with a "billy" and the other with the butt end of a revolver. The three then jumped into the automobile and drove east on Kennerly avenue.

Shots Exchanged.

Patrolmen Nicholas O'Hanlon and James Reilly of the Deer Street District were walking east on Kennerly avenue about 150 feet west of the Smith home when they heard Braun's cries for help and saw the three men jump into the automobile. They opened fire on the automobile and in return several shots were fired at them from the machine.

Patrolman Reilly reported by telephone that before the men jumped into the machine they used it as a barrier and ran around it several times, firing indiscriminately. This, he said, made it possible that one of their bullets struck Mrs. Smith.

Bullet Hole in Curtain.

After the shooting the position of Mrs. Smith's rocking chair indicated that she had been facing west when shot. There was a bullet hole in the east half of the lace curtain and a bullet was found lodged in a mantelpiece on the east side of the room behind her chair. The policemen reported that they fired four shots each. They could not tell how many shots were fired by the men in the automobile.

Braun, after the shooting, went to his home, where his injuries were dressed by a physician. His scalp was cut and his face bruised, but he was not seriously hurt. He said he had been working for the St. Louis Dairy Co. several months and was not a member of the Milk Drivers' Union. Most of the drivers for this company, he said, were nonunion men, though efforts had been made to unionize them.

The men who attacked him, he said, did their work silently and gave him no indication as to why they waylaid him. No attempt was made to rob him.

George Maddox, who is in charge of drivers for the St. Louis Dairy Co., said that several months ago, when there was a strike of milk-wagon drivers, it was a well-known fact that bands of strike sympathizers went about the city in automobiles and attacked nonunion drivers, but that he had heard of no such occurrences recently.

Mrs. Foster was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and of the North Presbyterian Church. Her children, besides Ralph, are Lieut. Howard M. Foster, U. S. A., with the 163rd Aero Squadron, now on duty in France; Herbert Foster, of 3961 Kennerly avenue, a lumber dealer; M. G. Foster, of Leesville, La., and Mrs. Macie N. Davenport, of Louisiana, Mo. Ralph Foster recently was honorably discharged from Camp McArthur.

"LAID IN MISSOURI" EGGS BEING SHIPPED TO ENGLAND

In Past Three Weeks St. Louis Firm Has Shipped 6,000,000 Eggs to Great Britain.

The Missouir mule having done its bit to help win the war, the Missouri hen now is helping the European food situation, bacon and eggs being a popular breakfast dish in England since the American expeditionary forces went overseas. In the past three weeks the Meyer Bros. Commission Co., 816 North Third street, has shipped 6,000,000 eggs to Liverpool and Glasgow and has contracts to ship another 6,000,000 in the next three weeks. Perhaps soon egg signs in Covent Market, London, W. C., will say: "Laid in Missouri."

A. P. Meyer, president of the company, said this is the first time St. Louis has exported eggs on such a large scale. The European egg market formerly relied upon New York and Chicago for its supply of American laid eggs, he said. The St. Louis eggs are being shipped from Portland, Me., and St. John's, Canada.

The wholesale price of eggs here is 39 cents a dozen, while the retail price to consumers is 45. In England the wholesale price is 55 2-10 cents a dozen and 75 cents to the consumer.

JUDGE WRONG WHEN HE SAID HE WAS WRONG, SO HE WAS RIGHT

Appellate Court Ruling Makes Two Wrongs a Right and Affirms Verdict of $7500.

In affirming a judgment of $7500 in favor of Harry Blair of 5505 Ridge avenue against the Union Electric Light and Power Co., the St. Louis Court of Appeals today ruled that Judge Koerner of the Circuit Court was wrong when he said he was wrong, and, therefore, he was right.

Blair fell in an excavation made by the electric light company at Bartmer and Hodiamont avenues April 5, 1913. A jury in Judge Koerner's court gave him a judgment of $7500.

The electric light company asked for a new trial on the ground that the Judge had failed to include in his instructions a reference to the fact that the company had placed a plank over the excavation and someone had removed it. The Judge decided that he was wrong in omitting this instruction and granted a new trial.

The Court of Appeals ruled that the instruction in question was not essential and that no new trial was necessary.

LARGEST CROP OF WINTER WHEAT IN HISTORY FORECAST

Department of Agriculture Predicts Yield of 837,000,000 Bushels Worth $1,891,620,000.

248,000,000 MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Will Exceed 1914 Crop by 152,000,000 Bushels—Condition 99.8 Per Cent of a Normal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The largest crop of winter wheat ever grown was forecast for this year by the Department of Agriculture today basing its estimate on conditions existing April 1. The enormous yield of 837,000,000 bushels was announced, which, at the Government's guaranteed price of $2.26 a bushel, places the crop's value at $1,891,620,000. The condition is placed at 99.8 per cent of normal.

This year's winter wheat crop, if no unfavorable conditions develop between now and time of harvest, will be 152,000,000 bushels larger than the previous record crop produced in 1914 and 248,000,000 bushels more than was grown last year.

Production of winter wheat last year was 558,449,000 bushels and in 1917 it was 412,901,000 bushels, while the record crop of 684,990,000 bushels was produced in 1914.

The condition of the crop on April 1, last year, was 78.6 per cent of a normal, while in 1917 it was 63.4 and the average of the last 10 years was 82.3.

There was an increase in condition from Dec. 1, last year, to April 1, this year, of 1.2 points compared with an average dealing in the last 10 years of 5.9 points between those dates.

The forecast of production of winter wheat this year is based on the assumption of average abandonment of acreage and average influences on the crop to harvest.

The average condition of rye on April 1, was 90.6 per cent of a normal, against 85.8 on April 1, last year, 86.0 in 1917 and 88.6, the average condition for the last 10 years on April 1.

The condition of winter wheat on April 1 by important producing states follows: Kansas, 101; Nebraska, 97; Oklahoma, 100; Illinois, 101; Missouri, 103; Indiana, 100; Ohio, 104; Washington, 97; Pennsylvania, 100; Virginia, 97; North Carolina, 96.

The production of rye was forecast by the Department of Agriculture at 101,000,000 bushels, compared with 89,103,000 bushels last year, 62,933,000 bushels in 1917 and 44,547,000 bushels, the average of the preceding five years.

BRITAIN MAKING PLANS FOR WORLD-WIDE TRADE EXPANSION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Information of plans for reform of the British consular service, with a proposed expenditure of £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) annually for consuls and £250,000 for commercial attaches, was received with great interest today by officials here who are directing the Government's preparations for peace time foreign trade expansion.

Of especial interest here was the announcement that eight leading Brazilians have been invited by the organization to tour England this summer, accompanied by the newly appointed commercial attaches for Brazil.

MICHIGAN VOTES NOT TO MODIFY PROHIBITION LAWS

Women's Vote Seems to Have Defeated Plan to Permit Sale of Wine and Beer.

DETROIT DEFEATS OWNERSHIP OF CARS

Proposition to Buy System for $31,500,000 Does Not Receive Majority Though Requiring 60 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 8.—Casting the heaviest vote ever recorded at a biennial spring election, Michigan electors yesterday, according to incomplete returns, rejected a proposed amendment to modify the prohibition law, to the extent of allowing the sale of light wines and beer, adopted a $50,000,000 road building program and gave the Republican ticket of minor State officers an overwhelming majority. The feminine vote, a factor for the first time in a State election, figured prominently in the balloting on the liquor amendment.

Returns from approximately one-fourth of the precincts in the State indicated that the total vote would exceed 700,000. The interest in the proposed amendment to legalize the sale of light wine and beer was intense. Reports from 55 of the 83 counties, representing approximately one-half of the total precincts, gave 160,242 for the amendment and 205,655 against it. Wayne County (Detroit) voted wet by a large majority, but it was conceded by supporters of the amendment that an unusually large margin in unreported precincts amendment that an unusually large margin in unreported precincts would be required to save it from defeat. The vote in Wayne County was 47,954 for and 23,732 against in 202 out of 384 precincts.

The proposal to bond the State for $50,000,000 to be used in the construction of good roads, seemingly carried by three to one, support for the project coming from the cities as well as the rural districts.

The proposed purchase by the city of Detroit of the local lines of the Detroit United Railways, at a cost of $31,500,000, was rejected, according to almost complete unofficial returns. With 16 precincts missing and 60 per cent of the vote required to carry, the figures stood 56,601 in favor of the plan and 64,174 against it.

The city now must utilize some other means of obtaining title to the street car properties or return to the old status. It is believed probable that an attempt will be made to use the measure passed last week in the Legislature empowering the city in effect to condemn the property.

Mrs. Dora H. Stockman of Lansing was elected on the Republican ticket as member of the Board of Agriculture.

WAR WORK OF U. S. NAVY FLYERS

French Credit Our Men With Possibly Destroying 12 U-Boats.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 8.—French records credited United States naval fliers with having damaged and possibly destroyed 12 German submarines, according to Capt. Thomas C. Craven, U. S. N., commander of all the United States naval aviation forces in France, who returned on the U. S. S. Agamemnon yesterday. His department, he said, took a more conservative view and conceded the sinking of two and the damaging of eight of the enemy craft.

Capt. Craven described the rapid growth of the United States air forces in France from nine small seaplanes to a great fleet operating from a port near Brest with more than 200 battle seaplanes of the best type. He believed the patrol work of this fleet was an important factor in the curtailment of enemy submarine successes near the French coast.

"DRESSING DOWN" FOR CITY OFFICIALS WHO DON'T 'DRESS UP'

Declaration Made That Aldermen and Others Appear at Functions in "Wrong" Attire.

City officials, including Aldermen, were given a severe "dressing down" for not dressing up, in letters sent to them today by John C. Walter, president of the St. Louis Dress Up Association, which is conducting a "dress up" campaign this week. Without saying that some of them are actual scarecrows, the latter does state that visitors are "shocked away" by the way some officials dress.

"Partly, we believe, through indifference on the part of most of our public officials, many of whom are in the habit of appearing at formal and afternoon and evening functions in sack suits. The standard of men's dress in St. Louis is so low as to be a disgrace to the city," the letter states.

"Visitors are shocked away, actually discouraged from settling in the city, by the glaring violations in the rules for correct dress, even by such public servants as members of the Board of Aldermen, and St. Louis is in danger of becoming, in so far as the dress of its men is concerned, the laughing stock of the country.

"Some of our Aldermen, in addition to totally disregarding the formal dress regulations, actually go about in dilapidated attire. How can we expect any improvement as to dress in the great mass of citizens, when such contempt for the proprieties is shown by the city fathers, to whom the average man naturally looks for leadership in such matters as dress.

"If the Aldermen of wards are content to appear in slovenly clothes or in clothes otherwise unsuited to the occasion, so are his constituents, as a rule.

"Delicately worded letters to officials in past years have failed to make an impression," the letter concluded, and adds that it is the purpose of the writer "to make this one felt."

Mayor Kiel, who got such a letter, said he agreed with the writer. The Mayor himself affects a morning coat and a Prince Albert on occasion, and is even given to the silk hat at extraordinary functions.

Comptroller Nolte did not take so kindly to his copy of the letter. "Looks to me like thees guys are exceeding the nerve limit," he muttered, as he pondered the suggestions contained. "So far as I am concerned, they can refer the matter to the Complaint Board."

Alderman Nat Hall of the Twenty-first Ward didn't agree that Aldermen should set the season's styles in their respective wards. "I ain't no Beau Brummel," he said, "and I'm not going to try to be one. The people in my ward can dress as they damn please, so far as I care, and I'm going to do the same thing."

MANSUR AND POLICE OFFICERS TALK OVER CRIME WAVE PLANS

Means of Keeping Policemen "on Their Toes" Discussed at Two-Hour Conference.

A conference of police officials with President Mansur of the Police Board, as to measures for dealing with the crimes of daring and violence which have been of nightly occurrence recently, was held in Chief O'Brien's office, beginning at 11 o'clock this morning, and lasting nearly two hours. The district captains were present.

The Chief said that means to keep the policemen "on their toes" were discussed. He was asked whether it is planned to make more use of the riot guns, some 30 of which were being cleaned and polished by headquarters attaches while the conference was being held. These guns are similar to the "sawed-off shotguns" of the American army, against which the Germans protested because of their effectiveness in trench raids.

The chief said the riot guns were being used now by policemen detailed to special duty in automobiles. He said it was possible that the number of special men in automobiles would be increased, and that they would be instructed in the use of the riot guns against any criminals they might encounter, "not to spare ammunition."

There are about 25 police automobiles available for such use. The chief said there was no present plan for instituting a two-platoon system, with 12-hour shifts, to increase the number of men on duty. The police are still under a recent order by which two-thirds of the force is on duty between 7 p. m. and 3 a. m.

DALLAS COUNTY BOND CASE TO BE SUBMITTED TO ARBITRATION

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 8.—The Dallas County bond controversy, one of several inherited by counties of Missouri and Kansas from the reconstruction period following the Civil War, when communities voted bonds readily to help finance promised railroads, will be submitted to arbitration, according to an agreement reached between the attorneys for the bondholders and for the county. The agreement was announced at the opening of the Federal Court today. Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh of the Federal Court and Circuit Judge C. H. Skinker of Boliver, will select a third to act with them in consideration of the case.

BAVARIAN SOVIET TROOPS DISPERSE DEMONSTRATORS

Opposition to the New Communistic Revolutionary Government in Munich Reported Put Down.

DR. WILHELM MUEHLON IN THE FOREIGN POST

Proclamation Denounces Ebert Government and Declares Friendship for Russia and Hungarian Peoples.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, via Copenhagen, April 8.—Dissensions already have arisen among the founders of the Soviet Government in Bavaria, the Achtuhrblatt today says, and an intensified state of siege has been proclaimed in Munich.

The communists in the Bavarian capital have decided that they will not co-operate with the Majority Socialists. They have demanded the removal of the Majority Socialists from the new Government, which they wish to consist of Independent Socialists and Communists.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—Demonstrations have occurred in Munich against the new revolutionary Government of Bavaria, according to Berlin dispatches today. The demonstrators were dispersed by troops, the advices state.

Protests against the formation of the Soviet Government, voiced at a political meeting in Bamberg, northern Bavaria, are reported in dispatches from that city. Deputies of all the bourgeoise parties of the three franconian Governments, upper, lower and middle Franconia, met in Bamberg and registered a unanimous protest against the proclamation of the new regime at Munich.

"The whole population of northern Bavaria," reads the protest, is warned against allowing itself to be intimidated through fear of a vanishing minority, mainly consisting of persons predominantly of a foreign race.

"Bavaria is on the edge of a precipice and if it is not preserved from a downfall everything is lost. Bavaria will then become the prey of fratricides, plunderers and famine. A further consequence will be the complete collapse of economic life. Foreign countries will refuse food and assistance to a Bolshevik Bavaria and help from Russia and Hungaria is out of the question, as they are tortured by famine.

"Those who tell you this are your countrymen and not foreigners, who a few months ago knew nothing of Bavaria and who are indifferent to your fate."

A Berlin dispatch says that Erich Muehsam has been given unlimited powers by the Bavarian Central Council and exercises unrestricted dictatorship.

Muehsam and Landauer dominate Munich, with the support of the garrison, a newspaper declares.

Many Communists Were Opposed to a Proclamation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 8.—The proclamation of a soviet government in Munich, says a dispatch to the Matin from Zurich, was an error on the part of the men who proclaimed it. Many communists opposed the course adopted up to the last moment, says the dispatch, realizing that it would have the effect of accentuating the hostile tendencies of Northern Bavaria, notably Franconi and Suabia.

The correspondent notes the proposition for the removal of the diet to Bamberg, and the pronouncement on Sunday by the Socialist party which had been in power, by a decisive vote, against the soviet proclamation. The party, however, declared that it would remain neutral in the face of an accomplished fact, raising no differences for the Government with whom it left all responsibilities for the situation.

The correspondent considers the proclamation a doubly severe blow for the Berlin Government, because of its possible influence on the Congress of German Councils about to assemble, and because the setting up of a soviet regime in Munich completely upsets all the calculations upon which the future internal policy of Germany has been based.

Complete Severance From Old German Imperialism Announced.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Monday, April 7.—Complete severance from the old German imperialism, as declared still to be manifest in the Ebert-Scheidemann government of Germany, and the resumption of a "brotherly connection" with the Russian and Hungarian people, is announced in the proclamation of the new Soviet Government for Bavaria formed here. "Long live the world revolution!" the proclamation concludes. The text of the document reads:

SAILING DATE OF PRESIDENT'S SHIP ADVANCED 3 DAYS

George Washington Will Depart Friday Following Cablegram From Admiral Benson.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—In announcing today that the presidential transport George Washington would sail from New York for Brest on Friday, instead of next Monday, the date originally fixed for her departure, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt disclosed that the change had been made as the result of a cablegram yesterday from Admiral Benson at Paris inquiring when the ship could sail.

The transport's sailing hour was fixed at 4:30 p. m. She should arrive at Brest about April 17.

Communication with the New York Navy Yard, where the George Washington is undergoing overhauling, brought a report that she could be made ready for sea by Friday, and she was ordered out then.

Roosevelt said today Admiral Benson's message did not go into the purpose of the inquiry, but simply asked about the date of departure.

So far as could be learned today, no information has been received at the White House or in other official quarters about the situation which dispatches from France indicate has arisen there. Officials confidently declare their belief that the President has no idea of leaving Paris prematurely.

GERMAN MINISTER OF JUSTICE AND GENERAL SEIZED BY TROOPS

Landsberg and Von Kleist Said to Have Been Arrested by Soldiers at Magdeburg.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, April 8.—Herr Landsberg, Minister of Justice in the National German Government, was arrested yesterday at Magdeburg, the capital of Prussian Saxony, by members of regiments stationed there, a Magdeburg dispatch reports.

Gen. von Kleist, in command of the Fourth Army, and his staff, also were arrested.

Former Deputies Brandes and Filkel also were arrested. Other arrests of social democrats and members of the Bourgeoise are planned.

The majority of the Magdeburg garrison sympathizes with the independent Socialists, the message adds.

A political movement of great importance is imminent in the region of Hamburg, reports from Berlin say. Doctors Herz and Hauffenberg, Spartacan leaders, it is said, have almost succeeded in making themselves masters of the situation and in converting Hamburg and the region between Hamburg and Bremen into a Soviet republic.

PRESIDENT IS MUCH BETTER

Remained in Bed Most of Yesterday but Improvement Continued.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 8.—President Wilson remained in bed most of yesterday. Steady improvement in his condition, however, was announced by Rear Admiral Grayson.

The Council of Four met this morning at the residence of Premier Lloyd George, President Wilson was not able to attend the forenoon session, but hoped to be able to attend the meeting this afternoon at the Paris "White House."

PLAN TEMPERANCE BARROOMS

Boston Methodist Churches to Sell Soft Drinks and Coffee.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 8.—Temperance barrooms, furnishing all the good elements of the saloon, minus intoxicating liquors, are planned for this city by the Methodist Church, according to the Rev. Dr. J. I. Bartholomew, executive secretary for the Boston area. In some cases liquor saloons would be purchased, he said today. He believed that the original bars might even be retained, but only soft drinks and coffee would be handled.

Community houses and "poor men's clubs" also are to be established in connection with Methodist Churches in the principal New England cities.

DELAYS ON MINOR POINTS THREATEN AN ULTIMATUM FROM PRESIDENT

Wilson Said to Have Made Final Concession and Some Believe He Summoned the George Washington So as to Be Able to Withdraw if Necessary.

BELIEVES ARMISTICE TERMS ARE AT STAKE

More Hopeful Tone at Session Today — "George Washington Has Been Summoned to Brest," Remarks an American Delegate.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 8.—The overnight tension in peace conference circles had not been dispelled when the Council of Four met today. In conference circles, however, it was felt that the session today would serve to clear the atmosphere.

The first question taken up at the forenoon session of the council, at which E. M. House represented President Wilson, was that of procedure. This was considered in an effort to accelerate the work of the council.

It was planned to devote the afternoon session to the subject of responsibility for the war, including the question of a tribunal to try the former German Emperor, the former Crown Prince and others on which divided reports had been presented.

Situation Is Improved.

It was said by American members of the peace conference that the general situation was improved somewhat today because of the agreement reached by the Commission on Reparations on the main features of the reparations question, leaving only a few unessential details for adjustment. Generally, a more hopeful tone prevailed in conference circles as the day went on.

Members of the American delegation declined to give an explanation of the many rumors in circulation that the conference would complete its work shortly.

One member, when asked for definite information on the situation, said: "You know the George Washington has been ordered to Brest. That is a good subject for speculation."

The council of four was to have met at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the "White House," where the President is still confined to bed, but able to consult with his colleagues in emergencies. It developed, however, that Premier Lloyd George has been affected in a similar manner as the President, which has confined him also to his bed. A morning session of the council was, therefore, impossible. The session began at Lloyd George's residence at 3:30, with Premier Clemenceau, Premier Orlando, E. M. House and all the financial experts present. Reparations was again the chief issue and although settled in the main principle, a number of essential details still remained open.

One of the American experts summed up the situation as he entered the meeting, saying: "The chances are favorable to an agreement, but we have not agreed yet."

Payment Over Period of Years.

The principals which seem to be settled are that reparation and restoration shall be in accordance with the President's seventh and eighth points and the allies' reply to the President's note and also that the actual damage and destruction shall formulate categories or classes of these damages. Payment is to be spread over a period of years, without a specific total being fixed, and the first payments probably will be required within the first two years.

At the close of the council's session it was stated that no agreement had been reached on reparations or other subjects and that the discussion on reparations would be resumed today.

Extreme tension was evident as a result of the discussions and it is believed throughout the conference that another critical stage has been reached. One of the most responsible authorities associated with President Wilson said that he would not be surprised if American participation was brought to an early close if the delays over details were carried much further.

The differences still remaining on the subjects of frontiers and reparations are comparatively light, he added, and yet these slight differences are so persistently maintained as to threaten to create prolonged delays which the President and American delegations are not willing to accept.

Wilson Will Yield No More.

The President was described by one who saw him during the day as standing firm in his determination to make no further concessions. He insists that the principles, which were definitely agreed upon at the time of the armistice are at stake. There is little doubt that the President's stand has been known to the other members of the council, but since his illness he has not personally conferred with any of them, excepting Mr. House.

The existing tension led to many reports of decisive action which the American delegation was said to be about to take. These reports were more or less exaggerated, yet all seemed plausible in view of the President's determined attitude.

Some of the President's closest intimates had not been informed that the steamer George Washington had been sent for, while others were of the opinion that the summoning of the steamer would be accepted as an intimation by the allied leaders that delays must be brought to a speedy conclusion.

President Wilson's orders that the George Washington proceed immediately to a French port are construed by some officials as preliminary to a determined move to force an agreement at an early date by the conference. One report was current that the President had delivered an ultimatum to the effect that he would withdraw from the conference unless an agreement was reached within 48 hours. It is confidently asserted by those close to the President that he did not contemplate any such action, but the same authorities have no hesitation in declaring that the President has made his position plain on the questions at issue.

The summoning of the George Washington will place the President in such a position, it is pointed out, that he cannot be embarrassed by having to wait for the transport should the time come when he might wish to withdraw from the discussions. The belief is common that President Wilson will not hesitate to take definite action if a deadlock is actually reached.

French Papers Deny Differences.

The views of President Wilson's attitude in French claims before the peace conference put forth by "certain American circles" are declared by the Matin to be "entirely fantastic." President Wilson, the Matin says, is conscientiously studying the final details of the preliminary peace. The Petit Parisien comments in much the same vein, emphatically denying that there are differences between the French and American delegations, especially regarding financial questions, as has been declared.

The Paris newspapers as a whole reiterate the view that it will be several days before the work of the conference will be completed in such a way that peace may be made simultaneously with Germany and her allies. They predict that the meetings in Versailles probably will take place within 15 or 20 days, however.

According to Le Journal, the plan for a buffer state at the mouth of the Vistula has been abandoned, the handing over of Danzig to the Poles to be probably the course adopted.

The Echo de Paris says it is able to state that the solution of the reparations question reached by the conference provides for complete reparation. The plan, it adds, calls for the annual meeting of an inter-allied commission to decide upon the sum that Germany shall pay the following year.

It is believed, this newspaper also states, that Geneva has been definitely chosen as the seat of the society of nations. The plan for a triumphal parade in Paris along Champs Elysee apparently has been abandoned, it says.

Money to Be Prorated.

The council yesterday heard the report of the reparations committee and accepted the proposition which provides for the formulation of the categories of damages which Germany will be required to pay and the method of estimating them, but will leave to a commission sitting after the peace treaty is signed the determination of the full bill and the amount which can be collected from Germany. As it is not expected that Germany will be able to pay the claims in full, the assets which are realized from her will be prorated among her creditors proportionately to the size of the claims and without preference.

The council will fix definitely the amount of the first payment and instruct the commission as to the minimum amount to be collected. It is now estimated that this amount will run up to about $45,000,000,000, of which Germany will be required to pay $5,000,000,000 down in cash or securities, with another installment payable within two years after peace is signed.

After the question of reparations is settled the Rhine frontier and the Adriatic Coast will remain as the chief obstacles.

Premier Orlando of Italy held another conference yesterday with E. M. House over the Adriatic issue, which is gradually approaching a settlement, not however entirely acceptable to the Italians concerning Fiume and Dalmatia.

That progress is being made is indicated in an announcement that a plenary session of the peace conference is to be held Friday afternoon which will be the first assembling of the full conference since President Wilson's departure for the United States.

The arrival of Gen. Smuts of the British delegation in Budapest brought reports of improved conditions in that country. Gen. Smuts was accompanied by Maj. Bonsel, representing the American delegation.

The Dutch Government apparently is ignoring the invitation of the Peace Conference to send a delegate to Paris to discuss with the conference Belgium's demand for a revision of the treaty of 1839 fixing the boundaries between Holland and Belgium. Holland was asked two weeks ago to send a representative to Paris, but has not yet replied. The Peace Conference has decided that it would be improper to attempt any revision of the rights of Holland in relations to rectification of the frontier that Belgium seeks without formally hearing Dutch representatives.

F. W. Woolworth, Who Started in Life With $50, Dies Worth Millions

Head of Company Owning Chain of 5 and 10 Cent Stores With Profits of About $8,000,000 a Year

F. W. WOOLWORTH.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Frank W. Woolworth, who started a 5 and 10 cent store at Utica, N. Y., 40 years ago on a capital of $50 and eventually became the millionaire proprietor of a great chain of these stores in the United States, Canada and England, died suddenly early today at his home at Glencove, Long Island. In addition to establishing a business with profits said to be nearly $8,000,000 yearly, Woolworth built the celebrated 51-story Woolworth Building in lower New York, said to be the tallest building in the world.

He was born on a farm at Rodman, Jefferson County, N. Y., on April 13, 1852. Until he was 21 years old, he worked on his father's farm, obtaining a meager education in the district school and later at a business college.

Began as Errand Boy.

His first position was errand boy in a dry goods store, and he gradually advanced until he became a clerk and salesman, during which time he married on a salary of $8.50 a week. He worked six years in the dry goods business in various stores before a successful bargain-counter sale gave him the idea of the possibilities of making substantial profits from nickel and dime purchases. His idea when broached to his employers was termed visionary, and he was advised to stick to the "old-fashioned" plan of conducting the store.

Nevertheless, Woolworth was determined to test the plan, and his first venture was at Utica in 1879. He had but $50 and gave his personal note for the goods.

In a year he had paid off his debt and saved some money. Closing out his store, he went to Lancaster, Pa., and established not only a store but the foundation of his fortune.

His rapid rise from a small "pigeon hole" store to the palatial Woolworth Building in this city—with more than 1000 branch stores in the United States, over 60 in Canada and England—forms one of the most interesting business romances in the history of the world. The business was incorporated several years ago for $65,000,000.

In addition to being president of the firm of F. W. Woolworth & Co., he was the director of a number of banks and business enterprises here. He maintained a residence on Fifth avenue noted for its rare paintings, and a country home at Glencove.

BAVARIAN SOVIET TROOPS DISPERSE DEMONSTRATORS

varia is the formation of a council of the republic of revolutionary workers and peasants of Bavaria, including all our brothers, now united, separated by no party laws. From now on no exploitation or oppression will be tolerated. The dictatorship of the proletariat now has become a fact. The legalization of a genuine socialistic community now is achieved, in which every workingman may participate in public life and in a just socialistic age.

"The Langtag has been dissolved and the old ministry retired. People's commissaries responsible to the people and chosen by a council of the working people will receive extraordinary powers to be employed in certain labor fields. Their assistants will be intelligent men from all parts of the revolutionary and socialistic community. Countless valuable forces of officialdom, especially from the lower middle official class, will be asked to co-operate in the new work. The bureaucratic system will be absolutely eliminated and the press will be socialized.

"As a protection for the Bavarian council of the republic against revolutionary attacks from without and within, a red army will be created immediately and a revolutionary court will pursue ruthlessly every attempt upon the council.

"The Government of the Bavarian council republic follows the example of the Hungarian and Russian peoples. It will resume immediately a brotherly connection with these peoples, but it declines any connection with the contemptuous Ebert-Scheidemann Government, because that Government is continuing under the flag of a socialistic republic the imperialistic, capitalistic and military business of the disgraceful, broken-down German empire. It calls upon all German brothers to take the same view. It greets all proletarians wherever revolutionary socialism is fighting—in Wurttemburg, in the Ruhr district, in the whole world.

"As a sign of joyous hope for a fortunate future for all humanity it establishes April 7 as a holiday for all humanity. As a sign of the beginning of the departure, the flight, of the age of capitalism, all work is stopped, Bavaria ceases, on April 7, in so far as it is not necessary for the welfare of the working people, to do labor.

"Long live free Bavaria! Long live the Council Government! Long live the world revolution!"

Dr. Wilhelm Muehlon, Bavarian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Monday, April 7.—The Munich Abend Zeitung gives a provisional list of the Bavarian peoples' mandatories, including for Foreign Affairs, Dr. Wilhelm Muehlon; Minister of the Interior, Martin Segitz; Minister of Justice, Dr. Boeheim, a Communist; Minister of Finance, Dr. Jaffe, Independent Socialist; Minister of Commerce, Simon, Independent; Minister of Socialization, Dr. Neurath; Minister of Worship, Niekisch; Minister of Agriculture, Steiner; Minister of Traffic, Frauendorfer; Minister of Military Affairs; Schnepfenhorst; Minister of Popular Enlightenment, Landauer, Independent; Minister of Welfare, Unterleitener, Independent.

Special dispatches from Munich say that the Bavarian Minister of the Interior, Unterleitener, and Minister of Industry Simon have joined the Communist movement. Unterleitener strongly attacked his own Cabinet in a speech, declaring that now the Soviet system was being introduced they would have no Noskes, but would join with their brethren in Russia and Hungary, and would expect their brethren in France, England, Italy and the United States to join them. Then Unterleitener added, the Noskes and Scheidemanns would be thrown away like the Emperor Williams and King Ludwigs.

The news of the situation in Bavaria is being followed with keen interest in Wurttemberg, and it is considered significant that the meeting of the Wurttemberg National Assembly has been indefinitely postponed. The students of Munich University on Saturday declared the Senate deposed, and its administration transferred to a council of students and professors.

The Munich Neustenachrichten contains an appeal to the whole of Germany from the revolutionary council in favor of a Soviet Government, and declining all collaboration with "the despicable Government of Ebert, Scheidemann, Noske and Erzberger."

Premier Hoffman Says Old Government Has Gone to Nuremburg.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Monday, April 7.—Premier Hoffman of Bavaria, according to a dispatch from Berlin, has announced that the Government of Bavaria has been transferred from Munich to Nuremburg. He adds:

"The Government of the free State of Bavaria is and remains the sole repository of the highest authority and alone is entitled to issue legal ordinances and give orders."

This announcement was signed by Premier Hoffman at Nuremburg under date of April 7.

DON'T LET SOAP SPOIL YOUR HAIR

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—ADV.

HUNGARY COUNTERS SMUTS' PROPOSALS

Peace Conference Representative Quits Budapest Apparently Without Making New Armistice.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Sunday, April 6.—While Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, who was sent here by the peace conference at Paris, had authority to arrange a new armistice between Hungary and the Entente Powers, it appears that he did not do so before his departure this morning.

British residents of the city will leave for Paris by way of Vienna on Saturday. With them will go the American wives of Hungarians, who will be permitted to take with them their money and effects. The Government seems to be doing everything possible in favor of Americans and other foreigners.

Gen. Smuts' proposals to Hungary for disposition of troops, and that the demarcation boundary lines pending peace conditions have no influence on final conditions, and that he would propose at Paris the immediate raising of the blockade for the importation of food necessities, were met by a counter proposal.

The Soviet Government proposed to create a neutral zone on condition of a shift in the frontier eastward, the Soviet to administer the territory occupied by the allied troops, with free intercourse from the neutral zone both in the direction of Hungary and Rumania and free transit in the Transylvanian territory occupied by Rumania.

It proposed a complete raising of the blockade and the supplying of the republic with coal and fats; that a conference should include representatives of the Hungarian Soviet republic, Bohemia, Rumania, Serbia, Jugo Slavia and German Austria at Prague or Vienna, to proceed simultaneously with the peace conference; an exchange of economic representative between Hungary and foreign states, and that the Entente Powers "immediately cease the barbarous persecutions to which every labor movement in the occupied regions is subjected."

PRESIDENT WILSON CHEERED IN SERBIAN NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Demonstration Follows Premier's Criticism of the Treatment of Nation by Entente Allies.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Wednesday, April 2.—At the opening of the National Assembly today Stoyan Protitch made a vehement protest against the treatment of Serbia by France, Great Britain and Italy in failing to recognize the Serbian, Croatian and Sloenian states while, he said, Poland and the Czecho-Slovaks, whose sacrifices could not be remotely compared with those of Serbia, already had been recognized. The Premier said he attributed this, and a similar omission on the part of Rumania, to the existence of secret treaties.

"Notwithstanding our respect for our allies," M. Protitch continued, "we feel obliged to protest. We shall not despair, however, and will hope for full success of our national claims if President Wilson's principles become the true basis for the reorganization of Europe."

Here there were prolonged shouts of "Long live Wilson." Protitch also made a strong protest against what he termed Italy's action in Dalmatia and her claim of Fiume.

"We demand the independent and impartial arbitration of the United States," the Premier concluded. This statement also was greeted with prolonged cheering.

BUNDY JUROR IS UNBALANCED

Daniel Davis, one of the jurors who recently tried and convicted Leroy N. Bundy, East St. Louis negro dentist, in the race riot trial held at Waterloo, Ill., yesterday was adjudged unbalanced mentally by a commission appointed by County Judge Schneider, and was ordered placed in an institution for treatment. It is believed his derangement is temporary.

Members of the family said the strain of the trial and the after effects had preyed on Davis' mind. He is 60 year old, and is a farmer.

Pittsburg a Sound Spot; Employers Successfully Solving Labor Problems

Correspondent Finds Little Unrest and Small Chance for Bolshevism—Reforms in Industry Being Introduced.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, April 8.—If Bolshevism ever were to take root in America, this would be its main zone, because 63 per cent of the population in this district is foreign born, or of foreign parentage. But not only has Bolshevism failed to fructify in response to the few agitators who tried it, but big business here has beaten Bolshevism to it. Pittsburg has begun to approach the problem of industrial democracy from the practical, rather than the sentimental aspects, and the result is that, taking an interest in the welfare of the worker, by assisting in housing, sanitation and recreation, by profit-sharing in some cases, and by making no general reductions in wages, the iron and steel industry and other manufacturing plants, have managed to keep their workers contented.

Pittsburg reveals contentment and prosperity. It looks back on the war period as an era of organization which is going to make the future even more prosperous. They are reaching out for foreign trade here, and getting it; they know that the railroads must buy steel rails to make up for domestic needs which were neglected during the war, that construction must sooner or later resume, because edifices must be repaired or new ones erected. In other words, Pittsburg is absolutely confident that things must come its way, even if there is a period of hesitation, during which the search for bottom prices is automatically made. Confidence, self-assurance, steadiness and stability run right through the fabric of the community, with employer and employes alike.

Pittsburg a Sound Spot.

I talked with pessimists and optimists here, with dyed-in-the-wool Republicans and that rarer species of Democrat, the thick-and-thin Wilson man, with employers who are making big profits, and with men in touch with the employes who are making high wages. And the conclusion is inescapable, that Pittsburg is a healthy and sound spot in our economic scheme of things.

Politics interest the Duquesne Club, of course, where the small percentage of Democrats hasn't increased, but where a league of nations, mind you, not the first Wilson kind, but the kind to be respectably amended by the aid of Messrs. Taft, Root, Lowell and so-on, is in the main approved. I asked many of the big business men if they thought they could get this foreign trade of which they speak, if America failed Europe and stayed out of a league, and they confesed they hadn't given that phase of it much thought, but they did believe Europe and America should be kept close together from a business viewpoint, and that the United States was going to keep much of her South American trade developed during the war.

So far as I can learn, the average man isn't much concerned about the league of nations, because its ramifications are bewildering, and responsible business men tell me they have been so perplexed by the contradictory dispatches and rumors from abroad, that they doubted whether public opinon would take more than a superficial interest until conclusions were reached, and there was something tangible on which to base a judgment, something besides the view of one writer that the league was moribund and the equally positive assertions of other writers that peace and the settlement of Europe's troubles would be ready by Easter.

It is interesting to talk with folks here about President Wilson. Unquestionably he is respected by the mass, but he has lost some of the independent voters who swore by him in 1916. One of his old friends told me that Wilson prestige had declined largely because of the failure of the Democratic party in Congress and the Democratic Cabinet, over the inefficiencies of which Mr. Wilson might have exercised a stern hand. Much of the bitterness over that ill-fated appeal for a Democratic Congress remains, because Republicans felt they had given a loyal support hereabouts, and that the letter was hardly an expression of appreciation. Again and again, I am told Mr. Wilson might have had a united country in peace, as he had in war, if he had selected an able Republican for the peace mission. One Republican political leader, who says privately that Mr. Wilson is one of the smartest, if not the smartest man who ever sat in the White House, says he can't stop wondering how the President ever could have miscued on the selection of an able man for the peace mission.

Pittsburg Knows Washington.

Business people here were never enthusiastic about Mr. Wilson's going away, but, if he comes back with a peace treaty that meets Republican objections, and gets the pact ratified soon, they will forgive him his absence. On the other hand, they will not forgive him much else till he gets rid of many members of his Cabinet. Pittsburg had a lot to do with Washington during the war, and tasted governmental bureaucracy and red tape right along, and the reaction against the inefficiency and extravagance of some of the Government departments is rather extensive. Several men told me they wouldn't have felt the inequities of the income tax if they could have gotten over the feeling that much of the money spent was extravagantly spent, or wasted.

There isn't much unemployment here. These soldiers who want to work, are being taken care of. Unrest isn't very widespread. Institutions like the Westinghouse Electric and the Carnegie Steel have won the confidence of their employes to a remarkable extent. When the United States Steel Corporation spends more than $13,000,000 a year in welfare work alone, and other big corporations spend big sums of money, and the time of experts trying to ascertain causes of discontent and remedies, Bolshevism can't make much headway.

Why, one of the steel men told me today that the only trouble with labor that he is having is trying to impress the workers with the merit of the eight-hour day, which Judge Gary accepted some time ago. Many of the employes want the 12 and 14 hour shifts, because they think they can make more money that way. As a matter of fact, my informant says three shifts of an eigh-hour day would mean efficiency and greater production. "It ought to come," he said, "first, because its right, and second, because it can be made to pay."

I asked him whether he might not have to raise wages in order to get the men to accept the eight-hour day, and he said he wouldn't be surprised if something like that wouldn't have to be done.

"I firmly believe, he added, "that we shall take away the main talking point of the union organizers if we put in the eight-hour day."

AIRMEN OF ALLIED LANDS TO TRY FOR PULITZER TROPHY

Indications That the Rivalry in Nonstop Contest Will Have a Thoroughly Cosmopolitan Flavor.

COLLEGE MEN TO GO AFTER PRIZE

Suggested That Aviation Will Become Recognized College Sport as Result of the Atlantic City Convention.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Several points raised by inquiries as to conditions surrounding the competition for the Pulitzer Trophy, to be awarded for the longest non-stop flight during the Pan-American Aeronautic Convention at Atlantic City, in May, were settled yesterday by the Contest Committee of the Aero Club of America.

The number of aviators who have announced their purpose of entering the contest indicates that the endurance of planes and flyers will have been thoroughly tested before the month ends. It also has became clear that the rivalry for the Pulitzer Trophy will have a thoroughly cosmopolitan flavor, with aviators of most of the allied countries engaging.

One question passed on by the Contest Committee was whether a plane manned by two or more pilots, standing duty in watches, would be allowed. It was accompanied by the suggestion that, with the art in its present advanced state, it may well come to pass that a plane can keep the air as long as its fuel supply holds out, and in this connection it was noted that the Sopwith biplane, with which Hawker purposes to try the Transatlantic flight, has flown, according to Hawker's statement, nine hours and five minutes with a consumption of only one-third of its gasoline.

Such a plane entered for the Pulitzer Trophy might keep the air, if all worked well, 27 hours, which would transcend the endurance record of any single pilot.

Contest Committee Decision.

The Contest Committee decided that no limit should be put on the number of pilots. Since distance and non-stop flight are the ends to be demonstrated, it was agreed they should be reached by whatever contrivance of motors and man-power would give the best results.

Another question was as to whether the flight must be a straightaway or could be over a given course of two or three points. It was decided the latter type of flying should be penalized 5 per cent as against the straightaway flight. This is because straightaway flight to a remote destination, as from Atlantic City to Chicago, is a severer test than a course flight, free from changing weather and atmospheric conditions. For course flying, Atlantic City and Governor's Island were tentatively suggested, with observers at each station to register laps.

A large number of college men are announcing their purpose of getting into the contest. Responses were received yesterday from Harvard, Yale and Princeton, while a meeting of Columbia men was held at the Aero Club to make preliminary arrangements. It was presided over by Lieut. E. L. Smith, and those present included M. G. Spooner, R. M. Chagmile, Lieut G. S. Lennstrand, M. D. Lowenstein, M. G. Fay, G. H. Gahman, Kenyon S. Kirkland, W. H. Emery, L. B. Lane, B. M. Beatty and A. K. Doolittle.

Lieut. Smith is anxious to get into touch with all Columbia University fliers, including alumni, and with alumni interested in the art, to make the Columbia flying camp it is proposed to maintain at Atlantic City throughout the month a success.

Aviation as College Sport.

It was suggested, as a strong probability, that aviation will find its place among recognized college sports, as a result of the impetus it will receive from the Atlantic City convention.

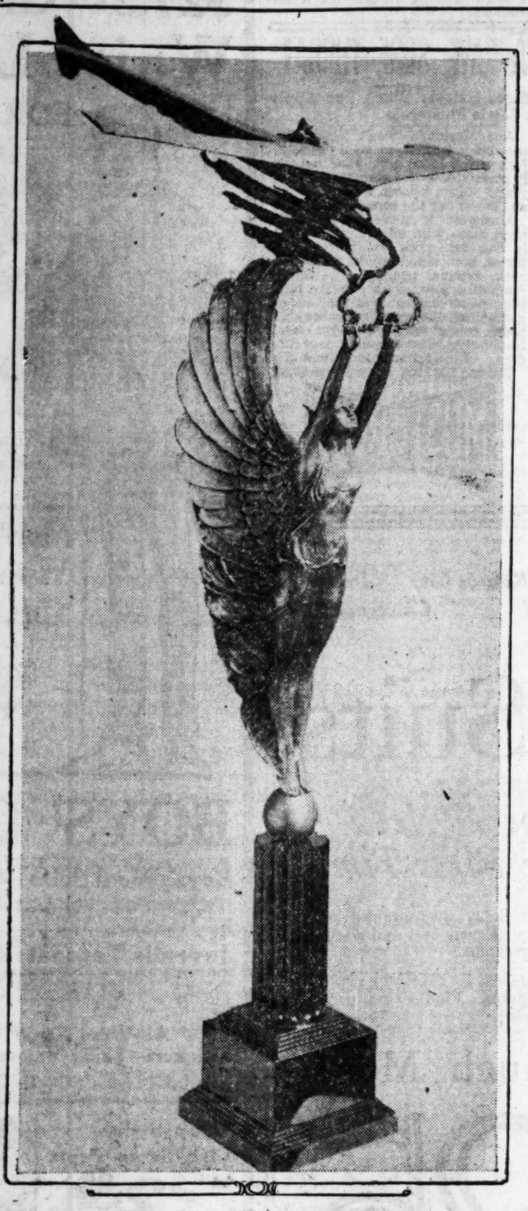

Joseph C. Steplin ("Chateau Joe") of Sheepshead Bay, late of the French and American flying forces, declared emphatically that he would fly for the Pulitzer Trophy and expects to win it. He said he would represent St. Johns College of Brooklyn.

Entry Blanks Ready Soon.

Entry blanks for the Pulitzer trophy are being drawn and will be ready this week. It is the desire of the Contest Committee of the Aero Club to have the conditions as liberal as is consistent with fairness, in keeping with the terms of the deed of gift. The wide latitude permitted fliers in the original announcement has created a friendly sentiment among those who expect to enter. The members of the Contest Committee are:

Allan R. Hawley, chairman; Lieutenant-Commander P. N. L. Bellinger, U. S. N.; Col. G. C. Brant, U. S. A.; W Redmond Cross, Lieut Godfrey L. Cabot, U. S. N.; Walter Camp, Col. Milton F. Davis, U. S. A.; Col. C. DeF. Chandler, U. S. A.; Maj. A. B. Lambert, U. S. A.; Maj. Wm. McIlvain, U. S. M. C.; Col. James Prentiss, U. S. A.; Maj. J. C. McCoy, U. S. A.; Commander H. C. Mustin, U. S. N.; Lieutenant-Commander John H. Towers, U. S. N.; Henry A. Wise Wood, Henry Woodhouse.

CELL A COUNTERFEITERS' DEN

Convicts Caught Raising "Ones" and "Twos" to "Fives" and "Tens."

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—A "counterfieters' den" has been discovered within the walls of the Eastern Penitentiary here. Three convicts were doing the work in their cell at night. They had been operating three days.

The case was turned over to the United States Secret Service men, who found 18 one-dollar bills and one two-dollar note in the process of becoming "fives" and "tens." Three of these had been completed, but the enamel used to raise the figures and change the letters was hardly dry.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

GEN. WOOD WILL MAKE FOUR SPEECHES HERE ON THURSDAY

His Principal Address Will Be at the Odeon on Our Responsibility to the Discharged Soldier.

Major-General Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Department of the United States Army, with headquarters at Chicago, will make four speeches here Thursday, his chief appearance being at a mass meeting in the Odeon in the evening. His visit is under the auspices of the Victory Loan organization, the Red Cross and the War Camp Community Service.

He will speak Thursday noon at the members' luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at the Missouri Athletic Association, during the afternoon will address Missouri workers in the Victory Loan at the Statler and will be the dinner guest of the Harvard Club in the evening preceding his Odeon address.

The announced subject for his speech at the mass meeting is "Responsibility of the Country to the Discharged Soldier." Gen. Wood trained the Eighty-ninth Division at Camp Funston and the excellent record of the division in France is commonly accepted as reflecting great credit to him. In the division are several thousand St. Louis men. Gen. Wood has given the understanding that he particularly desires relatives of men in the division to attend the Odeon meeting.

Tissue Building

Tissue is the doctor's name for body cells.

It is to our bodies what coal is to an engine.

Every day we burn up a certain amount of tissue.

Therefore new tissue must be built to take the place of the lost fuel.

The food we eat makes this new tissue and in a healthy person gives enough fuel to replace the loss.

People get thin and "run down" because they do not get enough nourishment from their food to supply the needed fuel.

When the weakened system does not do its duty you must have a "tissue builder." Father John's Medicine is a real tissue builder because it actually makes new flesh and tissue.

When you take Father John's Medicine, the actual food elements of which it is composed give you new strength, and enable the organs of the body to resume their work.

Father John's Medicine soothes and heals throat and is best for colds, bronchitis, asthma.

People gain weight steadily while taking it.

Remember, Father John's Medicine contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs. It has a history of more than half a century of success.—ADV.

WATCHMAN SLAIN BY BURGLARS IN A WEST END LAUNDRY

Alone in Office at 4701 Delmar Boulevard When Men Enter Shortly After 8:30 P. M.—No Witnesses.

TWO MEN SEEN RUNNING AWAY

William Rothschild, 66, Well Known in Neighborhood, Routed Two Robbers About a Month Ago.

William H. Rothschild, 66 years old, of 382 North Taylor avenue, watchman and collector for the Imperial Laundry, 4701 Delmar boulevard, was shot in the left breast at 8:40 last night by one of two men who entered the laundry office, apparently for the purpose of robbery. He died an hour later at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium.

The men ran away without taking anything from the laundry, but Mrs. Rothschild said today that she believed they had robbed her husband of a roll of bills, which she said he was accustomed to carry.

Policemen have found no one who saw the occurrences in the laundry office. The foreman had been in the place until 8:30, and had gone out, intending to return before 9.

Rothschild kept a revolver lying on a desk, covered by papers. Last month, when two men entered the place and demanded money, he drove them out with this revolver, firing at them as they ran down the street.

Two Men Seen Running.

Last night, persons near the laundry heard several shots, and a man was then seen to come out of the front door, and run west on Delmar boulevard, while another man jumped through a window on the Walton avenue side of the office, and ran into an alley and then north on Bayard avenue. The latter man was seen by Mrs. Daisy Roederer of 4748 Kensington place, who said he was short and heavy and wore a gray suit and cap. Two men who were passing saw the other man, and said he was slender and of medium height, wearing a dark suit and dark cap.

Rothschild was found lying on his back, unconscious, with his revolver near him. It contained three empty shells.

Father of Seven.

Two men were arrested, 45 minutes after the shooting, at Cabanne and Academy avenues. The younger, who was 17 years old, carried a revolver, which was empty. Both denied knowing of the shooting.

Rothschild was well known in the nieghborhood and to customers of the laundry, who used to get their bundles from him when they called after the regular closing time. His family consisted of his wife and seven children.

PROPOSITION FOR THE CITY TO SAVE $193,788 A YEAR

Economy Possible, Expert Says, by Municipality Installing Its Own Lighting System.

The city can save approximately $193,788 a year on its light bill by installing and equipping its own lighting system, according to a report submitted today by Director of Public Utilities Hooke to the Board of Public Service.

The report was prepared by Ralph Toensfeldt, electrical engineer of the Department of Public Utilities, who based his figures on the probable cost of lighting to the city under contracts with the Union Electric Light and Power Co. and the Welbach Street lighting Co., dating from Sept. 1, 1920. The plan would effect a saving of $35,376 annually over the present cost.

The plan provides for the use of the city's conduits, which now are used for carrying the wires of the police and municipal telephone lines. The cost of installing the system is estimated by Toensfeldt at $1,260,400, and the annual cost, based on 2 cents a kilowatt hour for electricity and 50 cents a thousand cubic feet for gas, would be $699,592.

Director Hooke said that he had conferred with Charles S. Ruffner, president of the Union Electric, and that while Ruffner did not indicate what the company's attitude would be, he did not say that any obstacles would be placed in the way of the city should the plan be adopted.

PADEREWSKI FEELS REASSURED AS TO THE DANZIG AGREEMENT

Polish Premier Declares His Country Must Have Port; Has Appointment With Wilson.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 8.—After conferences with Premier Clemenceau, Foreign Minister Pichon and E. M. House, Ignace Jan Paderewski, Premier of Poland, told the Associated Press yesterday that he was somewhat reassured about Marshal Foch's agreement concerning the moving of troops through Danzig.

Paderewski said: "We are uncertain still and not satisfied with the status of the negotiations concerning Danzig. If Poland is not given Danzig, the war is lost. Leaving Danzig in Germany's hands would mean the defeat of all the armies which participated in this great war."

Asked if the neutralization of Danzig would be sasisfactory to Poland, Paderewski replied emphatically in the negative. "We have seen how neutralization of Danzig works," he said. "The whole world knows what a failure that was in the past. It would be the same again."

Paderewski has an appointment to meet President Wilson on Thursday.

WOMAN'S DEATH ATTRIBUTED TO AFTER-EFFECTS OF INFLUENZA

Autopsy Discloses That Edwardsville Resident Had Cystic Tumor.

An autopsy on the body of Miss Selma Buettemeier, 28 years old, of Edwardsville, disclosed that her sudden death yesterday resulted from uraemic convulsions and cystic tumor, which, according to Dr. E. W. Fiegenbaum, president of the Illinois State Medical Society, and Dr. E. C. Ferguson, the autopsy surgeons, were the after-effects of influenza suffered last December.

This is the second sudden death in Edwardsville in the past 10 days, which surgeons have attributed to the after-effects of influenza, Mrs. Teresa Funke, a young widow, having died a week ago last Sunday.

In reporting the result of the autopsy to Deputy Coroner F. L. Leadley today, Dr. Fiegenbaum said that he had been informed by Dr. St. Clair Drake of Springfield, Ill., Director of Public Health in Illinois, that there had been a large number of sudden deaths in the State which had been traced by physicians to the after-effects of influenza.

BILL FOR SALE OF GAME PASSED

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—The important Mayes amendment to the State game law providing that legally-killed game may be sold, was passed late yesterday by the Senate. Under the present law, the selling of game, no matter how killed, is prohibited. The Mayes amendment was designed to enable hunters in Southwest Missouri to market surplus game, especially ducks, killed in open season.

Among the measures engrossed by the Senate were the Brownlee bills, which, if passed, will enable the formation of a discount company in St. Louis to handle foreign business.

The proposal for the election of St. Louis Aldermen by wards was passed yesterday by the Senate. The House bill taxing insurance companies in the city of St. Louis $200 a year for municipal purposes and the bill requiring counties to pay $5 a month for each patient sent to the State Colony for the Feeble-Minded at Marshall, also were passed.

Rich Sugar Hoarder Sentenced.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 8.—Hulett Merritt of Pasadena, reputed to be a millionaire, was sentenced yesterday in the United States District Court here to five months in jail, fined $5000 following his conviction of hoarding sugar in violation of war food restrictions. Merritt gave notice of appeal.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

GEORGIA HAMILTON.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive, and is sold by Judge & Dolph, Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., in St. Louis, and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health. Miss Georgia Hamilton, who was once thin and frail, reporting her own experience, writes: "Bitro-Phosphate has brought about a magic transformation with me. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh. —ADV.

PUBLIC HEARING HELD ON 1919 CITY BUDGET

Numerous Requests Are Made for Appropriations for Park Improvements.

The problems of the annual budget of city expenditures, to be submitted to the Board of Aldermen about April 18, were outlined by Mayor Kiel and Comptroller Nolte at a public hearing in the Mayor's office today, at which requests for appropriations, chiefly for park improvements, were made by individuals and organizations. The hearing was held by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, in compliance with a charter requirement. President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, a member of the Board of Estimate, was not present.

The Chamber of Comemrce, through Assistant Secretary Lovelace, asked for an appropriation of $25,000 for advertising St. Louis, to match a $25,000 fund which the chamber proposed to raise.

G. A. Buder asked that $15,000 be appropriated for a bathing beach on the Meramec River property, near Valley Park, given by him to the city, and that a shelter house be built at Buder Memorial Playground. Numerous requests in behalf of various parks and playgrounds were made, one being for a wading pool at Carondelet Park.

$12,685,000 Available.

The Mayor said the available revenue for municipal purposes was estimated at $12,685,000, and that the requirements for salaries, material and supplies, outside the Police Department, would be $11,009,273. The regular Police Department requirement, he said, will be $2,473,600, and if the police salary increase bill is enacted by the Legislature, it will be about $500,000 more.

The estimates for new public work are $2,468,368, making with the maximum police estimate an excess of $3,766,241 over the estimated revenue.

Proposed Public Works.

To come within the city's resources, much of the new work will have to be eliminated. The items of new public work in the tentative list, as he outlined them, are:

Morgue building, $75,000; municipal garage, $75,000; reconstruction Fourteenth street viaduct, $150,000; King's highway viaduct, Terminal tracks, $55,000; viaduct, Euclid and Bircher, $50,000; viaduct, Gravois avenue and River des Peres, $60,000; Wabash grade crossing, Delmar boulevard, $220,000; sewer improvements, $136,000; municipal dock, $176,000; resurfacing streets, $139,200; Fire Department buildings, $137,600; smallpox hospital, $75,000; Park Department improvements, $804,775; Bellefontaine farms buildings, $267,300; sundry requests, $47,493.

MAN INDICTED WITH M'HUGH PLEADS GUILTY TO ROBBERY

Harry Kenyon Sentenced to Two Years in Prison for Entering Home on Pretext He Was a Detective.

Harry Kenyon, 7119 Lanham avenue, pleaded guilty today in Circuit Judge Calhoun's court to first degree robbery and was sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary. Harry McHugh, 1724 Glasgow avenue, jointly indicted with Kenyon, announced ready for trial.

The men were charged with having taken a purse containing $1.25 and several pawntickets belonging to Mrs. Pearl Bobbitt, 4031 Delmar boulevard, whose home, it was alleged, they entered Feb. 3 under the pretext that they were detectives.

John D. Conley, 4036 Easton avenue, was shot and killed in a saloon at Easton and Warne avenues Feb. 16, an hour after he was to have appeared in the Court of Criminal Correction as a witness against McHugh, whom he had accused of having taken $7 from a cafe near Sixth and Market streets. McHugh and two other men were held responsible for the killing by a Coroner's jury.

Mrs. Bobbitt and her husband, Albert Bobbitt, were brought to St. Louis from Chicago to testify against Kenyon and McHugh. They could not be found at a previous setting of the case and Bobbitt later told the Circuit Attorney that he and his wife had been threatened with death.

AUTHORITY TELLS HOW MEN SHOULD DRESS

Peoria (Ill.) Man Here to Address Cutters' Convention, Gives Pointers on Styles.

W. P. Walker of Peoria, Ill., a national authority of designs for tailor-made clothes, and said by tailors to be one of the most correctly dressed men in the United States, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today at Hotel Jefferson how men should dress this summer. He is here to address the Custom Cutters' Association of St. Louis this evening at the American Annex.

Coats should have high shoulders, not too narrow, he said. One-button or two-button coats are preferable. The front is always straight, when the attitude of the man will permit it. The waist is slightly higher than normal, but not actually as high as it should be made to appear by the long skirts and high pockets.

The drapery of the skirts, or "coat-tails," should fall toward the back, but should not flare. The coat should be an inch or more longer than usual, and should fall over the hips in a rounded effect.

Pockets may be either slashed or with flaps, but flaps should be very narrow. As to trousers, they are to be more generous than heretofore, especially at the bottom. They will continue to hug the hips closely.

"Don't be deceived about these waistline coats with flaring skirts," Walker declared. "They are neither stylish nor fitting. A man who wears one looks like a bag of meal with a halter tied around its middle. Their principal result is to decrease the appearance of a man's height."

Colors will be principally browns and greens, he said, and added: "Shepherd's plaids and gun club checks are much worn, but must be accepted as staples, and in the same class as blue serges."

He had no hope of lower prices, or for better fabrics, and said prices were more likely to increase.

"There is plenty of wool in Australia, but neither machines nor men to weave it, or ships to transport it," he explained. "Even if there is a 10 to 20 per cent decrease in the price of fabrics, labor has assurances of increases that will offset this."

Walker himself is a model of sartorial elegance. When talking to the reporter he wore a coat of the kind he had described—long, gracefully draped skirts, high pockets, with long, narrow flaps and high shouders. The material was dark, with a faint reddish thread. Nor did the nature of his raiment stop at the suit. His shirt was a plain white, with blue pin stripes, with a stiff collar of the same material.

The above injunction to Mr. Motorist by the conservative, unselfish, far-seeing business men is of the same spirit that inspires the advertisements of Weed Tire Chains which prevent thousands of accidents and save thousands of lives.

For a number of years we have advertised the fact that the chief cause of automobile accidents is skidding and that Tire Chains are the only mechanical device that is absolutely dependable to make slippery roads safe. But printers' ink does not seem to make any impression on some drivers.

Only two things can reach and weed out the driver who persists in driving with chainless tires on wet-slippery-skiddy-roads—fear of the law and the mighty power of public opinion. Help us chain him to safety.

STATE'S FINANCIAL OUTLOOK GIVES OFFICIALS CONCERN

Legislature Daily Increases Salaries, Provides New Jobs Without Providing for New Revenue.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Administration leaders have begun to have a real concern over the financial outlook for the last two years of the Gardner administration following the appearance of a growing opposition in the Legislature to the bills proposed by the administration to produce additional revenue and a continuing disposition to pass almost any kind of a salary increase bill which is presented. In other words, the Legislature is working day by day to increase State expenditures, and is doing nothing toward providing additional funds.

Close students of State finances are convinced that the only hope of the administration is to find some means to induce the members of the State Board of Equalization to fix assessment valuations throughout the State at a much higher percentage of true values than they ever have been placed, and there is at present not the slightest indication that the board will do this.

In 1919 and 1920 the State will lose approximately $3,000,000 of revenue through the closing of saloons and the stopping of the sale of liquor. The Gardner administration was able in its first two years to pay off $2,225,000 of debts left over from the Major administration and meet virtually all its absolutely necessary expenditures.

Rigid Economy Was Necessary.

To do this, however, it was necessary for the Governor to veto every appropriation by the last Legislature for improvements at State institutions, and to conduct the affairs of the State Government on a scale of most rigid economy.

The Governor realized this condition at the beginning of the second two years of his term and in his message to the Legislature urged the passage of measures which would increase State revenues. A part of his program already has been rejected by the Legislature and the attitude of both Senate and House is such as to give rise to grave doubts that the remainder will be put through.

The Governor could have used the "big stick" to force the Board of Equalization and the Legislature to stand firmly for a full assessment of property for taxation purposes. However, the Governor, by abandoning all support of the State Tax Commission, encouraged the Legislature to move to abolish it, the only State department which ever had made a step toward tax reform. That it will be abolished there seems no question, though at present the Republican House and the Democratic Senate are playing with the bill repealing it, seeking such political advantage as can be had from the repeal.

The principal bills recommended by the Governor were an increase in the State income tax from one-half of 1 per cent to 1 per cent; an increase in the corporation franchise tax from 75 cents on the $1000 of capital and surplus to $1; an increase in the tax on soft drinks, a mortgage-recording tax, a tax on sand and gravel taken from Missouri streams, and a tax on all weights and measures.

In the House yesterday the weights and measures bill was killed, the House refusing to engross it. Even if the Senate should pass the weights and measures bill, it now seems probable that the House will take the same action on the Senate bill as it did on its own bill.

The tax on sand and gravel bill was killed several weeks ago, the committees of both houses to which it was referred, reporting unfavorably on it.

Other Bills May Be Passed.

With these measures eliminated, there only remain the corporation franchise tax, the income tax, the mortgage-recording tax and the soft drink tax.

It is not improbable that all of these, with the exception of the mortgage-recording tax, will become laws, though there is considerable opposition to all of them, and there are legislators who insist that none of them will be passed. The mortgage-recording tax is not meeting with favor, and there are few legislators who believe it will pass both houses.

The corporation franchise tax law, with its increase of 33⅓ per cent, would produce, figured on the returns from it during the 18 months of the previous biennial period, approximately $300,000 a year more than the old law, or $600,000 for the next two years. Figured on the same basis the soft drink tax would produce $55,000 a year more, or $170,000 for the two years.

The probable increased returns from the new income tax are problematical. Although the pending bill doubles the tax rate, a provision to reduce the personal exemption from $3000 for unmarried persons and $4000 for married persons to $1000 and $2000, respectively, seemingly has failed, the Senate having amended the bill to make the exemptions $2000 and $.000, respectfvely. It is considered improbable that this law will increase revenues more than $200,000 a year, or $400,000 for the two years.

From a recapitulation there is little reason to believe that from the revenue bills pending the State will receive more than $1,170,000 as against $3,000,000 it will lose through the stoning of all liquor revenues.

There is a noticeable growing disposition among the members of the Republican majority in the House to prevent the passage of all the revenue bills, the Republicans thinking they see in the situation a possible partisan advantage in the failure of the Gardner administration, as the Major administration failed, to make ends meet.

When Major retired from the Governor's office in January, 1917, the State was more than $2,000,000 in debt. That has been paid, but the State will be in no better shape from "a business man's administration," the Republicans say, if it is another $2,000,000 in debt when Gardner goes out of office.

This disposition was evident yesterday when the Republicans killed the weights and measures tax bill. The probable revenue from this had been estimated at from $100,000 to $400,000 a year. It possibly could have gone through if the administration had not sought to load it down with salary increases and new positions, the excuse offered by the Republicans for their action. It was sought to increase the salary of the State Food and Drug Commissioner from $2000 to $3500 a year, his deputy $1000 a year and to create seven $1800-a-year jobs and two $2400-a-year jobs.

The only hope of preventing the repeal of the law creating the State Tax Commission and that hope is a faint one, because it appears that even if the commission is not abolished the Legislature will not appropriate funds for its work, is that it has become entangled in partisan politics.

Would Provide More Positions.

When the bill repealing the law was drawn in the office of Attorney-General McAllister, it was so framed that the work of the commission should be taken over by the State Board of Equalization, giving a number of well-paying positions to the Democratic members of the board. In the House the Republicans have prepared amendments which will take all this patronage away from the board and place it in the office of State Auditor Hackmann, a Republican.

Moire Taffeta Frocks

MOIRE—that new-old material that was used for frocks in grandmother's day—has been brought to the fore again by the designers of fashion. It makes stunning Frocks for tailored wear—Frocks that show a wonderful diversity of styles.

Russian Blouse Frocks made of moire are a smart outfit for the street; so are the peplum blouse styles made with soft white collars. Frocks with the new extended hip pocket are also shown of moire.

Besides being inspired by the material, the designers decided that the quaint flutings used for trimming on frocks of our mother's mother—were quite the most effective trimming Moire Frocks could have. Many of these new Frocks are fluted.

The prices are $37.50, $39.75, $45.

Hickson has sent us models of moire made in Hickson's inimitable way. Other Moires are priced $75 to $195.

ST. LOUISAN TO MARRY IN COLORADO TODAY

Joseph Allen Lee Will Take as His Bride Miss Barbara Senseney Formerly of This City.

An out-of-town wedding of today which is of interest here is that of Miss Barbara Thruston Senseney to Joseph Allen Lee, which is scedule to take place in Colorado Springs at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Edgar Moore Senseney, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It will be a small affair in the presence of the family and a few close friends. The couple will be unattended and the bride will be gowned in her traveling suit. After a brief honeymoon trip Mr. Lee will bring his bride to St. Louis and after April 20 they will be at home at 5328 Pershing avenue.

Miss Senseney formerly resided in St. Louis, but for the past two years has, with her mother and sister, Miss Margaret Moore Senseney, been making her home in the West. She is a sister of Dr. Eugene Towner Senseney, who is with the Medical Corps of the United States Army, stationed at Dijon, France.

The bride was graduated from Mary Institute, where she won the scholarship prize to Washington University, from which institution she was graduated in 1914. Mr. Lee is the son of Mrs. Allen Lee of Cincinnati, but has made his home in St. Louis for the past two years. He is an alumnus of Yale University.

Social Items

Mrs. Howard Gillette of Chicago is planning to spend a few days with Mrs. Alfred Hebard of 4934 Pershing avenue, and will arrive tomorrow evening.

Mrs. A. C. Hilmer of 4161 Shaw avenue gave an informal luncheon yesterday for her sister, Miss Florence Grant, at which her engagement to Capt. Fred Armstrong was announced. The guests were Mrs. Roy MacKenzie, Mrs. William Hess, Misses Margaret Ewing, Aphrodite Jannopoulo, Lillian Stupp, Wilma and Louise Grant and Elise Boogher. Miss Grant is a member of the Wednesday Club, College Club, Players and Dramatic Club, a graduate of Washington University, and also attended Syracuse University, and a member of Alpha Phi Sorority. She recently took part in Mrs. Lewis' prize play, "The Canary," given last week at the Artists' Guild.

Capt. Armstrong was, for several years, practicing law in St. Louis prior to his enlistment in the army. He remained at Camp Funston during his two years of service, and has now gone to Washington State to reside. He received his discharge from the army in December, and is now a Captain in the Reserves. He is a graduate of Washington University, both College and Law, and a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity.

June 14 is the day set for the wedding.

Miss Grant is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grant of Sparta, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims of 56 Portland place are among the St. Louisans who are visiting New York City during the early spring season. They departed Saturday, and expect to be gone about three weeks.

Mrs. Clarence Malone of Houston, Tex., is the guest of Mrs. C. E. Holzworth of 757 Westgate avenue. Mrs. Malone was formerly Miss Mildred Ward of St. Louis and will be much entertained by her old friends here.

Miss Helen Chesbrough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Chesbrough of 6169 Westminster place, has gone to Pittsburg for a short visit and will also visit friends in New York before returning home.

Mrs. Orrick Johns of the Georgian Court apartments has gone to New York City where she is the guest of Miss Zoe Akins.

Mrs. Hugh Elliott Moore of 4182 Delmar boulevard, who has been seriously ill at St. John's Hospital for the past five weeks, is expected to return to her home next week.

FOREST PARK OPERA SEASON TO BEGIN IN MIDDLE OF JUNE

Suggestion Made for Three Weeks of Grand Opera and Three Weeks of Light Opera.

The Productions Committee of the Municipal Theater Association yesterday afternoon at Hotel Statler tentatively decided that the open-air grand opera season in the Forest Park Municipal Theater shall begin June 16 and continue six weeks. This date is subject to change, however, it was announced, as there is some sentiment to have the opening performance June 15, which will be Sunday. In the event the date is changed it will be the only Sunday performance of the season.

Fortuno Gallo of the San Carlo Grand Opera Co. advised the committee to divide the opera season into two classes—three weeks grand opera and three weeks light opera. He suggested that "Carmen," "Robin Hood," "Il Trovatore," "Bohemian Girl," "Madame Butterfly" and a double bill of "Secret Suzanne" be produced. He said the prestige of St. Louis for municipal theatricals extended throughout the United States.

The voting contest to select the six operas to be produced will close at 5 p. m. tomorrow. The operas thus far having the highest number of votes are: "Carmen," "Robin Hood," "Madame Butterfly," "Waltz Dream," "The Pink Lady," "The Chocolate Soldier," "Bohemian Girl," "Mikado," "Merry Widow" and "Il Trovatore."

Georgia Peaches Damaged by Cold.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., April 8.—The Georgia early peach crop was seriously damaged by the cold weather a week ago, according to reports received here today from Fort Valley, Byron and Marshallville, the centers of the peach belt. Orchardists report that the fruit, although apparently uninjured on the outside, is decaying on the interior. The late peaches are not believed to have been affected.

NOISY WEEK AT ORPHEUM WITH EVERYBODY 'JAZZING'

Quietest Performer on the Bill Is an Inebriated Dog.

"Jazz" is the keynote of the current week's bill at the Orpheum. Without interruption it runs through four consecutive acts and sporadically breaks out elsewhere on the program. Foremost of the exploiters of this noisy and wriggly form of entertainment is Frisco, a young man who proclaims himself the originator of the "jazz" dance and seems to be proud of it. He dances in solo and with Lorette McDermott to the raucous and ear-splitting accompaniment of a "jazz" band.

There is jazzy vocalization by Sylvia Clark and by a pair of statuesque young women billed as Harmon and O'Connor, and, as if this were not enough, Charles Ahearn, "the tramp," winds up the show with an act in which a "jazz" drummer and shivery dancing are the features.

The noisy week at the Orpheum is ushered in by Ryan and Ryan, eccentric dancers, who wear clogs three feet long to make their act sound like a boiler factory working overtime. The quietest acts on the bill are those of Officer Vokes and Don, the "inebriated dog," and Charlie Grapewin and Anna Chance in "Jed's Vacation," another of their Foughkeepsie sketches.

MISS CRAFT'S ORIGINAL IDEA OF CHO-CHO-SAN

Heroine of "Butterfly" Flirts Like Carmen, Lies Down to Sing "Un Bel Di."

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

REFLECTING recent prosperity in freshness of scenery and costumes, in an orchestra enlarged to some 35 pieces and in general enterprise of production, Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera Co. returned to St. Louis last night after an absence of two and a half years, opening a week's engagement at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater with Puccini's lyric tragedy, "Madame Butterfly." The return of the troupe to what it used to consider its "home city" would have been still further postponed had not the theater engaged for this week in Chicago been closed to it, owing to an extension of the engagement there of "The Masquerader."

Balcony and galleries were sold out, but the parquet lacked several rows of being filled. The audience was warmly sincere in its applause; justly so, for by no other troupe in America is opera being provided so ambitiously at the popular scale of $2 a seat. This financial feat the dexterous Signor Gallo is able to encompass through his refusal to employ high-priced stars.

The evening marked the operatic debut in this city of Miss Marcella Craft, American soprano, who presented her own individual version of the Japanese heroine, Cho-Cho-San, a role which she at present shares before the public with Geraldine Farrar and Tamaki Miura. Miss Craft is by no means a stranger here. She was soloist at a pair of the Symphony Orchestra's regular concerts a few years ago, and later appeared in recital with the Morning Choral Club. Previously she had considerable operatic experience in Germany, particularly in the name-part of Strauss' "Salome." Recently she sang in opera with the American Society of Singers, in New York, where her portrayal of Cho-Cho-San excited much comment.

Some Startling Innovations.

From her first entrance it was evident that the spectators were due for a number of novelties. Instead of the shy and virginally modest Cho-Cho-San of tradition, there marched upon the stage a woman with an odd suggestion of maturity and sophistication, who flirted boldly with Pinkerton and ogled him with the challenging eye of Carmen. This was probably Miss Craft's idea of a realistic presentation of a geisha girl. In the next act she startled the audience by lying down to begin the aria, "Un bel di," as if no one could see a vision while standing up. And a few minutes later she injected some unexpected comedy into the letter scene.

But such innovations aside, it is not often, outside of costly operatic productions, that a role is both acted and sung with such pains and thought as Miss Craft gives to this one. Her aim is said to be to exalt the drama above a mere tragedy of individuals into a collision of two races and cultures—a conception cerebral rather than emotional. An interpretation of the sort can scarcely avoid chilling the personal passion of the play, and this Cho-Cho-San seemed to love with her head as much as her heart. But whatever quarrel there may be with Miss Craft's understanding of the role, her conscientiousness is unquestionable.

With an actress of her experience and care, however, there could not but be moments which, if not wrenching the heart-strings with the exquisite torture of which story and music are capable, proved more than mildly moving. Such were Cho-Cho-San's anguish under the curse of her uncle, the fine love duet with Pinkerton, her pitiful refusal to believe that Pinkerton has deserted her, the flower duet with Suzuki and the suicide scene.

Miss Craft revealed a voice of genuine sweetness, especially in the middle register and in mezza voice passages, true of intonation, capable of considerable expressiveness. That it appeared of a smaller timbre than it really is was due partly to the orchestral director, who might have subdued his instruments to less volume, in view of the fact that most of them were almost on a level with the stage. She was not eminently happy in affording a pictorial illusion of the character—but what occidental singer can be after the unconscious realism of a Tamaki Miura? Miss Craft's facial play was often telling, and perhaps the chief charm of the impersonation was the artistic use of her slender hands.

The actors, it must be said, were left mostly to their own devices in rendering the drama, for they had little assistance from the director, Gaetano Merola. Apparently he aspired to be little more than a time-beater, and was even careless at that. He passed over slovenly attack and release with smiling equanimity; his imperturability was not shaken when singers and orchestra strayed a beat or so apart. He made small effort to stir the orchestra out of routine playing, and appeared quite content to let the music flow along under its own momentum. Once he seemed a bit animated, when an especially explosive pizzicato was given by the violins in an accompaniment. The violinists smiled broadly, and the director joined in the passage of amusement. Unfortunately, it occurred at the sorrowful moment when Mme. Butterfly was bidding farewell to her child.

Giuseppe Agostini, well known here from previous seasons of the company, did some of the best singing of the evening as Lieut. Pinkerton. One does not remember that his tenor was so melodious and ringing. Other parts were adequately taken by Doria Fernanda as Suzuki, Rodolfo Fornari as Sharpless, Alice Homer as Kate Pinkerton and Pietro de Biasi as the Bonze.

Tonight the company will present its star tenor, Manuel Salazar, as Canio in "Pagliacci," the others in the cast being Estelle Wentworth, Angelo Antola, Rodolfo Fornari and Luciano Rossini. As the other half of a double bill will be offered Wolf-Ferrari's "Secret of Suzanna," in English, with Joseph Royer and Elizabeth Amsden in the two vocal parts.

BURGLARS ESCAPE WHEN INTERRUPTED BY A POLICEMAN

Three Men Had Just Begun Work in Store When Warned of Approaching Danger by "Lookout."

OTHER ROBBERIES IN ALL PARTS OF CITY

Men Break Into Theater Safe With Pickax — Another Church Entered—Girl Attacked in Realty Office.

Three burglars fled from the Esselbruegge Mercantile Co. store, 3691 North Eleventh street, at 3:30 a. m. today when a policeman started into an alley at the rear to investigate a noise. He saw the men fleeing, but was too far away, he explained, to shoot at them. Investigation developed the thieves had broken a shutter on a rear window and had been trying to open the safe when they were warned by the "lookout" of the approach of the policeman and fled. They had previously taken $2.75.

Safe robbers in the office of the Excello Theater, 2506 Salisbury street, last night used a pickax to open both the front and inner doors of the safe. The pickax had been taken by the burglars from some material used in street construction work near the scene. A bag containing $80 war tax and $25 belonging to the theater proprietor was taken by the thieves, who left the pickax in the office.

Burglars in Church.

Burglars visited the Washington Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington and Compton avenues, in the evening. They broke open a desk in the study of the pastor, the Rev. Irving Carroll, overlooked $50 that was in a drawer and took 85 cents in change in another drawer. Papers from the pastor's desk were strewn about the floor. They broke a basement window to get into the church.

At the home of Mrs. Kate Hoagland, 3644A Easton avenue, burglars broke open a trunk and stole a diamond ring valued at $370.

A well-dressed man about 28 years old robbed the real estate office of Harry M. Boeckmann, 2715 Franklin avenue, of $103 in cash and $85 in checks at 3 p. m. and knocked down Miss Sylvia Laffin, 18 years old, 2615 Dickson street, who was alone in the office when he entered.

She was sitting behind the cashier's cage. "How much money have you got?" he asked. "None of your business," she retorted.

"That so? I'll make it some of my business," declared the intruder, as he leaped over the railing. He hit Miss Laffin in the face with his fist, then opened the cash drawer under the counter and took the money and checks.

"Now you keep still for five minutes after I am gone, or I'll come back and kill you," he concluded, as he departed by the front door of the office. Miss Laffin was severely bruised.

Porch Climbers Busy.

Porch-climbing burglars robbed the home of Mrs. Francis A. Ewing, 4439A Washington boulevard, in the evening, taking $365 in jewelry and $4.75 cash from a drawer in a bedroom dresser.

Other burglaries reported were in the homes of Mrs. Ella Mercurio, 1519 North Fourteenth street, $225 in jewelry; and Mrs. Louisa Lewis, 4181 Delmar boulevard, $150 in jewelry.

Moe Harris, 5756 Waterman avenue, insurance agent, whose home was robbed Saturday evening, gave police a list of jewelry valued at $1500 which he said he had discovered was stolen.

William Stringer, 4417 Norfolk avenue, was held up by three men at Newstead and Hunt avenues at 10 p. m. and robbed of $5, a ring and a knife.

Charles Moore, 15 years old, of 823 Madison street, a messenger, told policemen that three boys had taken a watch from him when he had refused to lend them 10 cents when they stopped him in an alley at the rear of 514 Olive street.

Five automobiles reported stolen in the evening belonged to Ernest Miller, 1414 Warren street; William R. Frasier, 5743 Westminster place; J. S. Smith, M. A. A.; Thomas J. McCloskey, 1901 Bellegiade avenue; and W. C. Hauessler, 3638 Flora boulevard. Frasier's machine was stolen from Fourth street and Washington avenue; Hauessler's from in the rear of the Courthouse; Smith's from Fourth street and Lucas avenue, and Miller's from Fourteenth street and Cass avenue.

LEGISLATORS TO GREET 35TH AT KANSAS CITY

House Passes Resolution to Accept Invitation to Witness Parade There.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—The House today adopted a concurrent resolution providing that, as an "expression of our pride, and gratitude and appreciation," the General Assembly will recess the day the Thirty-fifth Division reaches Missouri, and accept the invitation of Kansas City to witness the parade of the returning soldiers there.

When the Thirty-fifth Division lands in New York, probably in May, it will be met by Gov. Gardner, Lieutenant-Governor Crossley, Adjutant-General Clark and a committee of five Senators and five representatives of the Missouri Legislature.

This was the announcement of the Governor yesterday, following a conference in the office of Adjutant-General Clark at Jefferson City, which was attended by the Governor, a legislative committee and H. M. Crutcher, secertary to Mayor Kiel; Miss V. A. L. Jones, representing the Relatives' Auxiliary, Missouri National Guard, and Alderman L. L. Adams of Kansas City.

The Governor also stated that he would make formal application to the War Department for parades of units of the division in St. Louis and Kansas City as follows:

Units to Parade Here.

In St. Louis—138th Infantry, 128th Field Artillery and 110th Motor Supply Train.

In Kansas City—139th Infantry, formerly the Fourth Regiment, Missouri National Guard; the 140th Infantry, composed of the Third and Sixth Regiments, Missouri National Guard, stationed in 15 towns of the State; the 129th Field Artillery, the 128th, 129th and 130th Machine Gun Battalions, formerly the Second Regiment, Missouri National Guard, the 110th Sanitary Train, of Kansas City, St. Joseph and Chamois, and the 110th Engineers.

Crutcher announced to the conference that St. Louis planned to hold its home-coming celebrations in Forest Park, because of the great capacity of Art Hill for crowds. This means, in all probability, that the parades of the St. Louis units will be held there instead of through the downtown streets

Welcome Body Formed.

Further preparations for the home-coming of the St. Louis units were begun last night in the First Regiment Armory, Maj. Arthur B. Donnelly, who was a Brigadier-General in the Thirty-fifth Division during its training period at Camp Doniphan, being named president of an organization which will entertain the 138th Infantry. Representatives of each of the company auxiliaries of the regiment were present. Col. Charles D. Comfort, a former Colonel of the First Regiment, Missouri National Guard, was made chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. Serving with him will be Richard McCulloch, president of the United Railways Co. and Mmes. Harold Haille, Edmo Gill, John Hoffman, Walton S. Fitzroy, Miss Jane Shapleigh and R. B. Whittemore.

Another meeting will be held Monday night, to which relatives of men in the regiment are invited.

Wounded to Ride in Autos.

Dispatches from Topeka, Kan., yesterday stated that Gov. Allen had received word from the War Department that the Thirty-fifth Division would embark about May 1. Information received at the Mayor's office here has indicated that the 128th Field Artillery would be the first unit of St. Louis men in the division to reach home.

Plans for the parades in St. Louis and Kansas City include excursion trains from nearby points. Wounded men, who have preceded their fellows home, will be given places in automobiles in the parade. Special reviewing stands for relatives of the men marching will be provided.

Similar reception will be given the Eighty-ninth Division, in which are several thousand Missouri men, when they arrive, later in the summer.

Trade Mission Crosses Into Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., April 8.—The trade mission from Chicago and other Transmississippi cities crossed the border here yesterday for a two weeks' trip through Mexico. A similar mission from Dallas and other Texas cities will cross the international line today. The Texans plan a 27-day trip with stops at all the more important Mexican cities and seaports.

War Stamp Loss Protection.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Protection to owners of War Savings Stamps from theft and fraud is afforded by a ruling made by the Postoffice Department at the request of the Treasury, providing that the stamps may be redeemed only when attached to bona fide certificates.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble. Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach, accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating, are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food fermenits and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead, get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation, and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—ADV.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel backachy or have bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you fell a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases. —ADV.

MEMBER OF 138TH WHO WON WAR CROSS

SERGT. WALTER H. WOLFNER.

SERGT. W. H. WOLFNER OF THE 138TH IS HOME

Wears Croix de Guerre, Received for Saving Life of French Captain in Action.

Sergt. Walter H. Wolfner, 23 years old, of 535 Clara avenue, member of F Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, has returned home from France wearing the Croix de Guerre, awarded him by the French Government for saving the life of a French army captain in the Toul sector last June. He also fought in the Argonne Forest, where he was wounded in the right foot by a shell splinter and was also gassed.

Sergt. Wolfner is a son of J. L. Wolfner, who was a member of Gov. Major's staff. Before enlisting in the army he was a clothing salesman.

Last June he was detached from the 138th and sent to the French Twenty-sixth Division for special duty. A raid on the enemy trenches was made one night and Sergt. Wolfner was one of the party, which was led by a French Captain.

While the raid was at its height the Captain was shot through both legs, near the German trenches. Eight prisoners were captured by the American raiders, and the party had started back to the French lines. Wolfner, who had seen the Captain fall, ran to his side. He placed the wounded officer on his shoulders and carried him back to safety through a heavy counter artillery barrage, laid down by the enemy to destroy the raiding party.

He received the Croix de Guerre while lying in Base Hospital No. 1, at Vichy, in October, where he was sent after being wounded and gassed in the Argonne drive, the previous month. He arrived in the United States March 12, and was discharged at Camp Grant, Ill., last Saturday.

ELDER DENIES BREAKING PLEDGE

Speaks in Senate on Statement by Suffrage Leader.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Senator Conway Elder of St. Louis, in the Senate today denied a statement of Miss Marie Ames in Sunday's Post-Dispatch that, in voting against the suffrage bill he had violated a written pledge to the women that he would votoe for the bill.

"There is in my files," the Senator said, "a copy of a letter in which I said some pleasant things about the ladies, and I would not retract a word of it, but there is nothing in the letter which is a promise to vote for this suffrage bill or any specific suffrage bill. I deny that I at any time made such a written promise."

Senator Peter Anderson of St Louis, who was also said by Miss Ames to have violated a promise to vote for suffrage, spoke. He did not deny he had made the promise, but said he would not engage in a controversy with a woman. Miss Ames was one of the active legislative workers for suffrage. She was in a gallery when the Senators spoke.

Capt. Cook wrote that American soldiers were "royally" treated in Toulouse, a city of about 300,000, in the department of Haute-Garonne. He said he expected to finish his four months' course about the last of June, and hopes to be ordered home then.

COUNTY ENGINEER SALARY BILL

Measure Passed by Senate and Now Goes to House.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Several measures which would increase State or local expenditures were either passed or engrossed in the Legislature yesterday afternoon.

The Senate passed a bill authorizing St. Louis County to fix the salary of the County Highway Engineer at from $2000 to $5000 a year. The salary now is limited to from $2000 to $3000. This bill has not passed the House. The House engrossed resolutions submitting constitutional amendments increasing the number of Supreme Judges from seven to nine, and fixing a tax of 1 cent on the $100 valuation for pensions for the blind. It also engrossed a bill placing County Assessors on a fee instead of a salary basis, under which they would receive more money. The House killed a bill which sought to increase the salary of Perry S. Rader, reporter of the Supreme Court, from $3000 to $4000 a year.

C. H. Niedringhaus Was Saloon Keeper Near Union Market.

An inventory of the estate of Casper H. Niedringhaus, a member of the United States Marines, who died on board ship last September, is appraised at $37,278. Among his holdings were $6150 of Liberty Bonds. Niedringhaus was a saloon keeper near the Union Market.

His mother, to whom he left $50 a month, and two brothers, who were cut off with $1 each, are contesting the will. After the death of his mother, the will provides that the estate goes to three friends.

NO CHARGE AGAINST DIVELBISS' ASSAILANT

Judge's Friends Request No Action Pending Outcome of Serious Stab Wounds.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Mo., April 8.—Judge Frank B. Divelbiss, who was stabbed in the courthouse here yesterday morning by Robert S. Lyon, editor of the Richmond Conservator, when 12 knife wounds were inflicted, rested fairly well last night. Dr. Howard Hill, a Kansas City specialist, who was called to Richmond this morning, announced that one of the wounds penetrated the abdominal cavity, but to what depth would not be known until another examination.

The seriousness of his wounds have not been ascertained; as Judge Divelbiss is weak from loss of blood, but, unless new complications arise, the physicians have hope for his recovery. A crisis probably will be reached tonight.

Lyon was released by the Sheriff yesterday afternoon, and is again in charge of his newspaper business.

Judge Divelbiss refused to bring criminal charges against his assailant, as his friends asked that no action be taken until his condition was fully determined, believing that otherwise the public might be led to believe he was seeking political revenge.

Lyons' Story of Fight.

Lyon, in a statement, says the Judge first attacked him, and that, in the struggle, an open knife fell to the courthouse floor, and he picked it up and began stabbing the Judge in self-defense.

Judge Divelbiss states that he was attacked by the newspaper man, saying the latter threw his hands around his chest and began the stabbing before he realized what was going on.

The Sheriff has the knife locked in his vault. The ownership of the knife has not been established, but Judge Divelbiss had his penknife unopened in his pocket.

Mrs. Divelbiss and small son, who were visiting relatives at Okmulgee, Ok., at the time of the stabbing, were notified and arrived in Richmond today. His daughter, who is attending school at Columbia, also arrived this morning.

A small town newspaper fight and a heated political campaign resulting in the breaking down of former friendship caused the stabbing.

Judge Divelbiss' Story.

"I went up to the Circuit Clerks' office in the courthouse to attend to some business," Judge Divelbiss said. "Lyon walked in. I knew he would have to come to the place where I was standing, so I turned and walked out and down the hallway, seeking to avoid him. I turned and started back. Near the head of the stairway I met Lyon. Then something struck me behind the ear, I don't know what. The next thing I realized Lyon seized my right arm and then began working on me with the knife. I could not see the knife as the corridor was dark. During the entire affair, until the Circuit Clerk ran between us, not a word passed between us."

Judge Divelbiss was asked if his tax-dodging investigations, which began six years ago and caused him to be known throughout the State, had anything to do with the affair.

"All I know is that Lyon was a good friend of those who were hit by the tax-dodging investigations," replied the Judge.

Lyon said today he regretted the occurrence, but that he had done no more than any man would, under the circumstances.

Feud Between Editors.

There has been bitter enmity between the Conservator's editor and George Allen Trigg, editor of the News, a stanch supporter of Judge Divelbiss. In the two campaigns for the circuit judgeship Lyon supported Judge Divelbiss. Last August, however, in the Democratic congressional primary, Lyon took the side of Representative J. W. Alexander, who was opposed by Judge Divelbiss.

In that campaign Lyon said that the Judge made a speech attacking him personally, and that it might have been considered sufficient provocation to shoot a man. The News was believed by Lyon to be the personal organ of Judge Divelbiss, and the editor of the Conservator held Judge Divelbiss responsible for the smarting editorial attacks.

In the trial of a member of a well-known Richmond family on a "bootlegging" charge last month news dispatches were sent from here which were resented by friends of a well-known lawyer and political enemy of Judge Divelbiss. An exchange of editorial invective followed. An anonymous communication was printed in the News, and it was answered by a bitter editorial in the Conservator, intimating that Judge Divelbiss might have known something of the authorship of the communication.

Three weeks ago Editor Trigg and Editor Lyon met at the postoffice. In the fist fight that followed Lyon is said to have received the worst of it.

Charles E. Moyer, Circuit Clerk, speaking of the stabbing, said he saw the two men lunging at each other, both in a crouching position. Not until after he had separated the men did he see the knife in Lyon's hand.

Justice's Clerk to Get $150 Month.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—A bill increasing the salaries of clerks in Justice of the Peace courts in St. Louis from $100 to $150 a month was passed in the Senate today. A similar bill already has passed the House, but the Senate bill will go to the House for passage, as an error has been found in the House bill.

Quests through the Post-Dispatch Theatrical "Want" columns are being made effectively every day.

GAVE $85 TO A BARTENDER

Also Watch and Ring, but Forgets the Place.

James C. Farris, Pueblo, Colo., staying at the Blossom Hotel, Eighteenth and Chestnut streets, wants police to help him find $85, a $75-diamond ring and $60-watch he has lost.

Farris said he became friendly with a bartender and when he started out to see the "sights" last night he gave all his valuables to the man for safe keeping. Then he forgot the location of the saloon where the bartender is employed. Police accompanied him around the city in the neighborhood of Union Station today, but he could not find the place.

Pershing to Visit Italy's King.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 8.—Gen. Pershing has accepted an invitation from the Italian Government to visit the King in May. The American commander will be accompanied by Col. Lloyd Griscom, former Ambassador at Rome.

WANTS TO FIND HIS SON

Homer Wheeler, associate secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in East St. Louis, appealed to the St. Louis police last night to help him find his son, Raymond, 14 years old, who, he said, had been kidnaped from the home of his mother at Hannibal, Mo., yesterday.

He told police he had been divorced from his wife, Elizabeth, in 1914, and had been awarded custody of his children. He left the children, he said, at the home of his mother. He had received a message from Hannibal, he said, stating the boy had disappeared and was thought to have been brought to St. Louis by a woman.

CYRIL MAUDE KEEPS AUDIENCE CHUCKLING

Laura Hope Crews Also Contributes Largely to a Pleasing Performance.

By CARLOS F. HURD.

CYRIL MAUDE'S endeavor in "The Saving Grace," at the American Theater last night was, as he put it in his curtain speech, "to make you chuckle a bit."

He succeeded. Chuckles were the order through the two hours and a half of optimism and genial raillery, as this thorough entertainer used the fine comedy material furnished by C. Haddon Chambers, and enjoyed the support of a half dozen excellent players, among whom Laura Hope Crews deserves immediate and pronounced mention.

By way of omitting no effort to please, the star, in his speech after the second act, referred to St. Louis as "a university city," where the general standard of knowledge is so high that the stranger must be careful what he says and how he says it. Well, this is a university city, but just what other recent visitor has been so thoughtfully complimentary as to state the fact? Gibes at our breweries, oure once unfinished Free Bridge and our occasionally smoky atmosphere have been much more customary.

Has Optimistic Role.

Maude, in his former St. Louis appearance, more than three years ago, was the wrinkled and crabbed Grumpy, with an intellect that still functioned finely upon occasion. In "The Saving Grace," he is middle-aged Blinn Corbett, owing everybody in the London suburb where he resides, possessing only a sheaf of shares which have never yielded a dividend, and an oil portrait of his father, and adored inordinately by his wife. The time is autumn of 1914, but he is too old to get service in the rank of Captain, which he had in the Boer War.

"Fighting Corbett," or as he whispers confidentially, "Bloody Corbett," was the name he had in South Africa. The audience gathers that this is part of the cheery humbug that appertains to his character, but his wife, who divorced a Colonel to marry him, and has never regretted it, repeats the appellation with becoming awe.

The wife's niece, who reflects the wife's admiration of him, can marry a rich young fellow who is about to go into the flying service, if the youth's mother can be brought to approve, and if the girl herself can get over some unpleasant things the mother has told her.

To bring this marriage to pass, and to bring the War Office to its senses as to its need for the services of Capt. Corbett, is about all that the play accomplishes, except—and this, after all, is the chief thing—it pictures a wife's love most engagingly.

High Spots of Comedy.

The hopeful Corbett's discourses, in which he pours out his store of wisdom and experience to his wife and her niece, only to discover after a few minutes that they are not listening, were frequent sources of enjoyment to the audience. His strident "Well, well, well," in moments when more expressive words failed, and hospitality required something, and his confidential scenes with the niece and with the mother of her intended, were comedy of a high order.

Miss Crews portrayed most brightly a role of captivating stupidity. Betty Murray, as the niece, was enough to make any young waster see the error of his ways. The youth, who said, "Well, rather," most of the time, but had other words in him, was happily portrayed by Edward Douglas, and Charlotte Granville appeared as his rich and for a time disdainful mother. Stanley Harrison and Annie Hughes had the servant roles, the manservant going so far in his devotion as to offer his last one and sixpence—or was it two and ninepence?—to pay the waiting poulterer's boy for the duck which was already in the oven.

GIRL'S INJURIES ARE FATAL

Miss Vallie C. Bowman, 21 years old, telephone operator at the exchange at Festus, Mo., died at St. John's Hospital Sunday from injuries sustained on March 15 when an automobile in which she and a party of young friends were riding overturned in a ditch near Festus, police learned last night.

After the accident the girl was brought to St. Louis by her father, Edward Bowman of Holcold, Mo., arriving March 16 at St. John's Hospital. The father was at the bedside of the girl when she died and took the body to Holcold for burial.

Dr. John Young Brown of the hospital staff made the report to the police. The Coroner will hold an inquest today.

THREATS MADE BY TELEPHONE

Police Guarding Man Who Routed Robbers.

Benjamin A. Krukenkamp, grocer and butcher, living at 5953 Palm street, is being guarded by police, it became known today, following threats on his life received by telephone in the past two weeks which followed an unsuccessful attempt to hold him up in his store, 4185 Labadie avenue. At the time two men entered his store and tried to rob him he routed them by reaching for a revolver under the counter.

Since then, he told police, he has received a telephone message almost daily. Monday, he said, he was instructed to leave $50 on a mail box outside his store. "Put it there at 10 o'clock or you'll be dead by 10:30," the man told him.

He told the police. Sergt. Biggio fixed up a dummy package and had Krukenkamp put it on the box while the Sergeant watched from a hiding place near by. No one called for the package. Krukenkamp received another message shortly thereafter, telling him he would be "bumped off" for telling the police.

Hence the guard at his store and also an escort to and from his home.

For $1—This Week Only

To Women Who Failed to Get It

We have supplied our famous Cookers to more than a million homes. But we want every home using Quaker Oats or Mother's Oats to have one. So we repeat for one week only this attractive Dollar Offer.

Now a Very Costly Offer

This to us, at present aluminum prices, is a very costly offer. Yet we have those Cookers made to our order in enormous lots.

Such an Aluminum Cooker, extra large and heavy, would probably cost at retail more than you care to pay. But you need it to cook cereals rightly. So we want you to have it—for your sake and our sake—if you are cooking our cereals without it.

Double Cooker Pure Aluminum

Extra Large and Heavy Cereal Capacity 2¼ Qts.

A Lifetime Utensil

If you have this Cooker, our offer is not open. We cannot supply more than one to a family. But, if you failed to get one, get it now. This offer is made for one week only. It cannot be repeated unless Aluminum comes down.

Keep the Rich Flavor Intact

Quaker Oats and Mother's Oats are made from queen grains only—just the rich, plump, flavory oats. We get but ten pounds from a bushel.

This is done to secure a superlative flavor. Little grains, puny and insipid, lessen oat-food delights.

Now we ask you to cook these luscious oat flakes so that flavor keeps intact. Cook them so they easily digest. This Cooker will help you to do that, as it does a million others.

It is yours for $1 if you send this week. And if you send the sales slip asked for, to show that you are using this delicious grade of oats. You will save enough to buy a great deal of cereal by accepting this dollar offer.

Your Last Chance to Get It

Buy from your grocer five packages of either Quaker Oats or Mother's Oats. Or buy four packages of the oats, and one of either Quaker Best Corn Meal or Quaker Hominy. Send us the grocer's sales slip with $1 and we will mail the Aluminum Cooker by parcel post. Sales slips must be mailed within one week.

PALMER TO OPPOSE CLEMENCY FOR DEBS

Attorney-General Says Socialist Violated Law, Got Fair Trial, and His Duty Is Clear.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Attorney-General Palmer announced in a statement last night that he would oppose strongly any effort to obtain executive clemency for Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment for violation of the espionage act.

The statement follows:

"Eugene V. Debs has filed no petition with either the President or the Attorney-General asking for the exercise of executive clemency. The facts in his case are such that until such petition be made by him, I should not feel called upon to consider making any recommendations in his case. Debs was convicted not because of his political or economic views, but because he plainly violated the law of the land.

"On June 18, 1918, during the most critical period of the war, Debs made a public speech at Canton, O., in which he urged that wage earners refrain from giving any aid to the American nation in the war, asserting that the war was brought on and conducted solely in the interest of capitalists, told his audience that they needed to know 'that they were fit for something better than slavery and cannon fodder, held up to admiration as martyrs to the cause of labor a number of persons who had been convicted of violating the draft act, and urged wage earners to stand together as a class to prevent the success of our country in the war.

Quotes Plea to Jury.

"In his address to the jury, Debs said: 'I have been accused of obstructing the war. I admit it. Gentlemen, I abhor war. I would oppose the war if I stood alone.

"He was given a fair trial by jury. The charge of the trial judge was eminently fair, and on appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States that court, by a unanimous decision, affirmed the judgment of conviction.

"Both prior and subsequent to the delivery of the speech mentioned, Debs had, on numerous occasions, publicly urged wage earners to adhere to the so-called St. Louis program of the Anti-War Faction of the Socialist party adopted in April, 1917. This document asserted that participation of the United States in the war against Germany could not be justified, branded the declaration of war by the American Government as a crime against the people of the United States, declared that in all modern history there had been no war more unjustifiable, and urged 'continuous, active and public opposition to the war.

Application for Respite.

"Following the action of the Supreme Court, the defendant has indulged in violent public criticism of the American courts of justice, and practically defied the power of the Government to administer the law against him.

"In this situation my duty is clear. The law must be respected and obeyed. To make sure of that, it must be enforced. I would be doing a grievous wrong to the country and striking a blow at law enforcement if I adopted any course which would interfere with the normal administration of justice in this case."

Application for a respite preliminary to a petition for pardon was received at the White House last week. At that time it was said the application would be referred to the Attorney-General, but that it had not yet been communcited to the President. The request was signed by Frank P. Walsh, Illan Benson and Charles Edward Russell.

WILL OF ROBERT D. LEWIS LEAVES PROPERTY TO FAMILY

Widow of Liggett & Myers Official Is to Receive the Income of One-third of the Estate.

The will of Robert D. Lewis, vice president of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., who died Thursday, was filed yesterday.

He left his residence, 52 Westmoreland place, furnishings and automobiles to his wife, Mrs. Virginia H. Lewis, with $10,000 for her support during one year's administration. The residue of the estate is to be held in trust by Mrs. Lewis; a son, Virgil, Edward T. Nolan Jr., and the Mercantile Trust Co., Mrs. Lewis to get the income of one-third of the estate. Other beneficiaries are children of the testator, including Joseph C. Lewis, Mrs. William A. Rutter Jr., 5879 Nina place; Mrs. Cora L. Harrison, 5419 Cabanne avenue; Virgil A. Lewis and Roberta Lewis; also a grandson, George V. Lewis. Each is to receive one-ninth of the estate. The will specially provides that two children of Mrs. Rutter by her former marriage to Leslie L. Bucklew, from whom she was divorced, are not to receive anything. The children, by stipulation in the divorce case, were given in custody of Buckley. Fred L. English, attorney, who filed the will, said he could not estimate the value of the property.

E. M. HOUSE'S SECRETARY DIES

By the Associated Press.

TROY, N. Y., April 8.—Donald Frary of Berlin, N. Y., secretary to Edward M. House, at the peace conference, and an instructor in history at Yale University, is dead in Paris from pneumonia, according to a message received yesterday by his father.

Frary accompanied the American delegation to Paris and among other duties was assigned to keep President Wilson in touch with the situation in Bulgaria.

41 TANK CORPS MEN HERE FOR LOAN DRIVE

Capt. Mathias J. Meyer, Former St. Louisan, Is in Charge—20 Tanks to Appear Thursday.

Capt. Mathias J. Meyer of the Tank Corps, a former St. Louisan, and 40 enlisted men, most of whom bear wound chevrons as a result of service with the Tank Corps in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne battles last fall, have arrived in St. Louis to take part in the Victory Liberty Loan campaign, which will open April 21.

Twelve artists of the camouflage section of the army have been busy since Saturday putting the 20 baby tanks, which are to be used in the campaign, in parade dress. The tanks are at A Battery Armory, Grand avenue and Hickory street, and will make their first public appearance Thursday morning.

Capt. Meyer will be remembered as a member of a Century Boat Club crew which won the Southwestern championship in river regattas held here in 1906 and 1907. He went overseas as an infantry officer and later transferred to the Tank Corps. He was in a hospital at one time for a month for severe burns with mustand gas.

Capt. Meyer said that only four Tank Corps battalions had got into action when hostilities ceased, but that these gave a good account of themselves.

At War Loan Headquarters for the Eighth Federal Reserve District, Seventh and Locust streets, a communication was received yesterday from a French poilu asking for posters of the New Victory Loan.

On soiled post card the poilu wrote that the 134th Regiment of the French army, stationed at Macon, Soane et Loire, had learned that St. Louis and the Eighth Federal Reserve District had been first to attain the quotas in the third and fourth campaigns, and the soldiers of the regiment wanted posters from this city as mementos of the war in preference to battlefield relics. Two sets of the posters were mailed to the soldier.

MAN SLAIN IDENTIFIED AS ST. LOUISAN BY FINGER PRINTS

Was Convicted of Wife Murder, Sentenced to 10 Years, Paroled and the Parole Revoked.

The St. Louis Bertillon Bureau today identified fingerprints and a photograph of a man found murdered in Chicago last Saturday night as those of Frederick (Toss) Woelfel, a former St. Louis gangster, who was known in Chicago as Peter Tulley.

Woelfel shot and killed his wife here at their home, 923 North Nineteenth street, June 25, 1913. He was convicted of murder and sentenced to 10 years in the Jefferson City penitentiary. He was paroled to Father Timothy Dempsey May 1, 1917, by Gov. Major. This parole was revoked Sept. 25 last by Acting Gov. Crossley on complaint of a woman who said he had not been leading a moral life. Since then the police had been looking for him.

Between 1907 and 1913 Woelfel was frequently arrested and he was suspected of complicity in several gang shootings.

SOUTHERN FARMERS IN FIGHT TO REMOVE COTTON EMBARGO

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., April 8.—N. A. Shaw, chairman of the Texas Cotton Conference, announced today that a movement had begun to organize Southern farmers to force the removal of the cotton embargo. "The situation is that the whole world is organized against cotton," said Shaw, "and our own Government is giving aid and encouragement to those who are trying to force down prices. The farmers believe that cotton has not had a fair deal and that the reason they have not had a fair deal is that cotton is grown in Texas and other Southern states rather than in Ohio, Iowa or Connecticut.

"For the first time since the war between the states a conference composed of more than 400 farmers who have been unanimously voting the Democratic ticket all their lives have met and almost unanimously expressed their great dissatisfaction with the way things are being run in Washington as far as they relate to their own interests and industry."

ANSELL DIRECTED TO SUBMIT REFORM MILITARY COURT BILL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Lieutenant-Colonel Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate General, and one of the leaders in the controversy over courtsmartial procedure, has been directed by Secretary Baker to prepare and submit a bill which, in his opinion, would correct deficiencies in the existing military justice system.

The Secretary's order says in part:

"The suggestion made by Lieutenant-Colonel Ansell are entirely appropriate in form and substance and merit earnest consideration. With many of the suggestions the Secretary of War finds himself in hearty concurrence.

ST. LOUIS CAPITAL IN MERCHANT SHIP FIRM

Advocates of River Development Invest in $1,000,000 Company to Operate From New Orleans.

St. Louis advocates of river development are subscribers to stock in a $1,000,000 corporation recently organized in New Orleans to lease and operate from that port six vessels of the United States Merchant Marine, it being anticipated that the suggestion of Chairman Edward N. Hurley of the Shipping Board for private operation of America's new fleet will be adopted.

M. J. Sanders, Federal manager of the Mississippi-Warrior Waterways, is president of the company, which is the Mississippi Shipping Co. T. F. Cunningham, a New Orleans business man long interested in waterways development, is vice president. Theodore Brent, traffic manager of the Mississippi-Warrior Waterways, is a stockholder.

Jackson Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association, and A. L. Shapleigh, chairman of the board of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., are St. Louis investors in the new enterprise.

The company also will conduct a general forwarding business. A similar company, but capitalized at $25,000,000, is being fostered in St. Louis by the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce. Though the St. Louis company has been in the talking stage for several months, its organization is not yet assured.

It has been pointed out that the city which seizes soonest the opportunity for world trade created by the revival of the Mississippi River for shipping will become the point of export for the Mississippi Valley as well as the distribution point for imports. As is known, the effect of the Government River Service is to create St. Louis a seaport as far as accessibility and cheap rates for export are concerned.

COUNTY CHOSEN FOR CAMERON TRIAL ONCE SENT CASE HERE

Defendant Was Charged With Embezzlement and Testimony Taking Was Delayed by Unusual Incidents.

The sending of the case of Bruce Cameron, United Railways superintendent, charged with burglary and larceny, to Centerville, Reynolds County, Mo., on a change of venue, has recalled to St. Louis lawyers of the older generation that a famous case was brought here from that county for trial 32 years ago, and that an odd combination of circumstances caused unexpected delays in hearing the testimony.

The case was that of H. C. Stevens, Collector of Reynolds County, accused of embezzling public funds. It was set for trial on a Monday morning. Feeling ran high among those who had come here to attend the trial.

When the case was called it was learned that the defendant had got into an "argument" the night before and his eyes were blackened and he was unable to appear in court. The next morning a second continuance was taken because there had been another "argument" and someone had blackened the Prosecuting Attorney's eyes.

Everything was set for the opening of the trial Wednesday, when the Judge, on entering the courtroom, was struck by a swinging door which hit him in such a way that both his eyes were blacked. When the trial finally proceeded there was much comment on the fact that Judge, Prosecutor and defendant all had the same disfigurements. Then the jury gave the case a black eye by acquitting Stevens.

WAS ONE OF 16 HELD UP

Man Denies He Was Gambling When Robbed.

Frank B. Schlingman, 32 years old, a salesman, arrested at his home, 6516 Berthold avenue, last night and held at the Wyoming Street Station, suspected of "setting up a gambling device," admitted, the police say, that he was one of 16 men, including Patrolman Richard Ray, who were held up by three armed men and robbed in a stable at 2209 Lynch street Sunday afternoon.

He denied he was operating a gambling game and said he and some friends had gathered for a "friendly" chat, when three men entered and drew revolvers just as Patrolman Ray followed them into the place.

He said the taller of the three ordered everyone, including the policeman, to throw up their hands and covered them with revolvers while the smaller men searched them.

He said he was ordered to "clean out," and after he had handed the robbers $140, the men compelled him to remove a new $75 suit he was wearing and give that to them. He went home in his automobile sans clothes.

Common Sense Reasons for Depositing Your Money With the Mississippi Valley Trust Company

Ready Money

Ready money is sometimes indispensable.

If you carry money in your pocket, you take serious risks with it. If you hide it at home, the risks are almost as great. If you buy unreliable securities or make unsafe loans, the risks are even greater.

If you deposit your money at 3 per cent interest in a Mississippi Valley Savings Account, you may be sure of having it back when you want it. Ask any one of our thousands of depositors whether he is not perfectly satisfied that his deposit with us is ready money.

NO TAX EXEMPTION FOR GIFTS BY CORPORATIONS TO WAR WORK

Requests Had Been Made for Permission to Include Such Donations in Expense Accounts.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Big corporations will not be allowed to include in expense accounts in income tax returns gifts and donations to Red Cross and similar organizations. All efforts in that direction have failed, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue will collect, as a result, an amount estimated at approximately $60,000,000.

When the revenue bill was being considered on the floor of the House the corporations made their first move to have "gifts" to "charitable institutions" exempted. A resolution putting them in a class with individual donors was introduced and defeated. The next move was made in the Senate, where it also failed.

When the bill became a law an appeal was made to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for exemption on the ground that the money given went to charity. That fell through, and then the interested ones requested that they be allowed to include the amounts of their donations to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and other war activities in their expenses and in that way deduct them from their income.

Internal Revenue Collector Roper, who refused to give out the names of those who have requested such exemptions, announces that he will not grant them.

In a letter to Commissioner Roper last week Jackson Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in behalf of that organization protested against the application of the income and excess profits taxes to charitable donations made by corporations. Neither Johnson nor the Chamber of Commerce had received a reply to this letter today.

WEBSTER GROVES NOW UNDER COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

New Officials Installed With 125 Business Men Present and Judge Wurdeman Directing Ceremonies.

The commission form of government is in operation today in Webster Groves, following the installation last night of Mayor Carl H. Holecamp and Commissioners George J. Bopp and Louis F. Booth, who were elected April 1. The town has been under the aldermanic form of government since its incorporation in 1896.

The installation took place at 8 o'clock before an audience of 125 business men, with Circuit Judge Wurdeman as master of ceremonies. Police Judge Belding administered the oath of office and addresses were delivered by former Mayors E. S. Hart and W. F. Biederman, outgoing Mayor R. M. Tidd, Probate Judge Sam D. Hodgdon and Edwin S. Healey.

Similar ceremonies were held last night in Maplewood at the installation of the town's second set of officials under the commission form of government. Charles Stewart was sworn in as Mayor and H. J. La Fiavre and John Vogel as commissioners. Maplewood was the first town in St. Louis County to adopt this form of government.

PLAN TO STAMP OUT A DISEASE

Red Cross League to Fight Serious Malady Being Prepared.

By the Associated Press.

CANNES, France, Monday April 7.—One of the most important sessions of the inter-allied Red Cross congress to be held during the meeting occurred today when there was an informal discussion of venereal diseases. Experts were unanimous in the opinion that these diseases can be stamped out with comparative ease. The program which they expect to submit will be simple and have a revolutionary effect, it is indicated.

The report will be passed upon by a general body of scientists before its submission to the public. It is the conviction of the experts that in a league of Red Cross societies an effective means has been found to fight these maladies which will result in their eventual extermination.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone

BEAUTY CULTURE.

McD.—Have you tried a daily rub of camphor for enlarged pores? For a chronic case apply twice daily an astringent lotion consisting of: Rosewater, 6 ozs.; elder flower water, 2 ozs.; simple tincture of benzoin, ½ oz.; tannic acid, 10 grains. First cleanse and dry your face thoroughly.

HEALTH HINTS.

MRS. X. Y. Z.—You are not yet ready to quit your doctor. He should make an examination of your sputum.

R. K.—You should see an oculist. If you cannot afford to pay, you can find good free service at the medical schools.

ANXIOUS.—The City Sanitarium is conducted by the city for the treatment of mental and nervous diseases of different degrees. Those who are able are required to pay a modest fee for the service.

S. C. S.—Such skin troubles as you describe are very obstinate and are aggravated by both soap and water. They really need prolonged attention of a capable physician. Pending this, apply resinol ointment freely each night.

LAW POINTS.

H. G.—Brother can convey direct to sister; if married, his wife must join in such deed to exclude her dower.

MRS. M. W. H.—Go to 408 Custom House, and get full free information as to how a British-born woman may proceed to attain naturalization.

BROWN EYES.—Blackmailing is not mentioned as statutory ground for divorce. Court would doubtless consider all the circumstances. Blackmailing is extortion by intimidation, especially extortion of money by threats of accusation.

X.—Contracts and obligations signed by minor are not absolutely void, but voidable if he so chooses; may be enforced on his becoming of age if he ratify the same by writing, partial payment, refusal to deliver possession, or other act; or if the contract or obligation was for necessities.

T.—The deed may be recorded any time; no limit as to how many yrs. old it may be; but the statute provides that after 1 yr. has elapsed the Recorder must retain it 1 yr. after which time it will be delivered on presentation of the card. The moment it is filed for record it gives notice to all as any other deed immediately filed.

CONSTANT READER.—Go to Probate Court and ask for files in the matter of estate of your minor child, which will be given to you. By examining the papers therein you should find what you desire to know. Having charge only of the minor's estate, he is called the curator; you are the natural guardian of your child. Files you examine should show amount of bond furnished by the curator.

G. H.—The Illinois Statutes, Chapter 3, Sec. 132, reads: "Compensation of Executors, etc.—Executors and administrators shall be allowed as compensation for their services a sum not exceeding 6 per centum on the amount of personal estate, and not exceeding 3 per centum on the money arising from the sale of real estate, with such additional allowances for costs and charges in collecting and defending the claims of the estate and disposing of the same as shall be reasonable."

WAR TALK.

M. B.—Allow about 2 weeks for letter to reach France; time depends on location.

MISCELLANEOUS.

S. S.—The British Consulate is at Broadway and Pine.

J. J. McA.—Phone hardwood lumber dealer about ebony and mahogany.

N. K.—Try communicating with the Chamber of Commerce, Broadway and Locust.

C. C.—Lowest temperature in December, 1918, 14 degrees; January, 1919, 3 below on the 3d; February, 16 on the 9th.

H. A. S.—There are 3 sugar-cane by-products: (1) the leaves and tops, (2) the bagasse (pomace or mash), and (3) the skimmings—all of which are almost completely wasted under present practices. The leaves and tops, removed from the cane at harvesting, are usually allowed to remain in the field until they become dry and are then burned. The production of tops per acre, if weighed fresh, is 3 to 4 tons. To a small extent they afford pasturage for stock, but as a rule they soon become weathered and worthless for feed. Some attempts have been made to cure the tops for feed in the winter, but the weather conditions are usually unfavorable unless the farmer has a shelter in which to cure them. A more hopeful method of preserving them is by making ensilage. At the experiment field at Cairo, Ga., experiments were conducted during 2 years which indicate that siloing for seed is an excellent way to utilize the tops. The cattle ate the silage readily and thrived on it. The chemical analysis showed its nutritive value to be but little inferior to that of silage from whole corn. The shortage of available roughage for winter feeding in the cane sirup sections makes this silage more valuable than its chemical composition would indicate. To assure good silage from the cane tops, the silo should be filled before the cane is frosted. In filling it, as with other forage, it is essential to tramp it in the silo very thoroughly, not only in the middle but near the walls as well. The importance of thus compacting it is not generally appreciated by those not familiar with making ensilage. Important additional value comes from the manure resulting from feeding these tops. In these same localities, where the systems of farming in vogue tend so strongly to deplete the soil of its humus content, the manure has unusually high value.—Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

DEBTOR.—This was published in Feb., 1918: It seems clear that on many farms in England and in some entire districts (so far as the agricultural community was concerned) the daylight-saving act was not observed at all—the farmers and others refusing to alter their clocks. Complete ignoring of the provisions of the act by one section of the population resulted in 2 different times being kept in the same neighborhood. The old time on farms and "summer time" in schools, railway station and similar places. This caused some confusion in the homes of the agricultural laborer. But in the opinion of the large majority of employers the act has been a genuine advantage to the agricultural laborer, in that he has had an extra hour to work in his own garden, or, in other cases, has frequently earned overtime wages for evening work which, when labor was scarce, was of special value on farms. In spite of various difficulties a very large majority of farmers and war agricultural committees are in favor of the continuation of the act, and the majority even of those who are of opinion that it is not advantageous to agriculture, consider it should be renewed, as they recognize its great benefit to the community at large. In the U. S. these statements were made: It will save a vast amount of coal—1,000,000 tons a year, advocates of the plan have figured. (This is nearly 1-6th of a year's coal supply for St. Louis.) It will save the people of the U. S. millions of dollars in lighting bills. It will give an added hour between working time and dark, to be used in gardening, golf, other outdoor exercise or reading. It will give a better night's sleep, since there will be less disturbing daylight in the morning. It will bring the American business day more nearly into conformity with that of Europe. It will give farmers an earlier market for their produce in towns and cities. It will lessen eye strain for office workers. It will help baseball and other outdoor sports.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

French Designs on Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Every few days we read in the reports from the peace congress that the French Government refuses to consider any conference or agreement with the Soviet Government of Russia, but wants the allies to send an army into Russia to set up some kind of authority that will suit the French financiers and a crowd of the Russian nobility who are now living in Paris and who are using money to influence French statesmen and newspapers. I don't know anything about Lenine and Trotzky, but it is a safe bet that their regime is not any more brutal than was the Czar's, or the kind that gang of blood-suckers want the allies to set up. It seems to me France ought to be glad to give up war; they certainly had enough of it, but if they are looking for more, let them send their own army to Russia, but have it first understood that in case they get into trouble or are in danger of defeat they must not ask the United States to help them out a second time! We kept France from being absolutely "wiped off the map," and they ought to be satisfied. They certainly display monumental nerve to ask us to join them in a war that does not concern them or us. We are and have been paying very dear for our part in the war; we were told it was for humanity and to make the world "safe for democracy." What kind of democracy would there be in Russia if that gang were re-established there?

I do not believe the French masses have any more desire to send an army to Russia than have those of this country; it is only a crowd of rotten nobility and crooked profiteers who ask it.

I trust President Wilson tells the French Government in very plain words to go to Russia if they must, but to go alone.

AN EX-SOLDIER WHO SERVED IN FRANCE.

Where Are Private Cole's Relatives?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The American Red Cross National Headquarters in Washington, D. C., desire to locate the relatives of Private Edward Cole, Company L, 354th Infantry, who died overseas. They have information to give the family concerning the soldier.

We shall appreciate very much your publishing this fact in an effort to locate these relatives. BLANCHE RENARD,
Supervisor, Home Service Section.

Enforced Labor Is Slavery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In an article published in your issue of April 6 Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, tells us that the workday can be reduced to three hours per day. That it can be done goes without question if a system of compulsory labor is established and all able-bodied persons are put to work. We have three classes of people throughout the world. One class follows useful labor, another class useless labor, and a third class the idle class. Some are gamblers, speculators, loan sharks and others too numerous to mention that follow useless labor. In the idle class are the idle rich, the loafer and the enforced idle, because there are not enough jobs. In a crisis we should be patriotic enough to sell our property as well as our labor to our Government for scientific adjustment. AMERICAN.

Not Too Old to Work.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Tell all the soldiers to marry in France; not wait till they get to America and marry an elevator girl. I am a man 50 years old and could run an elevator if I had the job. There are no jobs here for you; stay in the army. I would love to be with you, but am too old.

O. L. DENNY.
1213 O'Fallon street.

Mashers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I would like to say that the case of arresting Peter Theofilis for making improper advances to Miss Elizabeth Hoch is, without doubt, one of the most just things that the Police Department of St. Louis could do. We read so much about the arrest of women who walk the streets to annoy and tempt the poor, weak and virtuous men. Dozens of these unfortunate souls are punished monthly, and justly punished, perhaps, but why is it that men are allowed to stand on corners or walk the street and try their evil influence on one woman after another without being arrested and fined?

I am writing from experience and not giving the views of an old man-hating crank. The experience of a young, attractive woman on the streets of St. Louis is a severe trial to many. If a few more women were put on duty in St. Louis and a few more men were arrested and given a heavy fine and some publicity it would improve the moral of women, I am sure.

Personally, I would like to have a star under my coat when some of the respected, influential, wealthy married men of this city attempt to interest me on the street. I can readily see why many of our poor but attractive and ambitious young women, who have not a strength of character born of good Christian home training would fall victims of such men.

A POST-DISPATCH READER.

A RECORD OF THREE MONTHS.

Nearly everybody seems agreed that great changes in opinion and methods will follow the war.

But those changes may not bring about any revolutionary departures from the fundamental principles of the past. They may not even involve the rise of new political parties. That new sentiments may be advocated under the party labels of the past is entirely probable? Disaster may impend for familiar types of political personages rather than for forms of government or political machinery.

Without noteworthy departures in other directions, the change may be marked as much by new standards of service and efficiency imposed on those selected for public positions as by anything else. The time unquestionably is coming, and that soon, when greater care will be exercised in selecting incumbents for public posts, when those incumbents, after rigid inquiry into their standing and character, will be held to a stricter accountability for their records, when a new and readier responsiveness to the public desires will be required of them.

How would the Missouri Legislature that met three months ago today qualify under those new standards of service and efficiency?

We may assume that it contains the usual proportion of men who find public life agreeable and are ambitious for further official promotion. Perhaps they do not believe that great shiftings in sentiment are coming, great progressive movements that will overwhelm the reactionary personalities as well as the reactionary policies of the past.

But if they do believe it, where do they fancy they will stand under the new order? Do they not see that precisely such paltering, unfruitful public servants as they are one of the causes of the upheaval, assuming that it comes, and that they are marked for odium and the discard?

The Legislature, after three months, has passed nine bills, only one or two of which were backed by any pronounced demand. In the meantime a dozen measures of the most vital importance on which the public is in substantial agreement remain unconsidered or receive only frivolous treatment.

Manifestly this Legislature is out of touch with the spirit of its time. It does not understand that something is about to happen. With a new era almost upon us, it yields to the paltry motives of peanut politics that have outlived their force.

When so much energy on the part of the public is constantly required to prevent the Legislature from doing the wrong thing, how much energy remains to force it to do the right thing? The expectant voters' patience is almost exhausted.

THE VILLA RAID ON FINNEY AVENUE.

The walking delegate of St. Louis' unionized burglars who stands for the higher professional standards and politely brings about the return of family heirlooms for cash, under a strictly kept gentlemen's agreement, should appreciate that such work as that done at a Finney avenue store shows a shocking lack of skilled technique and hurts business.

The account of the visitation reads like descriptions of a descent by Villa bandits on some unfortunate Mexican center of population. The sentries who paced their beats outside, unmindful of the increasing peril, gave an impression of trained military competency. But the deafening pounding on the steel safe with a sledge for a quarter of an hour, the stunning explosion of nitroglycerin heard for blocks, the succession of countless shots exchanged with the police, the yells to aroused neighbors to pull their heads in from surrounding windows and the strident command to passersby to vamoose created a scene of uproar and disorder most painful to all, including even burglars, who really have the credit of the city at heart.

Such daring, and especially such mistaken contempt for publicity, make it increasingly difficult to pull off better managed, quiet jobs. Honest citizens who have borne their own theft losses with resignation will cease to rely on police protection and take their own measures for co-operative reprisals against the thieves in a spirit of community betterment.

AN ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS.

Dr. John H. Simon finds that the chief trouble with the Democratic party in St. Louis is "the thing" which is now called the Democratic City Committee. The diagnosis does credit to the doctor's powers of perception and judgment. Of course, it might be said that the trouble lies deeper and that no party that did not have something serious the matter with it would tolerate such a directing committee. Nevertheless, the committee is something more than a mere symptom. It is in itself a menace to the political good health, not only of the party it assumes to represent, but of the community.

Dr. Simon promises his best efforts for the removal of this center of infection and source of pernicious anemia and inertia. Whatever his personality, the man who succeeds in doing that will deserve the gratitude of St. Louis.

RACIAL EQUALITY.

The inclusion of a declaration of racial equality in the League of Nations constitution, insisted upon by the Japanese plenipotentiaries, would be unobjectionable if a formula can be found in which the implication is clear that such declaration does not modify the heretofore existing rights of states under the law of nations.

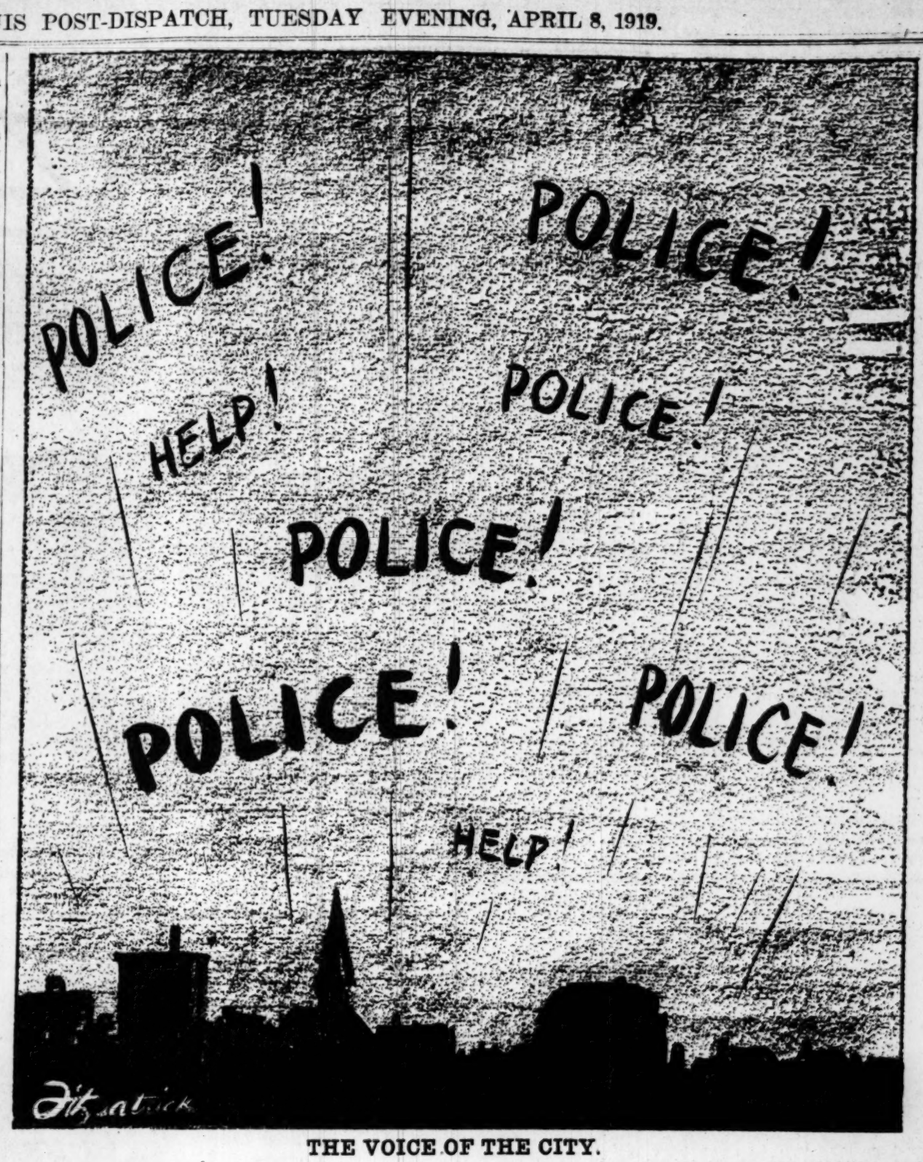

From time immemorial states have been recognized as possessing absolute control over the questions of immigration and the exclusion and expulsion of foreigners. It is a right inherent in states and essential to self-preservation. In the absence of such a right, territorial supremacy would disappear. As Justice Field said in the Chinese exclusion case:

> The power of excluding foreigners being an incident to sovereignty belonging to the United States as part of those powers delegated by the Constitution, the right to its exercise at any time when, in the judgment of the Government, the interest of the country requires it, cannot be granted away or restrained on behalf of anyone. The powers of government are delegated in trust and are incapable of transfer to any other parties.

The distinction between white and Oriental peoples is clearly recognized under this power, not as an economic question, but as a far more important politico-ethnological one. To permit unlimited immigration of Oriental peoples into a country of white peoples would constitute a peaceful invasion on the part of peoples who cannot be assimilated, and their settlements would become an imperium in imperio. National unity and solidarity would be destroyed.

It is possible that the justifiable pride of the Japanese might be satisfied with a declaration of racial equality with a general reservation to the effect that such declaration was not intended to interfere with the existing rights of states in their territorial supremacy under the law of nations.

The Germans are sitting tight on the 14 points.

OUR RUSSIAN FIASCO.

From the San Francisco Call and Post.

SECRETARY BAKER can hardly be blamed for not wanting to talk about our business in Russia when he was here, although if he had said what he probably thinks about it the interview would have been an interesting one. Perhaps it would have run something like this: "We went in because the Japanese, French and British were going in whether we went or not, and we thought that the sending of a nominal-sized American force would give us the right to exercise an influence, and of course a moderating influence. We felt that it would not be right to leave Russia to the discretion even of our very discreet Oriental neighbor in the Pacific. We believed that the question of the disposition of the natural resources of Russia was one that the Russians should settle if they could, and that the allied nations—the nucleus of a league of nations—should assume in trusteeship until the Russians got the dust out of their eyes and the blood off their hands.

"It is true that our hopes have failed, that our soldiers have neither put down Bolshevism nor won the friendship of the enemies of Bolshevism, and that we could not now give an answer to the query why we are there. But how are we to get out? And what becomes of our responsibilities to the Russians if we leave them at the mercy of military commanders and adventurers who are absolutely unrestrained by outside public opinion? We are in a fix. But how would you have managed affairs so that we could have kept out of the fix?"

Apparently nothing better could happen now than to have the American troops removed from Vladivostok and from Archangel. But this does not solve the Russian problem. It merely obscures still more completely the anarchy, tyranny, injustice, famine and rapine that now characterizes the situation on both sides of the various "fronts" in Asiatic and European Russia. Yet the first step toward cleaning up this miserable mess is to step out of it. We can do that. And nobody's pride and nobody's private feelings or interests should prevent us from doing it.

AN IDEA OF DEMOCRACY.

From the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

BOSTON has demonstrated its democracy with 15,000,000 more tons of fish in storage this spring than it had last spring. The ocean is merely the place to catch fish, not fit for storing fish as nature provided. Man must build storehouses and heat them in winter and cool them in summer and charge us 900 per cent on the expenses of that disruption of nature. That is democracy. When we have fashioned all the world to be safe for that, the outside of this earth will be a refrigerator and the Boston Fish Trust will have one of the keys to a side door. The other keys will be for wheat growers, cotton planters, sheep keepers and meat packers, with some miscellaneous holders too numerous to mention, all trusting in their keys. The front door will be open only to politicians and their dependents, who will be in charge of all the railroads, lines of communication from cables to phones, and the machinery from ships to airplanes, and the powers from coal to waterfalls and pack mules. Those will be the halcyon days, and we shall all fly, have to fly to get up high enough to look at the price for the goods of sustenance.

MUSHROOMS.

THE other day I went down to Union Market looking for mushrooms.

This is the season when mushrooms are mushrooming.

So to speak.

They are induced by spring showers.

You cook them with beefsteak.

An epicure is one who knows edible mushrooms from toadstools.

A Lucullan is one who knows how edible mushrooms are prepared.

Now you know those things.

Very well.

I found two half-bushel baskets of mushrooms in the market.

They were the red Morells.

There were also domestic mushrooms raised in old wine cellars and places like Uhrig's Cave.

But I wanted wild mushrooms having the exquisite flavor of old logs and decaying stumps.

I do not care at this season for domestic mushrooms.

I would as soon have a mess of old pants buttons.

This is Spring!

So I stood feasting my eyes upon those two baskets of mushrooms.

At last!

They were in!

It seemed that tears dimmed my sight.

And that through those tears I could see Lucullus on the loggia of his house on a night when he had friends in.

I could see old Epicurus sitting with wine and mushrooms among his Greek peers.

Explaining that while the soul is not immortal,

Mushrooms probably are.

It was the dealer who roused me from this blissful trance.

He was a little dark man with a businesslike air.

He suggested to me Ali Baba's brother, Cassim.

That type.

Was there something I wanted?

Yes.

I wanted to ask about the red mushrooms.

Merely to ask about them.

I thought that would be best.

They were a dollar a pound.

He would weigh a basket of them.

Eleven pounds and a quarter.

Eleven dollars and twenty-five cents!

Eleven dollars and twenty-five cents a basket—

And Lucullus doubtless got all he wanted from the Pontine Marsh for ten cents a ton!

Was it any wonder he had friends,

Or that his reputation was great?

No, gentle reader.

It was easy—then.

Had I dreamed of mushrooms?

Then I was awake.

Had I dreamed of mushrooms and beefsteak in Spring?

Then Cassim, the brother of Ali Baba, had ended that.

Cassim, the tradesman,

Calm and inscrutable,

Waiting there still, perhaps, for someone with $11.25.

AND IT LOOKED DIFFICULT!

Why all this astounding ignorance one encounters about this here business of the fall in sterling exchange? The principle of the thing is perfectly plain. Sterling exchange arises when a decreased exportation of Ukrainian bread-fruit, f. o. b. Przemysl, is confronted by heavy gold exportations to South America to balance a glutted market in the desiccated-egg factories of Paraguay.

Or take the franc, not lightly as a Parisian cabby takes it from you, but seriously like a trained economist. The franc in normal health is worth 19.8 cents. This should not be confused with the .62 which represents the value of the kilometer in terms of miles. Suppose now you owe 5000 francs in Paris in payment for jewelry and objects d'art produced at Bridgeport, Conn. In that case either you remit the required funds by cable, or by mail if you are in a hurry, or else write to explain that the income tax has cleaned you out.

Very well. But what happens if the gold reserve in the National Bank of Zambesi is threatened by an influx of Russian paper rubles, familiarly known as Trotzky's Comic Supplements? Why, simply this: You multiply the index number for currency inflation in Czecho-Slovakia by the birthrate in Mesopotamia, you subtract the pig iron production in Denmark from the mean annual rainfall in the metropolitan area of Belfast, you add the difference between the indemnities Germany can't pay, and the indemnities she won't pay, and you serve hot or cold, according as you work for a yellow journal or for a journal of conservative opinion.

At bottom, the secret of sterling exchange cannot be solved without a thorough knowledge of decimal variations in the principal financial centers abroad. Thus Mexican exchange is in the ratio of 1.2436 pesos to the square mile, whereas in Lapland it is something like 2½ Lapps to the mile.

Or would you have me explain to you the real secret of open diplomacy?

Admiral Sims Tells How He Went Abroad Incognito; Convoy System Saved Day

Declares Germany Was Winning Until Allies Acted to Protect Ships—Praises Merchant Seaman.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—How Rear-Admiral William S. Sims, accompanied by one aid, proceeded incognito into England under Navy Department orders issued him two weeks before the United States entered the war against Germany was told by the Admiral here last night on his return from overseas.

On March 24 or 25, 1917, the Admiral said, while he was president of the Naval War College at Newport, he was ordered to report "without delay" to the Secretary of the Navy at Washington. On his arrival there he was received in secret conference with Secretary Daniels and Admiral Benson, chief of operations.

He was told that it "looked as though we shall go to war," and it was briefly explained that he was to go at once "to see the people on the other side and reach an understanding as to how the United States best could co-operate with allied sea forces in operations against Germany." One aid would be allowed to accompany him, he was told, and his identity must not be known until it might be decided to reveal it after his safe arrival abroad.

Donned Civilian Clothes.

Commander J. V. Babcock of New Hampton, Io., aid to Admiral Sims at Newport, was chose to accompany him and both officers immediately donned civilian clothes. Simultaneously they dropped their names and assumed others "more suitable to the occasion." Admiral Sims said he did not clearly remember what name he bore on his incognito adventure.

"Babcock and I chose 'Richardson and Robertson,' as near as I can recall," he said. "I can't think of the full names, and I am not at all sure that these are correct. But that's how I seem to remember them."

The Admiral and his aid sailed from New York March 31, 1917, on the steamship New York, he said, and no one on the vessel recognized them. News of the declaration of war by the United States on April 6 reached them by the ship's wireless news service. It did not disturb them.

Entering Liverpool harbor April 9 in a thick mist, the steamer struck a mine and a hole was blown in one of her forward compartments, but the Admiral and his aid were "not especially disturbed by that either. They went ashore unnoticed, "like anybody else." A special train was waiting in the Liverpool railroad yards, however, with Admiral Hope aboard, representing the British Admiralty. They arrived in London on April 10, both Admiral Sims and Commander Babcock still wearing their civilian clothes. They went at once to the Admiralty offices, where Admiral Sims went into conference with Admiral Jellicoe. On April 13, at a luncheon in London, the United States Ambassador made the formal announcement that Admiral Sims had arrived in the country. After that the Admiral and his aid reappeared in their navy uniforms and abandoned the names of "Richardson and Robertson" for all time.

Was "Logical Selection."

Commenting on how he happened to be the officer selected to go abroad, Admiral Sims said: "I was the logical selection for a number of reasons. I had been naval attache at Paris from 1897 to 1900. I speak the French language. I had been to England about every winter from 1902 to 1909 to talk gunnery with British Admiralty chiefs like Admiral Jellicoe and Admiral Scott. I knew the British and French naval heads. And for three years I had been in command of the Atlantic torpedo flotilla on this side."

The convoy system, which many naval men had termed impracticable, overcame the German submarine menace and figured tremendously in the winning of the war, Admiral Sims said. Depth charges and listening devices, he said, contributed materially to success in maintaining practically unbroken the transatlantic "bridge" of transports and supply ships essential to the allied victory, as did the "magnificent work" of the merchant seamen, who "took their cargoes across, convoy or no convoy." But it was the convoying scheme worked out to a fine detail by the combined fleets of the associated Powers, the officer asserted, which made possible the transportation and supplying of the great American force whose appearance in battle with the allies turned the tide.

Germany was winning the war, the Rear Admiral stated, when he arrived in England. Teuton interference with allied shipping, he added, was a serious problem, solved only when conferences of the British, American and allied commands worked out and put into practice the system of protecting vital ships, which prevailed until the cessation of hostilities.

Returns as Rear Admiral.

A Vice Admiral while he was abroad, under a temporary ranking, Sims returned in the uniform of a Rear Admiral. When he left the Mauretania, whose progress into the harbor was marked by a reception as picturesque as it was eloquent of the nation's and city's tribute to a home-coming victor, the Rear Admiral boarded the naval yacht Aramis and stepped into the circle of his family. Greeting his wife, three children and three sisters, the officer chatted happily, declaring that his greatest regret in connection with the war was his inability to have his family with him, a hardship which he shared with 5000 officers under his command.

From his family the returning commander turned to Rear Admiral D. H. Burrage, who extended the formal welcome of the Navy Department. To this was added by Mayor Hylan that of the city of New York when the Aramis reached the battery.

The Mauretania entered the harbor in midafternoon. A great fleet of airplanes heralded the approach of the transport, bearing the Admiral, his staff and 3030 troops and escorted by a flotilla of destroyers and smaller naval craft.

As the Admiral stepped aboard the naval yacht, his flag shot up the main mast and the guardship Amphitrite, which had withheld its salute, while he was aboard a foreign vessel, loosed its guns. The escorting destroyers remained in the lower bay, but the airplanes with a pair of kite balloons towed by launches, proceeded on up the bay continuing the welcome until the Admiral had set foot on home soil.

From the battery the party went by automobile to an uptown hotel. The Admiral passed through cheering crowds and was showered by confetti from office windows. Admiral Sims termed his reception "wonderful." He had expected no formal welcome, he said, intending to meet his family and go direct to Washington for conference with navy officials, afterward proceeding to his home at Newport, R. I. He was met by J. P. Mahoney, Mayor of that city, who obtained his promise to appear Friday evening at a reception, arranged by the Admiral's fellow-citizens.

The Admiral declared the relations between his forces and the British had been ideal.

Worked in Complete Harmony.

"We went over there to get into the war in any way we could do the most good," he stated. "All maneuvers of the grand fleet were the result of conferences between the British and American staffs and there were no differences of opinion. We operated between 300 and 400 vessels manned by 80,000 officers and men in complete harmony with the British, and relations now, with 150 vessels and 25,000 men remaining, are just as cordial."

He added that American naval craft had operated from the White Sea to Constantinople, assisting the War Department, Shipping Board and relief commissions.

"We were a minority in the allied fleet," he continued, "but we had the satisfaction of knowing that in quality we ranked, ship for ship, with the best of them."

Of the merchant seamen the Rear Admiral spoke in high praise, declaring "they stood by us through it all and some of them, it seemed, could not get torpedoed often enough to suit them." He said "there might have been a different story to tell but for the courage of these men in sticking to their posts.

COLBY SAYS REED DEPARTED FROM TRUTH IN LEAGUE SPEECH

Tells Missouri Legislators That Senator Has Constructed Jack-o'-Lantern Version of Covenant.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Speaking in the chamber of the House of Representatives here last night, Bainbridge Colby of New York referred to Senator Reed of Missouri as having "constructed for his own purpose a fantastic and Jack-o'-lantern version of the covenant of the league of nations, entirely at variance with its terms or with their just interpretation."

He said that published versions of Reed's speech to the Legislature contained "very reprehensible departures from a truthful statement of the covenant." Senator Reed was also charged with seeking to mislead his hearers as to the operation of the league, and as having made "collateral statements which are only explicable as an effort to stir up prejudice and prevent growth of sentiment in favor of the adoption of the covenant, by hook or crook."

Colby asserted that "Republican Senators in their eager quest for issues leaped into hasty, and, as it has later appeared, very ill considered opposition."

"All but a few," he said, "have since seen the unmistakable drift of public sentiment."

354TH PRAISED BY PERSHING

Copy of Order Telling of Comment Received Here.

An order telling how Gen. Pershing praised the discipline and morale of the 354th Infantry, an Eighty-ninth (Camp Funston) Division regiment containing many St. Louisans, was posted at regimental headquarters in Treves, Germany, March 14, and a copy has been received here. It follows:

"The Commander in Chief arrived in Treves at 11:30 a. m. yesterday, and remained until this morning, when he proceeded to Coblenz. While here he inspected the troops and all charitable associations, and expressed himself as well pleased with conditions at Treves. He especially complimented Col. Conrad S. Babcock, headquarters commandant, on the appearance of his regiment, the 354th Infantry, and the other troops stationed in Treves, on their spirit did showing as to discipline and morale.

Fewer Stars, More Fighting Will Be Seen at S. B. A. C.

Principals in All of the Bouts Here Tonight Are Known as "Go-Getters."

TWO NAVY MEN ON CARD

Schneider and Bandy Both Gained Experience While Helping U. S.

Tonight's Fight Card At South Broadway A. C.

Kid Bandy vs. Orb Jolly, both of St. Louis, 8 rounds, 133 pounds.
Stanley Everett, Peoria, vs. Eddie Meier, 8 rounds, 118 pounds.
Leo Schneider vs. "Red" Johnson, both of St. Louis, 8 rounds, 133 pounds.
Referee—Walter Heisner.

With the so-called "tars," either local or foreign, on tonights boxing card at the South Broadway Athletic Club, members will probably be regaled with plenty of hard and earnest fighting, with a minimum of prancing and time-wasting frills.

The principals in each of the three events scheduled are known to be earnest young workmen, none having ever been accused of pulling or stalling or otherwise incurring public displeasure.

The nearest thing to a main event appears to be the Orb Jolly-Kid Bandy battle, in which artillery exchanges of heavy caliber guns may be looked for. Bandy, prior to his sojourn in the navy, was a freight handler, rugged and rough, who wielded a mean mitt when in the ring, with an utter disregard for his opponent's beauty. He is no Packey McFarland for cleverness, but there is never any doubt about what he is in the ring, for, when he fights, Orb Jolly is an improving lightweight who will give an excellent account of himself.

Schneider Has Improved.

Leo Schneider, who was an instructor at Great Lakes, is a clever boxer. Leo used to think a fight was a marathon race. When encountering one he was always on his heels, the enemy in full pursuit. Later he conquered this tap and getaway style and settled down to real fighting. He is considered a first class man and was mentioned as a member of the team to represent the navy in London last December.

"Red" Johnson is a graduate of the amateur class. He packs a dangerous kick, but has not hurt many opponents with it, thus far.

Stanley Everett and Eddie Meier have such a rousing exhibition on the occasion of their last meeting that the members know what to expect of this pair.

That Regan Match Mystery.

The next appearance of Kid Regan (Charley Crouse) is still shrouded in mystery, thanks to the counterminding of enemy promoters. Regan is esteemed the best local drawing card and therefore the South Broadway, the Rialto and the Future City A. C. are all on the trail of Charles.

Crouse had promised April 15 to the South Broadway, but in view of the smallness of the clubhouse Matchmaker Uhlemeyer decided to waive claim to the date, if Regan desired a Coliseum or other engagement. This left the Rialto Club and the Future City to fight it out. Future City now has the call, but seems unable to get Kid Herman for the date, April 22. On April 21 Herman is scheduled to fight Johnny Ertle and he'll hardly be able to take notice of much the following day.

Amateur Show at Eagles' Hall.

The Nordwest Turn and Leiderkranz Association will hold a boxing show at the Eagles' Hall, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, April 25. Five bouts will be scheduled. Membership cards may be obtained under the usual conditions, before 6 p. m. the night of the show. The maximum price is 55 cents.

SANTA MONICA WINNER AND RUNNER UP ENTER LIBERTY SWEEPSTAKES

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 8.—The two Chevrolet specials which roared into first and second places in the recent Santa Monica road race of 250 miles, will attempt to repeat the stunt in the 500-mile Liberty Sweepstakes at Indianapolis on May 31. R. Clifford Durant, the Oakland, Cal., millionaire owner of the pair of cars, was the first to enter the speedway's race for $50,000 and today he filed the second entry, naming the veteran, Eddie Hearne, who drove to second place behind Durant in the Western road race, as the pilot.

That Hearne can make his car do tricks was shown in the first race in which he took the Chevrolet No. 2, as he went through the race without a stop. Durant had the faster car and nosed Hearne out, despite a loss of 60 seconds at the pits in two stops. The car was new to Hearne at the time, and since the Santa Monica race he has overhauled the racer and claims to have put about five miles an hour more under the bonnet and to be in a position to give his "boss" the battle of his career.

The engine of the car is almost up to the maximum allowed for the race of 300 cubic inches piston displacement, having a bore of 3 12-16 inches and a stroke of 6½ inches, giving a displacement of 298.6 cubic inches.

Durant writes that the cars will be shipped from the Oakland factory of the Chevrolet Motor Co. on April 14, and that he and Hearne expect to reach Indianapolis about May 1 to start tuning up on the bricks and trying the cars out for their dash of 500 miles to the tune of $100 per mile.

Browns' Catchers Batted Only .219 and Were Last in Fielding Form

Detroit	38	135	8	.217	266	.969
Washington	24	67	5	.193	152	.963

This is the third of a series of articles comparing the various major league clubs in all departments. The fourth article, regarding the American League pitchers will be published tomorrow.

No. 3—A. L. Catchers Compared

Despite the fact that the trio of Browns' catchers last season hit only .219, Josh Billings, Walter Mayer and Hank Severeid are expected to do better the coming campaign. Comparing the Browns' receivers with those of the other clubs is a hard proposition, inasmuch as two of them did little chatching in 1918, while Severeid was ill at the start of the campaign.

Billings last year did not compete in enough games with Cleveland to get into the record books. However, in 1917 he batted 129 times. Mayer had only a few chances with the Red Sox, while Severeid took part in 51 games. The trio fielded .961, which is the poorest mark of any set of receivers in the league.

Ruel a .300 Hitter?

As was the case with the infielders, the New York catchers are in front in batting, with .253. However, Muddy Ruel, the St. Louis boy, is figured on a .300 average in the Southern League in 1917, and Baldwin, another rookie, is counted on his 1917 mark in the Coast League. Hannah is the only maskman who was with the team all of 1918, who is again with Huggins. The trio fielded .979.

However, on purely major league standards, the Cleveland Indians have the best of it, with Steve O'Neill, Chet Thomas and Les Nunamaker, the former Brown, who was the best hitting catcher in the Ban Johnson circuit in 1918. This trio also ranks well up in assists, with 286, which shows that all three own good throwing arms. O'Neill, in 1918, had 154 assists and was the leader in this line.

O'Neill's total was 41 more than was credited the Browns' trio, with Billings getting 51, Severeid 44 and Mayer 18. Eddie Ainsmith, now with the Tigers, was next to O'Neill in throwing, with 131 assists, while Ray Schalk, generally rated as the best receiver in the league, had 114.

Washington Poorly Equiped.

Washington, with Picinich, a youngster, late of the Southern League, who a few seasons ago had a tryout with Connie Mack, and Sam Agnew, the ex-Brownie, to do the bulk of the work, has the poorest hitting staff in the league, the pair getting an average of only .193. Gharrity is Griff's third catcher.

Base stealing is almost a lost art with the catchers, Ray Schalk of the White Sox being the leader in this line, with 12. Lynn stole one, which places Gleason's men high, with 13. Severeid last year stole four hassocks, Billings two in 1917, while Mayer did not pilfer last year.

ALEXANDER'S BACKSTOP, LLOYD WAITE, ST. LOUIS, RECOVERING FROM SHOCK

First Lieut. Lloyd Waite, the St. Louis boy who did most of the receiving for Pitcher Grover Cleveland Alexander in games played in France by the Eighty-ninth Division baseball team, has recovered from shell shock and minor injuries suffered in France and will be able to play ball in the near future, according to his father.

The elder Waite told the Post-Dispatch that his son, following his return from abroad, was sent to Tony Steuver's ranch, Raymondville, Tex., to recuperate. He has so far recovered that he is now en route home, via the horseback route. Raymondville is near Brownsville, Tex.

Waite was formerly a catcher in the American Association. He was a member of the 342d Regiment, Battery E, 7-inch guns. He participated in the St. Mihiel drive as acting captain under Acting Maj. Eddie Handlan of this city.

A big shell from the Metz forts exploded near Waite and hurled him on a pile of rocks, inflicting minor injuries and shocking him severely.

CLEVELAND NINE WILL PLAY PRINCIPIA TODAY

Cleveland High School will play its second game of the season this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, when Coach Guy's men meet Principia at the Cleveland campus. Principia has not yet figured in a contest this season, so that the strength of the team is virtually unknown. Bogel, however, captain of the team, is twirling his second year, and is likely to prove the main strength of Coach McRoberts. McCandless will do the receiving for Bogel.

Cliff Placke, Cleveland's best pitcher, will probably watch the game from the bench. Cliff worked in a game last Saturday. He is expected to perform against George Keck of Kirkwood tomorrow. Coates, a youngster, whom Coach Guy has been developing, will start the game, with Eddie Gregg, a veteran of last year, behind the bat.

AMERICAN CREW WILL COMPETE IN REGATTA ON SEINE, APRIL 28

PARIS, April 8.—The American crew which is to compete in the French interallied eight-oared race, April 28, will be made up of some of the best-known oarsmen of American universities, the captain being C. D. Wiman, artillery, Yale 'Varsity, 1915. Capt. Wiman asked that, inasmuch as merely elimination trials are being held at present and as, therefore, the crew which will appear in the big event has not yet been picked, the names of the oarsmen be withheld until a final selection has been made.

The race will be over a course of 2500 meters down the Seine, starting at the Pont Royal and finishing at the Pont de l'Alma, and passing under four bridges, including the famous Alexander III Bridge.

The obstacles of the race will make it more spectacular, the space under the arches of the bridges permitting only two crews to pass under an arch at the same time. The pont Royal, having only three arches, the coxswains will have to do some clever jockeying and maneuvering and a lively sprint can be looked for at the takeoff.

The crews will use off-center sliding seat lapstreak barges, with Belgian tholes. The boats are somewhat heavier than those to which American and English rowing men are accustomed.

TULSA, Ok., April 8.—Somewhat weary from their journey over a road which imparted to the train the motions of a liner floundering at sea, the Browns arrived in Tulsa this forenoon. Two games are to be played here, and tomorrow night the club will leave for St. Louis ready to step into the city series with a snap and vim which betokens good results.

Grover Lowdermilk is to pitch the full nine innings today, and upon his success or failure depends a great deal, for his arm has been bothering him again. If it has returned to form, well and good; if not, then Burke must look elsewhere for help.

The hitting of "Baby Doll" Jacobson has featured the last few days, not that it counted greatly in the results, but Jake has located the ball and it is Burke's belief that this boy will hit well over the .300 mark this season.

Outfield Hitting Well.

Jacobson appears to have clinched a regular place in the outfield. Kenneth Williams has fallen low in his batting, but this need not discourage the fans. Williams has been bothered with a sore arm. Now that this has apparently been restored to normal, the former Pacific Coast Leaguer is due to regain his natural hitting ability. All of the others in the outfield, Demmitt, Tobin and Smith, are hitting well.

Bronkie Clouts the Ball.

Bronkie is surprising everyone by his hitting and if he can keep this up he will beat Austin out of a regular job at third. However, Burke has not picked his man, yet, and any report to the contrary is not authorized by the manager.

The Browns have struck summer weather of a real sort now. The thermometer has the past few days been around 85 during the afternoon.

Tom Rogers yesterday showed that he is ready for the season by holding the Fort Worth Panthers to four hits. Sisler had a great day at bat, getting a single, a double and a triple in three times up.

MUNICIPAL BASEBALL OFFICIALS WILL MEET

Officials of the Municipal Baseball Association will hold a meeting at Room 330 Municipal Courts Building tonight, when final plans for the opening of the season, April 26 and 27, will be made. A constitution and by-laws will be adopted, officers elected and grounds for the campaign assigned.

Sunday Baseball Bill in New York Goes to Governor for His Signature

With the Senate and the Assembly in New York both passing the Sunday baseball bill, which would allow local municipal authorities to decide whether professional games should be played on Sunday afternoons, the bill now goes to the Governor for his signature. The bill was passed in the Senate by a 28-to-21 vote last week, while the Assembly yesterday passed it, 82 to 60.

If the Governor signs the measure, New York will see major league contests on Sundays the coming season.

Red Sox Defeat Giants.

With Carl Mays and Joe Bush on hurling hill, the world's champion Red Sox defeated the Giants in an exhibition contest at Gainsville, Fla., yesterday, 4—2. Mays and Bush were found for eight safeties, while Causey and Steele, hurling for McGraw's men, yielded a like number.

Tigers Nose Out Braves.

The Detroit Tigers, bumping Dick Rudolph and Ray Keating, veteran righthanders, for 11 safeties, yesterday nosed out the Boston Braves, 6—5. Bill James and Eric Erickson twirled for Jennings and were found for eight safe raps.

Shellenback and Kerr Win.

Shellenback, a righthander, and Dick Kerr, the southpaw, who at one time was given a tryout by the Browns, yesterday pitched the White Sox to a 9—1 victory over Texas University. The major league flingers gave the collegians only six hits.

Reds Win From Dallas.

The Cincinnati Reds gained a 4—3 victory over Dallas yesterday, with Hod Eller and Dutch Reuther giving the Texas Leaguers seven bingles.

Mack's Team Is Beaten.

Connie Mack's Athletics were defeated, 6—5, by the Baltimore club of the International League. Mack used Anderson, Grevel and Gullman, three of his rookie flingers, and they were rapped safely eight times.

Malone Playing Second.

With Ray Schmandt, the St. Louis boy, out of the Superba lineup for at least six weeks because of an injury, Lew Malone, who was with the Athletics a few seasons ago, is playing second base for the Superbas. Malone has shown surprising form. Another feature of the Brooklyn workouts, has been the heavy hitting of Catcher Ernie Krueger.

Doug Baird Returns.

Douglas Baird, former Cardinal third sacker, who during the winter was traded to the Phillies, has recovered from a heavy cold and is again working out with the men of Jack Coombs.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON TO VISIT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., April 8.—Sir Thomas J. Lipton has changed the deed of gift of the Lipton trophy for Class R yachts so that the annual race for this championship cup will be held here this summer off Rocky River, according to a telegram received yesterday from H. A. Parsons, representative of the Cleveland Yacht Club, who had been in conference with Sir Thomas. The message added that Sir Thomas will visit this city as a guest of the Cleveland Yacht Club. The date was not announced.

Tourney Committee Named.

Glen Brown, Joe Zeuschel and T. J. Oswald were selected as a Tournament Committee by the Municipal Tennis Association at a meeting held last night. This trio will have charge of arranging all events to be held by the Municipal Association the coming season.

Britton and Downey Draw.

CANTON, O., April 8.—Jack Britton of New York, welterweight champion of America, and Bryan Downey of Columbus, boxed a 12-round draw last night, according to newspaper critics. In the eleventh round Downey floored Britton for a count of nine.

Brooklyn's Wonderful Pitching Staff May Make Flag Factor of Weak Team

"Dope" Indicates Cadore, Pfeffer, Grimes, Mamaux, Smith, Cheney and Marquard Can Hold Their Own Even With Cubs' Mound Men.

With this article begins a series of "Get Acquainted" stories of the 1919 major league baseball clubs, designed to give Post-Dispatch readers an idea of the various teams as they will take the field for the first after-the-war championship campaign. The next article will appear tomorrow.

No. 1—THE BROOKLYN CLUB
By John E. Wray.

YOU need not lamp portly Manager Robinson to arrive at the conclusion that the Brooklyn baseball club has the well-remembered "fat chance" to win the National League pennant, this year. A look at the composition of the infield and outfield may lead observers to the same conclusion.

And yet, put the brakes on your quick judgment, in the matter of this club. It will be remembered that the Brooklyn club won in 1916 when its outlook seemed equally adipose; and that the champion Cubs of last year were generally esteemed an aggregation of misfits of hopeless quality when the season began—with the exception of the PITCHERS.

And it is in this year's pitchers that Brooklyn's hope of developing pennant proportions must rest. For, in the assemblage of baseball talent now under the wing of Robinson extremes meet—the zenith being attained by his hurlers and the nadir by his infield.

Three St. Louisans on Roster.

St. Louis will be keenly interested in any success of this club, since three of its home baseball graduates are candidates for regular berths—Ray Schmand, Ollie O'Mara and "Chuck" Ward—the last named being still overseas.

It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that all three of these players find places on the infield, Schmandt at first, O'Mara at short and Ward at third. This, of course, would send Ivey Olsen to second base.

Ray Schmandt, however, will not be able to do duty again for six weeks—and perhaps not then. Leo Brazill made a temporary place for himself when recently he spiked Schmandt on the instep, an injury that Manager Robinson declared was the worst of the sort he had ever seen; but since that time Malone, formerly with Connie Mack, seems to have displaced the rookie. With "Chuck" Ward not yet out of the service, this leaves a very weak infield, with Jimmy Johnston at first, Malone at second, O'Mara at short and Olsen at third. Brazill has done very well in camp, but his lack of major experience will handicap him. He comes from Spangler, Pa., and is only 19 years of age. It is unlikely that he will crowd out Malone and occupy the first-line trench, his first season.

This infield will frighten no one. Still, the same was said of the Cubs' infield, last year, which consisted of the castoffs, Deal, Pick and Merkle, and an unknown (then), Hollocher. It is possible, though improbable, that Brazill or Lewis Malone will develop into a whirlwind of the Hollocher stripe for Robinson; but don't hock the family plate to bet on it. In fact, the infield is the tender spot on this team.

Schmandt Hit .305 in 1918.

The best hitting combination would be Johnston (.281), Schmandt (.305), Ward (.336) and Olson (.239)—two live ones and two "crappies." Still, if the good hitters could live up to their best notch, the average would not be bad—about .260.

The best outfield would be developed by shifting Johnston there, and moving Schmandt to first base. This would place Johnston, Griffith and Zach Wheat in the gardens, with an average hitting punch of .293—which is good enough for anybody's club, from a mere hitting standpoint. Zach Wheat was the big "ace" last year, with a mark of .335. He has been knocking at the door of the league leadership for some time and is undoubtedly a great asset.

Krueger and Miller are good enough catchers, although Miller hit less than .200 last season.

Thus far, the club shows some good hitting, but not well-balanced batting prowess, on the attack, and just an ordinary quality on defense. It needs some superhuman help from the pitching, to get within telescope distance of the pennant—and superhuman hurling it will get, unless all signs fail.

The Brooklyn club is just as well, if not better, equipped with pitchers than the Chicago Cubs—the envy of all major league managers, this year, with Alexander returning. It would be hard to find a finer assortment of left and right handers than Cadore, Pfeffer, Mamaux, Smith, Grimes, Cheney and Marquard. If Brooklyn is to prove a losing club, it will probably set a record for one-run or low-score defeats. This pitching staff's capabilities are mere guesswork; but with good assistance from the hitting aces, Robinson need not feel at all discouraged. It is good enough to lift mediocrity out of the second division.

Mamaux, a wild man, temperamentally, has married and presumably settled down. At his best he is a wonderful hurler and quite the equal of his brethren.

The club sent 18 men to the service, of which 13 have returned. The others, Sherrod Smith, Clarence Mitchell, Charles Ward, John Miljus and T. W. Fitzsimmons, are expected home shortly.

Can Robinson Build Another Flag Winner From This Timber?

CAPTAIN—Zach Wheat; infield acting captain, Ivy Olsen.

Snyder to Report in a Short Time

Cardinals' Star Catcher Was Discharged From Army at Fort Worth Yesterday.

Manager Branch Rickey returned to the city this morning after a three-day absence, and took charge of his dwindling squad of Cardinals in their before-noon workout at Robison Field.

There was no significance to Rickey's trip in regard to his team, as the Knot Hole leader visited his home to adjust some personal affairs.

Five members of last week's squad have already departed for other ball parks, or will do so today. Brown and Summa are now en route to Mobile. Larmore and Doyle, two local infielders, have been farmed to the Houston (Texas League) club, and Hoe Walsh will report for duty at Little Rock. Walsh has been the property of the Little Rock team since last year, but was just working out with the Cardinals.

It was announced that these are the only releases to date. Several other youngsters will be sent out for further seasoning.

The news from Fort Worth that Frank Snyder had been discharged from the army was received joyfully by the Cardinal management. The husky backstop will report to the club in a few days, inasmuch as he intends to visit his family in San Antonio before coming North.

Joe Sugden had the squad in charge yesterday and sent it through a three-hour session. The pitchers came in for the largest share of attention.

BRESNAHAN FACES LOSS OF TOLEDO FRANCHISE

TOLEDO, O., April 8.—A meeting of stockholders of the Toledo American Association Baseball Club called by President Thomas J. Hickey for today is expected to take definite action relative to the financing of the local club.

President Hickey, after a conference with Roger Bresnahan, president and majority stockholder of the Toledo Club, announced that Bresnahan had nothing new to offer and reiterated his statement that if the necessary support was not forthcoming the franchise would be transferred to another city.

Bresnahan is in financial difficulty and the stockholders, nearly all wealthy men, have refused to give him further support. They declare that he has not been successful as a minor league manager. On the other hand Bresnahan wants the stockholders to turn their holdings over to another group of men who are willing to assist him financially.

HAND GRENADE EVENT DROPPED BY BIG TEN

CHICAGO, April 8.—The graduate Managers Committee of the Western Conference at a meeting yesterday decided to eliminate the hand grenade event from future athletic meets. It was also decided that the javelin should be thrown from the middle and not the end. The elimination of the hand grenade in field events is due to the committee opinion that with the war over, it has no place on an athletic program.

Avery Brundage was re-elected president and Warren D. Howe, secretary and treasurer.

MISSOURI IN TWO RACES

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Approximately 400 teams representing 68 colleges, 51 preparatory schools and 107 high schools and more than 80 grammar and parochial schools are entered in the University of Pennsylvania relay races and other track and field sports April 25 and 26. Missouri University is entered in the one-mile relay and the sprint medley relay.

College Notes

Cornell has ratified in principle the proposed quadrangular alliance which will bring together Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Dartmouth. The covenant of the league proposes football games between Penn, Cornell and Dartmouth, with Columbia later participating when the faculty lifts the ban on "big games." All other sports will be sponsored. A tentative constitution has been sent to the four schools.

Boynton Returns to School.

The news that "Chuck" Boynton would return to school in the fall has been joyfully received by students at Williams College. Boynton is in the aviation service. He was selected all-American quarterback in 1917, is shortstop of the baseball nine, and a star guard on the basketball team.

Colgate Has Seven Games.

Colgate's most pretentious football schedule has been announced. The wearers of the maroon will play in seven games, five of which are of major importance. The schedule includes contests with Brown, Cornell, Princeton, Dartmouth, Syracuse, Susquehanna and Rochester.

Yale Track Squad Small.

Coach Johnny Mack of the Yale team has sent out an S. O. S. call because of the scantity of the squad which has reported to him. Fewer men are out for Yale's track team than have reported within the past 10 years.

WEBSTER HIGH GIRLS CLAIM BASKET TITLE

It was announced at Webster Groves High School today that the Webster girls basketball team claimed the county title, owing to the default of the Kirkwood High School girls team.

The Kirkwood and Webster fives both finished the season with a record of 8 games won and 2 games lost. It was agreed to play a deciding contest; but after Kirkwood defaulted twice, the last occasion being yesterday, the Webster girls decided to claim the county School championship.

11 NEW YORK BOXERS IN AMATEUR TITLE TOURNEY

BOSTON, April 8.—The National Amateur Boxing Championship tournament was brought to the semi-final round by the preliminary competition last night. As a result of the bouts and defaults recorded in the eight classes in which titles will be determined tonight the cities represented had the following number of entrants still in the competition: New York, 11; Pittsburg, 8; Boston, 7; Denver, 2; Navy, 2; New Orleans, 1, and Brockton, 1.

Two Local Rowing Clubs Will Enter National Regatta

Crews to Be Sent by Western and Century Dependent on Season's Work.

WORCESTER SITE NAMED

Lake Quinsigamon Course Improved by Removal of Stone Causeway.

Rowing appears to be due for a big revival in St. Louis this year, with seven clubs planning crews for local and Central States events, and two clubs looking forward to the National Regatta at Worcester, Mass., Aug. 9-10. The Western Rowing Club has decided to send one entry to the National, the records made by its crews during the coming season determining whether it sends a four, an eight or a single oarsman, while Century will be represented provided the green and white oarsmen show themselves capable in local regattas.

The last National Regatta figured in by a St. Louis crew took place in Duluth in 1917. At that race, Harry Allen's Century boys were bested in the eight and four oared races by Ten Eyck's Duluth oarsmen. The St. Louis entry drew second place.

Worcester Has Good Course.

The National Rowing Association has selected Worchester, Mass., as the scene of the national races this year, according to John Schaab, president of the Southwestern Rowing Association. Philadelphia also bid strongly for the regatta. In previous years, rowing clubs have looked askance at the Worcester course, because a stone obstruction just across the finish line made it necessary for a crew to throw out its oars or smash after finishing a race. So many shells were broken that Worcester became unpopular in spite of the surprising smoothness of the course. The offending rocks were removed this spring, however, so that now Worcester has the finest stretch of water for shell racing in America.

The Central States Association will stage its annual regatta in Chicago this year, provided the Government turns over to them the Municipal Pier, which has been used during the war in connection with navy work. Every club on the river except Century expects to be represented at this regatta. Century is not a member of the Central States Association, although it is rumored that they expect to join before the season opens.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

French Designs on Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Every few days we read in the reports from the peace congress that the French Government refuses to consider any conference or agreement with the Soviet Government of Russia, but wants the allies to send an army into Russia to set up some kind of authority that will suit the French financiers and a crowd of the Russian nobility who are now living in Paris and who are using money to influence French statesmen and newspapers. I don't know anything about Lenine and Trotzky, but it is a safe bet that their regime is not any more brutal than was the Czar's, or the kind that gang of blood-suckers want the allies to set up. It seems to me France ought to be glad to give up war; they certainly had enough of it, but if they are looking for more, let them send their own army to Russia, but have it first understood that in case they get into trouble or are in danger of defeat they must not ask the United States to help them out a second time! We kept France from being absolutely "wiped off the map," and they ought to be satisfied. They certainly display monumental nerve to ask us to join them in a war that does not concern them or us. We are and have been paying very dear for our part in the war; we were told it was for humanity and to make the world "safe for democracy." What kind of democracy would there be in Russia if that gang were re-established there?

I do not believe the French masses have any more desire to send an army to Russia than have those of this country; it is only a crowd of rotten nobility and crooked profiteers who ask it.

I trust President Wilson tells the French Government in very plain words to go to Russia if they must, but to go alone.

Where Are Private Cole's Relatives?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The American Red Cross National Headquarters in Washington, D. C., desire to locate the relatives of Private Edward Cole, Company L, 354th Infantry, who died overseas. They have information to give the family concerning the soldier.

We shall appreciate very much your publishing this fact in an effort to locate these relatives. BLANCHE RENARD.

Enforced Labor Is Slavery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In an article published in your issue of April 6 Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, tells us that the workday can be reduced to three hours per day. That it can be done goes without question if a system of compulsory labor is established and all able-bodied persons are put to work. We have three classes of people throughout the world. One class follows useful labor, another class useless labor, and a third class the idle class. Some are gamblers, speculators, loan sharks and others too numerous to mention that follow useless labor. In the idle class are the idle rich, the loafer and the enforced idle, because there are not enough jobs. In a crisis we should be patriotic enough to sell our property as well as our labor to our Government for scientific adjustment. AMERICAN.

Not Too Old to Work.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Tell all the soldiers to marry in France; not wait till they get to America and marry an elevator girl. I am a man 50 years old and could run an elevator if I had the job. There are no jobs here for you; stay in the army. I would love to be with you, but am too old.

O. L. DENNY.
1213 O'Fallon street.

Mashers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I would like to say that the case of arresting Peter Theofilis for making improper advances to Miss Elizabeth Hoch is, without doubt, one of the most just things that the Police Department of St. Louis could do. We read so much about the arrest of women who walk the streets to annoy and tempt the poor, weak and virtuous men. Dozens of these unfortunate souls are punished monthly, and justly punished, perhaps, but why is it that men are allowed to stand on corners or walk the street and try their evil influence on one woman after another without being arrested and fined?

I am writing from experience and not giving the views of an old man-hating crank. The experience of a young, attractive woman on the streets of St. Louis is a severe trial to many. If a few more women were put on duty in St. Louis and a few more men were arrested and given a heavy fine and some publicity it would improve the moral of women, I am sure.

Personally, I would like to have a star under my coat when some of the respected, influential, wealthy married men of this city attempt to interest me on the street. I can readily see why many of our poor but attractive and ambitious young women, who have not a strength of character born of good Christian home training would fall victims of such men.

A POST-DISPATCH READER.

A RECORD OF THREE MONTHS.

Nearly everybody seems agreed that great changes in opinion and methods will follow the war.

But those changes may not bring about any revolutionary departures from the fundamental principles of the past. They may not even involve the rise of new political parties. That new sentiments may be advocated under the party labels of the past is entirely probable? Disaster may impend for familiar types of political personages rather than for forms of government or political machinery.

Without noteworthy departures in other directions, the change may be marked as much by new standards of service and efficiency imposed on those selected for public positions as by anything else. The time unquestionably is coming, and that soon, when greater care will be exercised in selecting incumbents for public posts, when those incumbents, after rigid inquiry into their standing and character, will be held to a stricter accountability for their records, when a new and readier responsiveness to the public desires will be required of them.

How would the Missouri Legislature that met three months ago today qualify under those new standards of service and efficiency?

We may assume that it contains the usual proportion of men who find public life agreeable and are ambitious for further official promotion. Perhaps they do not believe that great shiftings in sentiment are coming, great progressive movements that will overwhelm the reactionary personalities as well as the reactionary policies of the past.

But if they do believe it, where do they fancy they will stand under the new order? Do they not see that precisely such paltering, unfruitful public servants as they are one of the causes of the upheaval, assuming that it comes, and that they are marked for odium and the discard?

The Legislature, after three months, has passed nine bills, only one or two of which were backed by any pronounced demand. In the meantime a dozen measures of the most vital importance on which the public is in substantial agreement remain unconsidered or receive only frivolous treatment.

Manifestly this Legislature is out of touch with the spirit of its time. It does not understand that something is about to happen. With a new era almost upon us, it yields to the paltry motives of peanut politics that have outlived their force.

When so much energy on the part of the public is constantly required to prevent the Legislature from doing the wrong thing, how much energy remains to force it to do the right thing? The expectant voters' patience is almost exhausted.

THE VILLA RAID ON FINNEY AVENUE.

The walking delegate of St. Louis' unionized burglars who stands for the higher professional standards and politely brings about the return of family heirlooms for cash, under a strictly kept gentlemen's agreement, should appreciate that such work as that done at a Finney avenue store shows a shocking lack of skilled technique and hurts business.

The account of the visitation reads like descriptions of a descent by Villa bandits on some unfortunate Mexican center of population. The sentries who paced their beats outside, unmindful of the increasing peril, gave an impression of trained military competency. But the deafening pounding on the steel safe with a sledge for a quarter of an hour, the stunning explosion of nitroglycerin heard for blocks, the succession of countless shots exchanged with the police, the yells to aroused neighbors to pull their heads in from surrounding windows and the strident command to passersby to vamoose created a scene of uproar and disorder most painful to all, including even burglars, who really have the credit of the city at heart.

Such daring, and especially such mistaken contempt for publicity, make it increasingly difficult to pull off better managed, quiet jobs. [illegible]est citizens who have borne their own theft losses with resignation will cease to rely on police protection and take their own measures for co-operative reprisals against the thieves in a spirit of community betterment.

AN ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS.

Dr. John H. Simon finds that the chief trouble with the Democratic party in St. Louis is "the thing" which is now called the Democratic City Committee. The diagnosis does credit to the doctor's powers of perception and judgment. Of course, it might be said that the trouble lies deeper and that no party that did not have something serious the matter with it would tolerate such a directing committee. Nevertheless, the committee is something more than a mere symptom. It is in itself a menace to the political good health, not only of the party it assumes to represent, but of the community.

Dr. Simon promises his best efforts for the removal of this center of infection and source of pernicious anemia and inertia. Whatever his personality, the man who succeeds in doing that will deserve the gratitude of St. Louis.

RACIAL EQUALITY.

The inclusion of a declaration of racial equality in the League of Nations constitution, insisted upon by the Japanese plenipotentiaries, would be unobjectionable if a formula can be found in which the implication is clear that such declaration does not modify the heretofore existing rights of states under the law of nations.

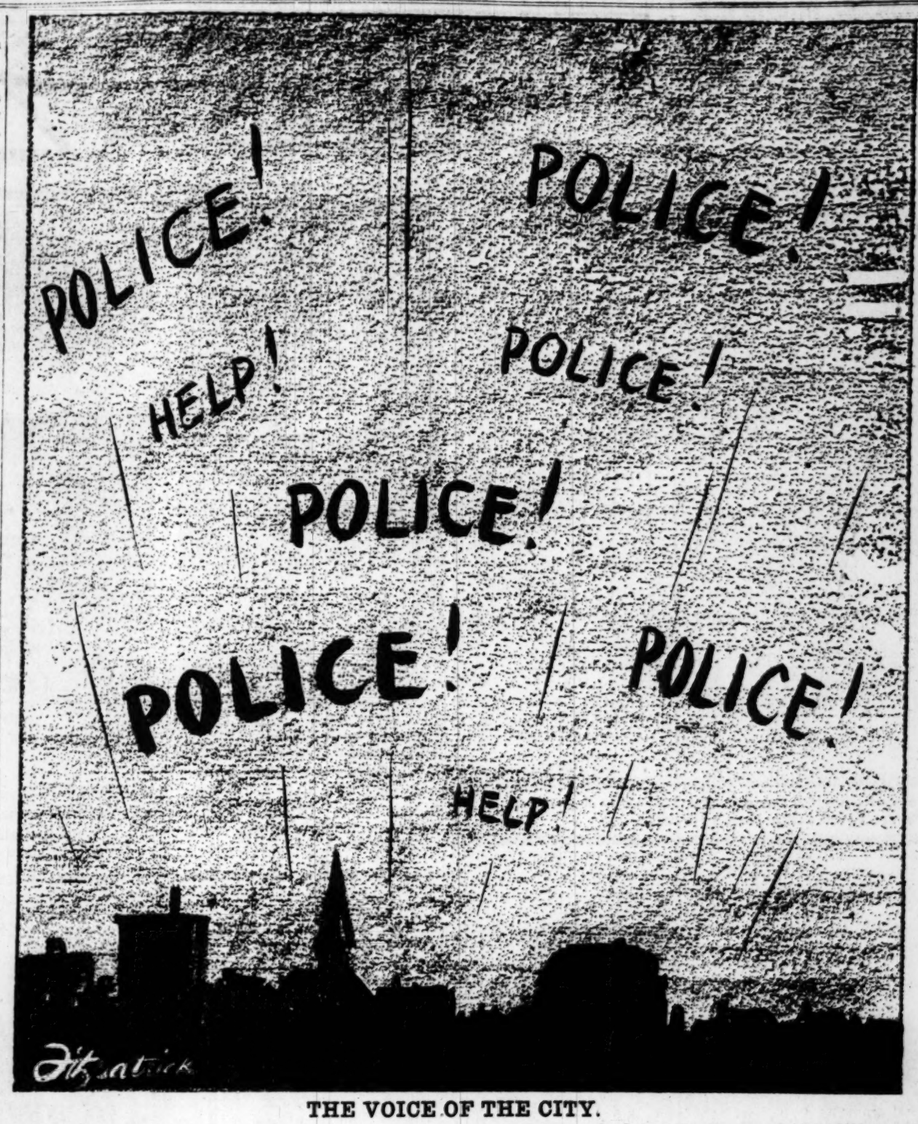

From time immemorial states have been recognized as possessing absolute control over the questions of immigration and the exclusion and expulsion of foreigners. It is a right inherent in states and essential to self-preservation. In the absence of such a right, territorial supremacy would disappear. As Justice Field said in the Chinese exclusion case:

> The power of excluding foreigners being an incident to sovereignty belonging to the United States as part of those powers delegated by the Constitution, the right to its exercise at any time when, in the judgment of the Government, the interest of the country requires it, cannot be granted away or restrained on behalf of anyone. The powers of government are delegated in trust and are incapable of transfer to any other parties.

The distinction between white and Oriental peoples is clearly recognized under this power, not as an economic question, but as a far more important politico-ethnological one. To permit unlimited immigration of Oriental peoples into a country of white peoples would constitute a peaceful invasion on the part of peoples who cannot be assimilated, and their settlements would become an imperium in imperio. National unity and solidarity would be destroyed.

It is possible that the justifiable pride of the Japanese might be satisfied with a declaration of racial equality with a general reservation to the effect that such declaration was not intended to interfere with the existing rights of states in their territorial supremacy under the law of nations.

The Germans are sitting tight on the 14 points.

OUR RUSSIAN FIASCO.

From the San Francisco Call and Post.

SECRETARY BAKER can hardly be blamed for not wanting to talk about our business in Russia when he was here, although if he had said what he probably thinks about it the interview would have been an interesting one. Perhaps it would have run something like this: "We went in because the Japanese, French and British were going in whether we went or not, and we thought that the sending of a nominal-sized American force would give us the right to exercise an influence, and of course a moderating influence. We felt that it would not be right to leave Russia to the discretion even of our very discreet Oriental neighbor in the Pacific. We believed that the question of the disposition of the natural resources of Russia was one that the Russians should settle if they could, and that the allied nations—the nucleus of a league of nations—should assume in trusteeship until the Russians got the dust out of their eyes and the blood off their hands.

"It is true that our hopes have failed, that our soldiers have neither put down Bolshevism nor won the friendship of the enemies of Bolshevism, and that we could not now give an answer to the query why we are there. But how are we to get out? And what becomes of our responsibilities to the Russians if we leave them at the mercy of military commanders and adventurers who are absolutely unrestrained by outside public opinion? We are in a fix. But how would you have managed affairs so that we could have kept out of the fix?"

Apparently nothing better could happen now than to have the American troops removed from Vladivostok and from Archangel. But this does not solve the Russian problem. It merely obscures still more completely the anarchy, tyranny, injustice, famine and rapine that now characterizes the situation on both sides of the various "fronts" in Asiatic and European Russia. Yet the first step toward cleaning up this miserable mess is to step out of it. We can do that. And nobody's pride and nobody's private feelings or interests should prevent us from doing it.

AN IDEA OF DEMOCRACY.

From the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

BOSTON has demonstrated its democracy with 15,000,000 more tons of fish in storage this spring than it had last spring. The ocean is merely the place to catch fish, not fit for storing fish as nature provided. Man must build storehouses and heat them in winter and cool them in summer and charge us 900 per cent on the expenses of that disruption of nature. That is democracy. When we have fashioned all the world to be safe for that, the outside of this earth will be a refrigerator and the Boston Fish Trust will have one of the keys to a side door. The other keys will be for wheat growers, cotton planters, sheep keepers and meat packers, with some miscellaneous holders too numerous to mention, all trusting in their keys. The front door will be open only to politicians and their dependents, who will be in charge of all the railroads, lines of communication from cables to phones, and the machinery from ships to airplanes, and the powers from coal to waterfalls and pack mules. Those will be the halcyon days, and we shall all fly, have to fly to get up high enough to look at the price for the goods of sustenance.

JUST A MINUTE

MUSHROOMS.

THE other day I went down to Union Market looking for mushrooms.

This is the season when mushrooms are mushrooming.

So to speak.

They are induced by spring showers.

You cook them with beefsteak.

An epicure is one who knows edible mushrooms from toadstools.

A Lucullan is one who knows how edible mushrooms are prepared.

Now you know those things.

Very well.

I found two half-bushel baskets of mushrooms in the market.

They were the red Morells.

There were also domestic mushrooms raised in old wine cellars and places like Uhrig's Cave.

But I wanted wild mushrooms having the exquisite flavor of old logs and decaying stumps.

I do not care at this season for domestic mushrooms.

I would as soon have a mess of old pants buttons.

This is Spring!

So I stood feasting my eyes upon those two baskets of mushrooms.

At last!

They were in!

It seemed that tears dimmed my sight.

And that through those tears I could see Lucullus on the loggia of his house on a night when he had friends in.

I could see old Epicurus sitting with wine and mushrooms among his Greek peers.

Explaining that while the soul is not immortal,

Mushrooms probably are.

It was the dealer who roused me from this blissful trance.

He was a little dark man with a businesslike air.

He suggested to me Ali Baba's brother, Cassim.

That type.

Was there something I wanted?

Yes.

I wanted to ask about the red mushrooms.

Merely to ask about them.

I thought that would be best.

They were a dollar a pound.

He would weigh a basket of them.

Eleven pounds and a quarter.

Eleyen dollars and twenty-five cents!

Eleven dollars and twenty-five cents a basket—

And Lucullus doubtless got all he wanted from the Pontine Marsh for ten cents a ton!

Was it any wonder he had friends,

Or that his reputation was great?

No, gentle reader.

It was easy—then.

Had I dreamed of mushrooms?

Then I was awake.

Had I dreamed of mushrooms and beefsteak in Spring?

Then Cassim, the brother of Ali Baba, had ended that.

Cassim, the tradesman,

Calm and inscrutable,

Waiting there still, perhaps, for someone with $11.25.

AND IT LOOKED DIFFICULT!

Why all this astounding ignorance one encounters about this here business of the fall in sterling exchange? The principle of the thing is perfectly plain. Sterling exchange arises when a decreased exportation of Ukrainian bread-fruit, f. o. b. Przemysl, is confronted by heavy gold exportations to South America to balance a glutted market in the desiccated-egg factories of Paraguay.

Or take the franc, not lightly as a Parisian cabby takes it from you, but seriously like a trained economist. The franc in normal health is worth 19.8 cents. This should not be confused with the .62 which represents the value of the kilometer in terms of miles. Suppose now you owe 5000 francs in Paris in payment for jewelry and objects d'art produced at Bridgeport, Conn. In that case either you remit the required funds by cable, or by mail if you are in a hurry, or else write to explain that the income tax has cleaned you out.

Very well. But what happens if the gold reserve in the National Bank of Zambesi is threatened by an influx of Russian paper rubles, familiarly known as Trotzky's Comic Supplements? Why, simply this: You multiply the index number for currency inflation in Czecho-Slovakia by the birthrate in Mesopotamia, you subtract the pig iron production in Denmark from the mean annual rainfall in the metropolitan area of Belfast, you add the difference between the indemnities Germany can't pay, and the indemnities she won't pay, and you serve hot or cold, according as you work for a yellow journal or for a journal of conservative opinion.

At bottom, the secret of sterling exchange cannot be solved without a thorough knowledge of decimal variations in the principal financial centers abroad. Thus Mexican exchange is in the ratio of 1.2436 pesos to the square mile, whereas in Lapland it is something like 2½ Lapps to the mile.

Or would you have me explain to you the real secret of open diplomacy? —New York Evening Post.

Admiral Sims Tells How He Went Abroad Incognito; Convoy System Saved Day

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—How Rear-Admiral William S. Sims, accompanied by one aid, proceeded incognito into England under Navy Department orders issued him two weeks before the United States entered the war against Germany was told by the Admiral here last night on his return from overseas.

On March 24 or 25, 1917, the Admiral said, while he was president of the Naval War College at Newport, he was ordered to report "without delay" to the Secretary of the Navy at Washington. On his arrival there he was received in secret conference with Secretary Daniels and Admiral Benson, chief of operations.

He was told that it "looked as though we shall go to war," and it was briefly explained that he was to go at once "to see the people on the other side and reach an understanding as to how the United States best could co-operate with allied sea forces in operations against Germany." One aid would be allowed to accompany him, he was told, and his identity must not be known until it might be decided to reveal it after his safe arrival abroad.

Donned Civilian Clothes.

Commander J. V. Babcock of New Hampton, Io., aid to Admiral Sims at Newport, was chose to accompany him and both officers immediately donned civilian clothes. Simultaneously they dropped their names and assumed others "more suitable to the occasion." Admiral Sims said he did not clearly remember what name he bore on his incognito adventure.

"Babcock and I chose 'Richardson and Robertson,' as near as I can recall," he said. "I can't think of the full names, and I am not at all sure that these are correct. But that's how I seem to remember them."

The Admiral and his aid sailed from New York March 31, 1917, on the steamship New York, he said, and no one on the vessel recognized them. News of the declaration of war by the United States on April 6 reached them by the ship's wireless news service. It did not disturb them.

Entering Liverpool harbor April 9 in a thick mist, the steamer struck a mine and a hole was blown in one of her forward compartments, but the Admiral and his aid were "not especially disturbed by that either."

They went ashore unnoticed, "like anybody else." A special train was waiting in the Liverpool railroad yards, however, with Admiral Hope aboard, representing the British Admiralty. They arrived in London on April 10, both Admiral Sims and Commander Babcock still wearing their civilian clothes. They went at once to the Admiralty offices, where Admiral Sims went into conference with Admiral Jellicoe. On April 13, at a luncheon in London, the United States Ambassador made the formal announcement that Admiral Sims had arrived in the country. After that the Admiral and his aid reappeared in their navy uniforms and abandoned the names of "Richardson and Robertson" for all time.

Was "Logical Selection."

Commenting on how he happened to be the officer selected to go abroad, Admiral Sims said: "I was the logical selection for a number of reasons. I had been naval attache at Paris from 1897 to 1900. I speak the French language. I had been to England about every winter from 1902 to 1909 to talk gunnery with British Admiralty chiefs like Admiral Jellicoe and Admiral Scott. I knew the British and French naval heads. And for three years I had been in command of the Atlantic torpedo flotilla on this side."

The convoy system, which many naval men had termed impracticable, overcame the German submarine menace and figured tremendously in the winning of the war, Admiral Sims said. Depth charges and listening devices, he said, contributed materially to success in maintaining practically unbroken the transatlantic "bridge" of transports and supply ships essential to the allied victory, as did the "magnificent work" of the merchant seamen, who "took their cargoes across, convoy or no convoy." But it was the convoying scheme worked out to a fine detail by the combined fleets of the associated Powers, the officer asserted, which made possible the transportation and supplying of the great American force whose appearance in battle with the allies turned the tide.

Germany was winning the war, the Rear Admiral stated, when he arrived in England. Teuton interference with allied shipping, he added, was a serious problem, solved only when conferences of the British, American and allied commands worked out and put into practice the system of protecting vital ships, which prevailed until the cessation of hostilities.

Returns as Rear Admiral.

A Vice Admiral while he was abroad, under a temporary ranking, Sims returned in the uniform of a Rear Admiral. When he left the Mauretania, whose progress into the harbor was marked by a reception as picturesque as it was eloquent of the nation's and city's tribute to a home-coming victor, the Rear Admiral boarded the naval yacht Aramis and stepped into the circle of his family. Greeting his wife, three children and three sisters, the officer chatted happily, declaring that his greatest regret in connection with the war was his inability to have his family with him, a hardship which he shared with 3000 officers under his command.

From his family the returning commander turned to Rear Admiral D. H. Burrage, who extended the formal welcome of the Navy Department. To this was added by Mayor Hylan that of the city of New York when the Aramis reached the battery.

The Mauretania entered the harbor in midafternoon. A great fleet of airplanes heralded the approach of the transport, bearing the Admiral, his staff and 3080 troops and escorted by a flotilla of destroyers and smaller naval craft.

As the Admiral stepped aboard the naval yacht, his flag shot up the main mast and the guardship Amphitrite, which had withheld its salute, while he was aboard a foreign vessel, loosed its guns. The escorting destroyers remained in the lower bay, but the airplanes with a pair of kite balloons towed by launches, proceeded on up the bay continuing the welcome until the Admiral had set foot on home soil.

From the battery the party was by automobile to an uptown hotel. The Admiral passed through cheering crowds and was showered by confetti from office windows. Admiral Sims termed his reception "wonderful." He had expected a formal welcome, he said, intending to meet his family and go direct to Washington for conference with navy officials, afterward proceeding to his home at Newport, R. I. He was met by J. P. Mahoney, Mayor of that city, who obtained his promise to appear Friday evening at a reception, arranged by the Admiral's fellow-citizens.

The Admiral declared the relations between his forces and the British had been ideal.

Worked in Complete Harmony.

"We went over there to get into the war in any way we could do the most good," he stated. "All maneuvers of the grand fleet were the result of conferences between the British and American staffs and there were no differences of opinion. We operated between 300 and 400 vessels manned by 80,000 officers and men in complete harmony with the British, and relations now, with 150 vessels and 25,000 men remaining, are just as cordial."

He added that American naval craft had operated from the White Sea to Constantinople, assisting the War Department, Shipping Board and relief commissions.

"We were a minority in the allied fleet," he continued, "but we had the satisfaction of knowing that in quality we ranked, ship for ship, with the best of them."

Of the merchant seamen the Rear Admiral spoke in high praise, declaring "they stood by us through it all and some of them, it seemed, could not get torpedoed often enough to suit them." He said "there might have been a different story to tell but for the courage of these men in sticking to their posts.

COLBY SAYS REED DEPARTED FROM TRUTH IN LEAGUE SPEECH

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Speaking in the chamber of the House of Representatives here last night, Bainbridge Colby of New York referred to Senator Reed of Missouri as having "constructed for his own purpose a fantastic and Jack-o'-lantern version of the covenant of the league of nations, entirely at variance with its terms or with their just interpretation."

He said that published versions of Reed's speech to the Legislature contained "very reprehensible departures from a truthful statement of the covenant." Senator Reed was also charged with seeking to mislead his hearers as to the operation of the league, and as having made "collateral statements which are only explicable as an effort to stir up prejudice and prevent growth of sentiment in favor of the adoption of the covenant, by hook or crook."

Colby asserted that "Republican Senators in their eager quest for issues leaped into hasty, and, as it has later appeared, very ill considered opposition."

"All but a few," he said, "have since seen the unmistakable drift of public sentiment."

Copy of Order Telling of Commend Received Here.

An order telling how Gen. Pershing praised the discipline and morale of the 354th Infantry, an Eighty-ninth (Camp Funston) Division regiment containing many St. Louisans, was posted at regimental headquarters in Treves, Germany, March 14, and a copy has been received here. It follows:

"The Commander in Chief arrived in Treves at 11:30 a. m. yesterday and remained until this morning, when he proceeded to Coblenz. While here he inspected the troops and all charitable associations, and expressed himself as well pleased with conditions at Treves. He especially complimented Col. Conrad S. Babcock, headquarters commandant, on the appearance of his regiment, the 354th Infantry, and the other troops stationed in Treves, on their splendid showing as to discipline and morale.

Fewer Stars, More Fighting Will Be Seen at S. B. A. C.

Principals in All of the Bouts Here Tonight Are Known as "Go-Getters."

TWO NAVY MEN ON CARD

Schneider and Bandy Both Gained Experience While Helping U. S.

Tonight's Fight Card At South Broadway A. C.

Kid Bandy vs. Orb Jolly, both of St. Louis, 8 rounds, 133 pounds.
Stanley Everett, Peoria, vs. Eddie Meier, 8 rounds, 118 pounds.
Leo Schneider vs. "Red" Johnson, both of St. Louis, 8 rounds, 125 pounds.
Referee—Walter Heisner.

With the so-called "tars," either local or foreign, on tonights boxing card at the South Broadway Athletic Club, members will probably be regaled with plenty of hard and earnest fighting, with a minimum of prancing and time-wasting frills.

The principals in each of the three events scheduled are known to be earnest young workmen, none having ever been accused of pulling or stalling or otherwise incurring public displeasure.

The nearest thing to a main event appears to be the Orb Jolly-Kid Bandy battle, in which artillery exchanges of heavy caliber guns may be looked for. Bandy, prior to his sojourn in the navy, was a freight handler, rugged and rough, who wielded a mean mitt when in the ring, with an utter disregard for his opponent's beauty. He is no Packey McFarland for cleverness, but there is never any doubt about what he is in the ring, for, when he fights, Orb Jolly is an improving lightweight who will give an excellent account of himself.

Schneider Has Improved.

Leo Schneider, who was an instructor at Great Lakes, is a clever boxer. Leo used to think a fight was a marathon race. When encountering one he was always on his way, with the enemy in full pursuit. Later he conquered this tap and getaway style and settled down to real fighting. He is considered a first class man and was mentioned as a member of the team to represent the navy in London, last December.

"Red" Johnson is a graduate of the amateur class. He packs a dangerous kick, but has not hurt many opponents with it, thus far.

Stanley Everett and Eddie Meier gave such a rousing exhibition on the occasion of their last meeting that the members know what to expect of this pair.

That Regan Match Mystery.

The next appearance of Kid Regan (Charley Crouse) is still shrouded in mystery, thanks to the counterming of enemy promoters. Regan is esteemed the best local drawing card and therefore the South Broadway, the Rialto and the Future City A. C. are all on the trail of Charles.

Crouse had promised April 15 to the South Broadway, but in view of the smallness of the clubhouse Matchmaker Uhlmeyer decided to waive claim to the date, if Regan desired a Coliseum or other engagement. This left the Rialto Club and the Future City to fight it out. Future City now has the call, but seems unable to get Kid Herman for the date, April 22. On April 21 Herman is scheduled to fight Johnny Ertle and he'll hardly be able to take notice of much the following day.

Amateur Show at Eagles' Hall.

The Nordwest Turn and Leiderkrantz Association will hold a boxing show at the Eagles' Hall, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, April 25. Five bouts will be scheduled. Membership cards may be obtained under the usual conditions, before 6 p. m. the night of the show. The maximum price is 55 cents.

SANTA MONICA WINNER AND RUNNER UP ENTER LIBERTY SWEEPSTAKES

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 8.—The two Chevrolet specials which roared into first and second places in the recent Santa Monica road race of 250 miles, will attempt to repeat the stunt in the 500-mile Liberty Sweepstakes at Indianapolis on May 31. R. Clifford Durant, the Oakland, Cal., millionaire owner of the pair of cars, was the first to enter the speedway's race for $50,000 and today he filed the second entry, naming the veteran, Eddie Hearne, who drove to second place behind Durant in the Western road race, as the pilot.

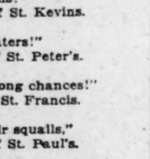

That Hearne can make his car do tricks was shown in the first race in which he took the Chevrolet No. 2, as he went through the race without a stop. Durant had the faster car and nosed Hearne out, despite a loss of 22 seconds at the pits in two stops. The car was new to Hearne at the time, and since the Santa Monica race has thus overhauled the racer and claims to have put about five miles an hour more under the bonnet and to be in a position to give his "boss" the battle of his career.

The engine of the car is almost up to the maximum allowed for the race of 300 cubic inches piston displacement, having a bore of 3 12-16 inches and a stroke of 6¾ inches, giving a displacement of 299.6 cubic inches.

Durant writes that the cars will be shipped from the Oakland factory of the Chevrolet Motor Co. on April 14, and that he and Hearne expect to reach Indianapolis about May 1 to start tuning up on the bricks and trying the cars out for their dash of 500 miles to the tune of $100 per mile.

Browns' Catchers Batted Only .219 and Were Last in Fielding Form

Detroit	38	135	8	.217	266	.969
Washington	24	67	5	.193	152	.963

This is the third of a series of articles comparing the various major league clubs in all departments. The fourth article, regarding the American League pitchers will be published tomorrow.

No. 3—A. L. Catchers Compared

Despite the fact that the trio of Browns' catchers last season hit only .219, Josh Billings, Walter Mayer and Hank Severeid are expected to do better the coming campaign. Comparing the Browns' receivers with those of the other clubs is a hard proposition, inasmuch as two of them did little chatching in 1918, while Severeid was ill at the start of the campaign.

Billings last year did not compete in enough games with Cleveland to get into the record books. However, in 1917 he batted 129 times. Mayer had only a few chances with the Red Sox, while Severeid took part in 51 games. The trio fielded .961, which is the poorest mark of any set of receivers in the league.

Ruel a .300 Hitter?

As was the case with the infielders, the New York catchers are in front in batting, with .253. However, Muddy Ruel, the St. Louis boy, is figured on a .300 average in the Southern League in 1917, and Baldwin, another rookie, is counted on his 1917 mark in the Coast League. Hannah is the only maskman who was with the team all of 1918, who is again with Huggins. The trio fielded .979.

However, on purely major league standards, the Cleveland Indians have the best of it, with Steve O'Neill, Chet Thomas and Les Nunamaker, the former Brown, who was the best hitting catcher in the Ban Johnson circuit in 1918. This trio also ranks well up in assists, with 286, which shows that all three own good throwing arms. O'Neill, in 1918, had 154 assists and was the leader in this line.

O'Neill's total was 41 more than was credited the Browns' trio, with Billings getting 51, Severeid 44 and Mayer 18. Eddie Ainsmith, now with the Tigers, was next to O'Neill in throwing, with 131 assists, while Ray Schalk, generally rated as the best receiver in the league, had 114.

Washington Poorly Equiped.

Washington, with Picinich, a youngster, late of the Southern League, who a few seasons ago had a tryout with Connie Mack, and Sam Agnew, the ex-Brownie, to do the bulk of the work, has the poorest hitting staff in the league, the pair getting an average of only .193. Gharrity is Griff's third catcher.

Base stealing is almost a lost art with the catchers, Ray Schalk of the White Sox being the leader in this line, with 12. Lynn stole one, which places Gleason's men high, with 13. Severeid last year stole four hassocks, Billings two in 1917, while Mayer did not pilfer last year.

ALEXANDER'S BACKSTOP, LLOYD WAITE, ST. LOUIS, RECOVERING FROM SHOCK

First Lieut. Lloyd Waite, the St. Louis boy who did most of the receiving for Pitcher Grover Cleveland Alexander in games played in France by the Eighty-ninth Division baseball team, has recovered from shell shock and minor injuries suffered in France and will be able to play ball in the near future, according to his father.

The elder Waite told the Post-Dispatch that his son, following his return from abroad, was sent to Tony Steuver's ranch, Raymondville, Tex., to recuperate. He has so far recovered that he is now en route home, via the horseback route. Raymondville is near Brownsville, Tex.

Waite was formerly a catcher in the American Association. He was a member of the 342d Regiment, Battery E, 7-inch guns. He participated in the St. Mihl drive as acting captain under Acting Maj. Eddie Handian of this city.

A big shell from the Metz forts exploded near Waite and hurled him on a pile of rocks, inflicting minor injuries and shocking him severely.

CLEVELAND NINE WILL PLAY PRINCIPIA TODAY

Cleveland High School will play its second game of the season this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, when Coach Guy's men meet Principia at the Cleveland campus. Principia has not yet figured in a contest this season, so that the strength of the team is virtually unknown. Bogel, however, captain of the team, is twirling his second year, and is likely to prove the main strength of Coach McRoberts. McCandless will do the receiving for Bogel.

Cliff Placke, Cleveland's best pitcher, will probably watch the game from the bench. Cliff worked in a game last Saturday. He is expected to perform against George Keck of Kirkwood tomorrow. Coates, a youngster, whom Coach Guy has been developing, will start the game, with Eddie Gregg, a veteran of last year, behind the bat.

AMERICAN CREW WILL COMPETE IN REGATTA ON SEINE, APRIL 28

PARIS, April 8.—The American crew which is to compete in the French interallied eight-oared race, April 28, will be made up of some of the best-known oarsmen of American universities, the captain being C. D. Wiman, artillery, Yale 'Varsity, 1915. Capt. Wiman asked that, inasmuch as merely elimination trials are being held at present and as, therefore, the crew which will appear in the big event has not yet been picked, the names of the oarsmen be withheld until a final selection has been made.

The race will be over a course of 2500 meters down the Seine, starting at the Pont Royal and finishing at the Pont de l'Alma, and passing under four bridges, including the famous Alexander III Bridge.

The obstacles of the race will make it more spectacular, the space under the arches of the bridges permitting only two crews to pass under an arch at the same time. The pont Royal, having only three arches, the coxswains will have to do some clever jockeying and maneuvering and a lively sprint can be looked for at the takeoff.

The crews will use off-center sliding seat lapstreak barges, with Belgian tholes. The boats are somewhat heavier than those to which American and English rowing men are accustomed.

Lowdermilk Will Be Asked to Hurl 9 Innings Today

Burke Will Test Tall Right-Hander's Arm Against Weak Tulsa Team.

TULSA, Ok., April 8.—Somewhat weary from their journey over a road which imparted to the train the motions of a liner floundering at sea, the Browns arrived in Tulsa this forenoon. Two games are to be played here, and tomorrow night the club will leave for St. Louis ready to step into the city series with a snap and vim which betokens good results.

Grover Lowdermilk is to pitch the full nine innings today, and upon his success or failure depends a great deal, for his arm has been bothering him again. If it has returned to form, well and good; if not, then Burke must look elsewhere for help.

The hitting of "Baby Doll" Jacobson has featured the last few days, not that it counted greatly in the results, but Jake has located the ball and it is Burke's belief that this boy will hit well over the .300 mark this season.

Outfield Hitting Well.

Jacobson appears to have clinched a regular place in the outfield. Kenneth Williams has fallen low in his batting, but this need not discourage the fans. Williams has been bothered with a sore arm. Now that this has apparently been restored to normal, the former Pacific Coast Leaguer is due to regain his natural hitting ability. All of the others in the outfield, Demmitt, Tobin and Smith, are hitting well.

Bronkie Clouts the Ball.

Bronkie is surprising everyone by his hitting and if he can keep this up he will beat Austin out of a regular job at third. However, Burke has not picked his man, yet, and any report to the contrary is not authorized by the manager.

The Browns have struck summer weather of a real sort now. The thermometer has the past few days been around 85 during the afternoon.

Tom Rogers yesterday showed that he is ready for the season by holding the Fort Worth Panthers to four hits. Sisler had a great day at bat, getting a single, a double and a triple in three times up.

MUNICIPAL BASEBALL OFFICIALS WILL MEET

Officials of the Municipal Baseball Association will hold a meeting at Room 330 Municipal Courts Building tonight, when final plans for the opening of the season, April 26 and 27, will be made. A constitution and by-laws will be adopted, officers elected and grounds for the campaign assigned.

Sunday Baseball Bill in New York Goes to Governor for His Signature

With the Senate and the Assembly in New York both passing the Sunday baseball bill, which would allow local municipal authorities to decide whether professional games should be played on Sunday afternoons, the bill now goes to the Governor for his signature. The bill was passed in the Senate by a 28-to-21 vote last week, while the Assembly yesterday passed it, 82 to 60.

If the Governor signs the measure, New York will see major league contests on Sundays the coming season.

Red Sox Defeat Giants.

With Carl Mays and Joe Bush on hurling hill, the world's champion Red Sox defeated the Giants in an exhibition contest at Gainsville, Fla., yesterday, 4—2. Mays and Bush were found for eight safeties, while Causey and Steele, hurling for McGraw's men, yielded a like number.

Tigers Nose Out Braves.

The Detroit Tigers, bumping Dick Rudolph and Ray Keating, veteran righthanders, for 11 safeties, yesterday nosed out the Boston Braves, 6—5. Bill James and Eric Erickson twirled for Jennings and were found for eight safe raps.

Shellenback and Kerr Win.

Shellenback, a righthander, and Dick Kerr, the southpaw, who at one time was given a tryout by the Browns, yesterday pitched the White Sox to a 5—1 victory over Texas University. The major league flingers gave the collegians only six hits.

Reds Win From Dallas.

Mack's Team Is Beaten.

Connie Mack's Athletics were defeated, 6—5, by the Baltimore club of the International League. Mack used Anderson, Grevel and Gullman, three of his rookie flingers, and they were rapped safely eight times.

Malone Playing Second.

With Ray Schmandt, the St. Louis boy, out of the Superba lineup for at least six weeks because of an injury, Lew Malone, who was with the Athletics a few seasons ago, is playing second base for the Superbas. Malone has shown surprising form. Another feature of the Brooklyn workouts, has been the heavy hitting of Catcher Ernie Krueger.

Doug Baird Recovers.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON TO VISIT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., April 8.—Sir Thomas J. Lipton has changed the deed of gift of the Lipton trophy for Class R yachts so that the annual race for this championship cup will be held here this summer off Rocky River, according to a telegram received yesterday from H. A. Parsons, representative of the Cleveland Yacht Club, who had been in conference with Sir Thomas. The message added that Sir Thomas will visit this city as a guest of the Cleveland Yacht Club. The date was not announced.

Tourney Committee Named.

Glen Brown, Joe Zeuschel and T. J. Oswald were selected as a Tournament Committee by the Municipal Tennis Association at a meeting held last night. This trio will have charge of arranging all events to be held by the Municipal Association the coming season.

Britton and Downey Draw.

Brooklyn's Wonderful Pitching Staff May Make Flag Factor of Weak Team

"Dope" Indicates Cadore, Pfeffer, Grimes, Mamaux, Smith, Cheney and Marquard Can Hold Their Own Even With Cubs' Mound Men.

With this article begins a series of "Get Acquainted" stories of the 1919 major league baseball clubs, designed to give Post-Dispatch readers an idea of the various teams as they will take the field for the first after-the-war championship campaign. The next article will appear tomorrow.

No. 1—THE BROOKLYN CLUB
By John E. Wray.

YOU need not lamp portly Manager Robinson to arrive at the conclusion that the Brooklyn baseball club has the well-remembered "fat chance" to win the National League pennant, this year. A look at the composition of the infield and outfield may lead observers to the same conclusion.

And yet, put the brakes on your quick judgment, in the matter of this club. It will be remembered that the Brooklyn club won in 1916 when its outlook seemed equally adipose; and that the champion Cubs of last year were generally esteemed an aggregation of misfits of hopeless quality when the season began—with the exception of the PITCHERS.

And it is in this year's pitchers that Brooklyn's hope of developing pennant proportions must rest. For, in the assemblage of baseball talent now under the wing of Robinson extremes meet—the zenith being attained by his hurlers and the nadir by his infield.

Three St. Louisans on Roster.

St. Louis will be keenly interested in any success of this club, since three of its home baseball graduates are candidates for regular berths—Ray Schmand, Ollie O'Mara and "Chuck" Ward—the last named being still overseas.

It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that all three of these players find places on the infield, Schmandt at first, O'Mara at short and Ward at third. This, of course, would send Ivey Olsen to second base.

Ray Schmandt, however, will not be able to do duty again for six weeks—and perhaps not then. Leo Erazill made a temporary place for himself when recently he spiked Schmandt on the instep, an injury that Manager Robinson declared was the worst of the sort he had ever seen, but since that time Malone, formerly with Connie Mack, seems to have displaced the rookie. With "Chuck" Ward not yet out of the service, this leaves a very weak infield, with Jimmy Johnston at first, Malone at second, O'Mara at short and Olsen at third. Brazill has done very well in camp, but his lack of major experience will handicap him. He comes from Spangler, Pa., and is only 19 years of age. It is unlikely that he will crowd out Malone and occupy the first-line trench, his first season.

This infield will frighten no one. Still, the same was said of the Cubs' infield, last year, which consisted of the catchoffs, Deal, Pick and Merkle, and an unknown (then), Hollocher. It is possible, though improbable, that Brazill or Lewis Malone will develop into a whirlwind of the Hollocher stripe for Robinson; but don't hock the family plate to bet on it. In fact, the infield is the tender spot on this team.

Schmandt Hit .305 in 1918.

The best hitting combination would be Johnston (.281), Schmandt (.305), Ward (.336) and Olson (.239)—two live ones and two "crappies." Still, if the good hitters could live up to their best notch, the average would not be bad—about .260.

The best outfield would be developed by shifting Johnston there, and moving Schmandt to first base. This would place Johnston, Griffith and Zach Wheat in the gardens, with an average hitting punch of .293—which is good enough for anybody's club, from a mere hitting standpoint. Zach Wheat was the big "ace" last year, with a mark of .335. He has been knocking at the door of the league leadership for some time and is undoubtedly a great asset.

Krueger and Miller are good enough catchers, although Miller hit less than .200 last season.

Thus far, the club shows some good hitting, but not well-balanced batting prowess, on the attack, and just an ordinary quality on defense. It needs some superhuman help from the pitching, to get within telescope distance of the pennant—and superhuman hurling it will get, unless all signs fail.

The Brooklyn club is just as well, if not better, equipped with pitchers than the Chicago Cubs—the envy of all major league managers, this year, with Alexander returning. It would be hard to find a finer assortment of left and right handers than Cadore, Pfeffer, Mamaux, Smith, Grimes, Cheney and Marquard. If Brooklyn is to prove a losing club, it will probably set a record for one-run or low-score defeats. This pitching staff's capabilities are mere guesswork; but with good assistance from the hitting aces, Robinson need not feel at all discouraged. It is good enough to flirt mediocrity out of the second division.

Mamaux, a wild man, temperamentally, has married and presumably settled down. At his best he is a wonderful hurler and quite the equal of his brethren.

The club sent 18 men to the service, of which 13 have returned. The others, Sherrod Smith, Clarence Mitchell, Charles Ward, John Miljus and T. W. Fitzsimmons, are expected home shortly.

Snyder to Report in a Short Time

Cardinals' Star Catcher Was Discharged From Army at Fort Worth Yesterday.

Manager Branch Rickey returned to the city this morning after a three-day absence, and took charge of his dwindling squad of Cardinals in their before-noon workout at Robison Field.

There was no significance to Rickey's trip in regard to his team, as the Knot Hole leader visited his home to adjust some personal affairs.

Five members of last week's squad have already departed for other ball parks, or will do so today. Brown and Summa are now en route to Mobile. Larmore and Doyle, two local infielders, have been farmed to the Houston (Texas League) club, and Hes Walsh will report for duty at Little Rock. Walsh has been the property of the Little Rock team since last year, but was just working out with the Cardinals.

It was announced that these are the only releases to date. Several other youngsters will be sent out for further seasoning.

The news from Fort Worth that Frank Snyder had been discharged from the army was received joyfully by the Cardinal management. The husky backstop will report to the club in a few days, inasmuch as he intends to visit his family in San Antonio before coming North.

Joe Sugden had the squad in charge yesterday and sent it through a three-hour session. The pitchers came in for the largest share of attention.

BRESNAHAN FACES LOSS OF TOLEDO FRANCHISE

TOLEDO, O., April 8.—A meeting of stockholders of the Toledo American Association Baseball Club called by President Thomas J. Hickey for today is expected to take definite action relative to the financing of the local club.

President Hickey, after a conference with Roger Bresnahan, president and majority stockholder of the Toledo Club, announced that Bresnahan had nothing new to offer and reiterated his statement that if the necessary support was not forthcoming the franchise would be transferred to another city.

Bresnahan is in financial difficulty and the stockholders, nearly all wealthy men, have refused to give him further support. They declare that he has not been successful as a minor league manager. On the other hand Bresnahan wants the stockholders to turn their holdings over to another group of men who are willing to assist him financially.

HAND GRENADE EVENT DROPPED BY BIG TEN

CHICAGO, April 8.—The graduate Managers Committee of the Western Conference at a meeting yesterday decided to eliminate the hand grenade event from future athletic meets. It was also decided that the javelin should be thrown from the middle and not the end. The elimination of the hand grenade in field events is due to the committee opinion that with the war over, it has no place on an athletic program.

Avery Brundage was re-elected president and Warren D. Howe, secretary and treasurer.

MISSOURI IN TWO RACES

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Approximately 400 teams representing 68 colleges, 51 preparatory schools and 107 high schools and more than 80 grammar and parochial schools are entered in the University of Pennsylvania relay races and other track and field sports April 25 and 26. Missouri University is entered in the one-mile relay and the sprint medley relay.

College Notes

Cornell has ratified in principle the proposed quadrangular alliance which will bring together Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Dartmouth. The covenant of the league proposes football games between Penn, Cornell and Dartmouth, with Columbia later participating when the faculty lifts the ban on "big games." All other sports will be sponsored. A tentative constitution has been sent to the four schools.

Boynton Returns to School.

The news that "Chuck" Boynton would return to school in the fall has been joyfully received by students at Williams College. Boynton is in the aviation service. He was selected all-American quarterback in 1917, is shortstop of the baseball nine, and a star guard on the basketball team.

Colgate Has Seven Games.

Colgate's most pretentious football schedule has been announced. The wearers of the maroon will play in seven games, five of which are of major importance. The schedule includes contests with Brown, Cornell, Princeton, Dartmouth, Syracuse, Susquehanna and Rochester.

Yale Track Squad Small.

Coach Johnny Mack of the Yale team has sent out an S. O. S. call because of the scantity of the squad which has reported to him. Fewer men are out for Yale's track team than have reported within the past 10 years.

WEBSTER HIGH GIRLS CLAIM BASKET TITLE

It was announced at Webster Groves High School today that the Webster girls basketball team claimed the county title, owing to the default of the Kirkwood High School girls team.

The Kirkwood and Webster fives both finished the season with a record of 8 games won and 2 games lost. It was agreed to play a deciding contest; but after Kirkwood defaulted twice, the last occasion being yesterday, the Webster girls decided to claim the county School championship.

11 NEW YORK BOXERS IN AMATEUR TITLE TOURNEY

BOSTON, April 8.—The National Amateur Boxing Championship tournament was brought to the semi-final round by the preliminary competition last night. As a result of the bouts and defaults recorded in the eight classes in which titles will be determined tonight the cities represented had the following number of entrants still in the competition: New York, 11; Pittsburg, 8; Boston, 7; Denver, 2; Navy, 2; New Orleans, 1, and Brockton, 1.

Two Local Rowing Clubs Will Enter National Regatta

Crews to Be Sent by Western and Century Dependent on Season's Work.

WORCESTER SITE NAMED

Lake Quinsigamon Course Improved by Removal of Stone Causeway.

Rowing appears to be due for a big revival in St. Louis this year, with seven clubs planning crews for local and Central States events, and two clubs looking forward to the National Regatta at Worcester, Mass., Aug. 9-10. The Western Rowing Club has decided to send one entry to the National, the records made by its crews during the coming season determining whether it sends a four, an eight or a single oarsman, while Century will be represented provided the green and white oarsmen show themselves capable in local regattas.

The last National Regatta figured in by a St. Louis crew took place in Duluth in 1917. At that race, Harry Allen's Century boys were bested in the eight and four oared races by Ten Eyck's Duluth oarsmen. The St. Louis entry drew second place.

Worcester Has Good Course.

The National Rowing Association has selected Worchester, Mass., as the scene of the national races this year, according to John Schaab, president of the Southwestern Rowing Association. Philadelphia also bid strongly for the regatta. In previous years, rowing clubs have looked askance at the Worcester course, because a stone obstruction just across the finish line made it necessary for a crew to throw out its oars or smash after finishing a race. So many shells were broken that Worcester became unpopular in spite of the surprising smoothness of the course. The offending rocks were removed this spring, however, so that now Worcester has the finest stretch of water for shell racing in America.

The Central States Association will stage its annual regatta in Chicago this year, provided the Government turns over to them the Municipal Pier, which has been used during the war in connection with navy work. Every club on the river except Century expects to be represented at this regatta. Century is not a member of the Central States Association, although it is rumored that they expect to join before the season opens.

On the Eve of the Great Argonne-Meuse Battle---Every Man Ready ping or mining, wire-works are passed over and forgotten and the field is won or lost above ground and out in the open.

Importance of Argonne Offensive.

The offensive started by American troops in the Argonne on Sept. 26 was a part of the great battle plan of Gen. Foch. It was perhaps the most essential piece on the whole battle line of similar length. The allies had been pinching the enemy out of one place and luring him into another, until his lines were in what military men considered an untenable position. He had adventured too far to maintain himself as such distance from his bases against the allies, strengthened as they were in men, munitions and morale.

The operation had been set, tentatively, for the spring of 1919, but the ease with which the St. Mihiel salient was reduced, the obvious weakening of the enemy before the British in the north of France, and the success of the allied attacks which followed the retreat of the foe from the Marne, all combined to convince Gen. Foch that he had an excellent opportunity to force a decision in what was left of the fall of 1918. His strategy, as daring in 1918 as it had been in 1914 at the first battle of the Marne, lent itself with particular fitness to such an alluring scheme. So he set the forces of the allied armies to the task of preparing for war's last great battle.

Menaced German Communications.

At the conference of allied leaders when the great general attack was planned, the French commander in chief asked:

"Where will the American army fight in this battle?"

"Wherever you wish it to fight," Gen. Pershing replied.

Gen. Foch then indicated the line between the Meuse and the Argonne, and asked if they would take that part of the line. Gen. Pershing assented. It was the part of the line where the heaviest fighting undoubtedly would be if the battle plans worked out, and if the judgment of military men proved true. Every officer present knew that. The allies were at a point in the operation where a continuation of their strokes would drive the enemy out of France, or he would suffer disaster, possibly annihiliation of his armies in the field. To get his armies out, he must maintain his communications, the four-track railroad at Mezieres, in front of us, and the business of the Americans was to threaten, and if possible to cut his comunications.

It was a field where there was a certainty of the hardest fighting. It was probable that the Germans would bring their best battalions there to make the vital fight. As a consequence, there could be no spectacular gains on the American front. Every foot of ground would be contested bitterly, and those who advanced must pay the price. While on other fronts, large and glittering gains would be made in a day, it would be against a retreating foe, and he would be retreating all the more hurriedly because of the pressure the Americans were bringing on his vitals. The enemy could not retreat on our front. If he did, we would cut his railroads and the French and British to the west of us would capture his armies. It was with a full understanding of what was ahead that the American commander took this post of high honor, where hard blows were to be given and taken, and where there was little to gain.

How the Thirty-fifth Was Placed.

The battle order was considered a model of conciseness, but it was a voluminous thing at that. The advance was to be made by nine divisions on a 16-mile front at the same moment, 5:30 a. m. after artillery preparation of varying duration and density at various parts of the line. The First Army (American) which was under command of Gen. Pershing, in person had three corps in the line, each composed of three divisions. The First Corps, to which the Thirty-fifth was attached, was on the left. The Thirty-fifth was the right hand division of the corps. It had about two miles of front. On the Thirty-fifth's left was its corps-mate, the Twenty-eighth Division. On the Thirty-fifth's right was the Ninety-first Division of the Fifth Corps.

The country lying in front of the Thirty-fifth, and through which it was to advance, was as difficult as any on the American front, and in some ways, the task was the most desperate of all. Two kilometers out from the stepping off place was the Hindenburg Line most heavily wired and prepared for defense in every way the four years of war had taught the Germans. I am writing now of what was known before the battle.

Just in front of the Hindenburg Line, the defensive works mingling with and making it part of the line, was Vauquois Hill, a place of sad and sanguinary memory. The French had never been able to retake it at the price they were willing to pay, and many troops had been lost in fruitless attempts. A high French officer told me their losses there probably totaled 40,000. It was known to be thoroughly mined, to have excavations and tunnels of great length for quick communication and transferral of troops from one point to another. It had once been covered with trees for the most part, but these were now merely shattered stumps, so much artillery fire had been addressed to it.

The Ouvrage d'Aden was known to be a strong point alongside the secondary road, and the town of Cheppy was strongly organized for defense.

Students of French history will remember that when the French revolution was brewing and occasionally becoming threatening, Louis XVI and Marie Antoniette endeavored to escape from France, and that they got as far as Varennes, where the Postmaster's son, consulting the monarch's picture on a coin, recognized the royal fugitives and stopped the carriage at the bridge, turning them back to Paris and, eventually, to the executioner. The Thirty-fifth Division's left flank was to go through Varennes and by the eastern end of the bridge. The Twenty-eighth had the other side of the river.

The other towns we were to take, Cheppy, Very, Charpentry, Baulhy and Exermont, Fleville, etc., were typical French villages, which in peace times had been the homes of the farmers tending the adjoining acres, and the little shops where they traded. Each village, of course, had a church of more or less importance. Since the beginning of the war, there had been few if any civilians in the territory. Those who could had escaped into the French lines. Those who could not had been sent further north and east by the German invaders.

The course laid out for the Thirty-fifth was in the valley of the Aire with occasional hills, and sufficient clumps of trees and brush to afford excellent cover for machine gun nests. As a rule, it was open country. The main road from Neuvilly to Varennes, and thence through Baulny to Exermont had been an excellent one, a national highway, before the war.

Important Changes in Officers.

Shortly before the battle radical changes were made in the officer personnel. Brigadier-General Nathaniel F. McClure, who had commanded the division for more than a month in the Vosges, and who commanded the Sixty-ninth Brigade up to Sept. 21, was relieved on that date, and Brigadier-General (then Colonel) Louis M. Nuttman put in command. Brigadier-General Charles I. Martin, who had commanded the Kansas National Guard on the border and who had commanded the Seventieth Brigade since its formation, was relieved, also on Sept. 21, and he was replaced by Col. Kirby Walker. The 138th Infantry had had many leaders. Col. Edmund J. McMahon, who brought it over, was relieved July 25, Col. George P. White taking his place and holding it until Sept. 14, when he was relieved by his Lieutenant-Colonel, Henry W. Parker, who was in turn displaced by Col. Harry Howland the day before the fight. Lieutenant-Colonel Carl Ristine took over the 139th Infantry Sept. 21 and Lieutenant-Colonel Channing E. Delaplane took command of the 140th Infantry on Sept. 22. Col. Frank Rumbold was relieved of his command of the 128th Field Artillery on Sept. 24, two days before the fight.

Machine Gun Units Placed.

The plan of battle was for the infantry to advance in column of brigades, with the Sixty-ninth Brigade leading. The regiments were to advance abreast within the brigades, each with one battalion in the front line, one in support and one in reserve. From each of the two rear battalions two companies were sent forward and attached to the front battalions. Two of these were to mop up Vauquois Hill and the other two were to perform a similar service for the Rossignol Wood.

The machine gun companies were scattered about in advantageous positions. One battalion and one company were in position on Hill 253, Mamelon Blanc and La Maize, a similar number were in position at Buzemont, two companies were in the rear of the support line ready to take position on Hill 239, while four companies were attached to the front line battalions ready for the advance.

A company of engineers was to go with the leading brigade to cut wire, two platoons were to accompany the moppers up, and one company, less one platoon, was to accompany the tanks. The 344th Tank Battalion was distributed along the front ready for the advance.

The First Aero Squadron was attached to the Thirty-fifth Division for the action, and it was provided that at least one plane was to be constantly over the division sector. The Second Balloon Company also was attached to the division.

One squadron of cavalry was assembled south of Aubreville, with scouts assigned to accompany the rear elements of the infantry.

The Sixtieth Field Artillery was reinforced by the 219th R. A. C. and the 282d, 317th and 451st R. A. L., and one battery of light artillery was to go with the advance to be used as forward guns. These are French artillery regiments, the first one light, the last three heavy.

Two days' "iron" (emergency) rations were served to all men, and the night of Sept. 25 found everybody on his toes.

VAUQUOIS.

VAUQUOIS may be taken as the perfect example of German fortification, combining an elaborate trench system with the use of mines..

(1) The trenches, during the day, are occupied by sentinels, as few as are absolutely essential. The garrison is in deep dugouts affording protection from our largest shells. These are very comfortably equipped, having electricity, water supply and kitchens close at hand. All necessary supplies are brought in by a railroad. On the slightest signal, everyone can be at his post of combat.

(2) The fortress of VAUQUOIS, dominating the plain for 100 miles, is one of the points on the front where the Germans have installed themselves with great thoroughness.

In the defensive system of VAUQUOIS mines figured very prominently throguhout 1916, and the beginning of 1917. Since the month of June, 1917, mining activity has steadily decreased. At the present date galleries are known to be in existence, but there have been no recent explosions.

From captured documents dated December, 1917, it appears that VAUQUOIS must be held at any cost.

If the tactical situation eventually necessitates a retirement, the Commandant of VAUQUOIS is ordered to blow up all mined galleries.

The garrison of VAUQUOIS, consisting of 18 officers and about 1370 men, is composed of as follows:

1 Bn. Infantry	6 Off.	Approx. 750 men
½ Co. Regtl. Pioneers	1 Off.	Approx. 100 men
1-3 Co. Div. Engrs.	1 Off.	Approx. 70 men
1Co. of the 30th Bn. of Pioneers, sector troops, of which the rear echelon, about 100 men, is at VARENNES	1 Off.	Approx. 130 men
M. K. 392 (Mining Co.) sector troops, of which the rear echelon, about 80 men, is at VARENNES or CHEPPY	2 Off.	Approx. 100 men
M. K. 298, sector troops, of which the rear echelon, about 80 men, is at VARENNES or CHEPPY	2 Off.	Approx. 100 men
1 Co. heavy machine guns	4 Off.	Approx. 100 men
1 Detachment of M. W. from the Div. Co. of M. W's.	1 Off.	Approx. 20 men
Total	18 Off.	Approx. 1370 men

DUGOUTS:

Most of the dugouts are situated on the slopes N. of VAUQUOIS, between Hills 265 and 270.

COMMUNICATION TRENCHES AND TRACKS:

Two important communication trenches enter VAUQUOIS from the W.; the Boyau de GRATZ and the Boyau d' AGREM. These lead to a point to about 100 m. from the entrances to the dugouts. From this point the reliefs come across open ground to the foot of the ladders which lead to the tunnels of the dugouts.

The VARENNES-VAUQUOIS road seems to be the one most used. The paths alongside of the Boyau de GRATZ are also much frequented.

RAILWAYS:

A narrow guage railway leads from VARENNES to VAUQUOIS over the VARENNES-Pont des QUATRE ENFANTS road as far as the BOUREVILLES road. A branch line leads to the Pioneer depot. Another branch line leads to the Bois du GRAND BEC to supply the ammunition depot.

ELECTRICITY:

The electricity for VAUQUOIS is furnished by a power house installed in the caves of the Moulin VARENNES. The current is transported to VAUQUOIS by two isolated cables 15 mm. in diameter, fixed on posts 1m. high; these cables leaving the Moulin cross the fields to the S. and follow the river as far as the Pont des PIONNIERS 1 km. from VAUQUOIS. From there the cables pass to the S. of Hill 213, across the Boyau de EUNUQUES, and through the Bois du ROSSIGNOL. From there the cables follow the line of the Boyau de GRATZ into VAUQUOIS.

TUNNELS:

The tunnels opening on the N. slope of VAUQUOIS come out on the perpendicular line of the second trench. Shafts about 15m. deep, in which ladders are placed, constitute the means of communication between the tunnels and the trench. These tunnels were constructed by an electric drill. The tunnels are 1½ to 2 m. wide. The walls are not propped except in a few places where there is risk of them falling in. The exit of the shafts is protected by a roof consisting of a bed of rails covered with a slab of reinforced concrete and a layer of sand bags. There are probably 4 tunnels in actual use now. Dugouts have been built on the right and on the left by simply enlarging the tunnel.

TRENCHES:

The trenches of the front line, often not well kept up, are only occupied by sentinels. The trench of the second line is reinforced with brick on the side towards the enemy. In the parapet steel plates are embedded about 4 to 5 mm. thick, containing loopholes. Empty sand bags conceal these steel plates from view. The Germans use less sand bags for reinforcing their parapets than the French. A good number of the trenches are covered.

"H" COMPANYS' FINE RAID

100 DEAD LEFT IN VOSGES

IN RESERVE AT ST. MIHIEL

Hurried Movement by Train and Truck Up to the Region Where the War Was to Be Decided—Gruelling Hikes and Sleepless Nights Under Shell Fire.

THE Americans changed the quiet Vosges sector to a fairly lively one. They had men to be trained, battalions to be blooded, schemes to try and nerves to test. How were they going to do it?

Soon after the Thirty-Fifth Division entered the trenches big raids were authorized and some highly successful ones were put across. The 138th Regiment made a gorgeous sally into enemy territory just before nightfall on July 6, across the top of Hilselfirst Mountain. It was a most impressive entry of a fine regiment into the war.

Five days before the raid H Company was taken out of the line to a well protected slope several kilometers in the rear, and a trench system as nearly as possible a duplicate of the one to be attacked, was constructed there. The engineers designed the practice trenches from airplane photographs. Here the raid was rehearsed under command of Lieut. William H. Leahy, who was to lead it, and the Lieutenants who were to assist him.

The rehearsals and the raid itself were under the general direction of Maj. Comfort, who commanded the battalion.

A bald, high, windswept hill was the scene of the real raid. Across the top ran the two trenches. On the German side of the line, on either side of the brow, communicating trenches led backward to join, like the stem of a V, some 800 yards down the steep side of the mountain. In the middle area of the V, along both branches, and just below the point, it was known that there were German dugouts, strong points, and possibly stores. The brow of Hilsenfirst was like a great natural stage facing the Germans. The surrounding hills were spectators. The guns were the orchestra, the sky was the proscenium arch, and it was the part of our actors to advance to the front of the stage, pass through the footlights, which would be bursting shells, and play their parts all the way down the two aisles, which were the enemy's communicating trenches.

The Famous Raid by H Company.

There was 45 minutes' artillery preparation, and it was of a thoroughness and efficiency that I would not have thought possible in those mountains. How the great number of guns which opened at 7:45 that evening over were got into the hills in such positions as to range on that mountain is still a mystery to me. They opened with a roar behind the line and almost at the same time came the crash of their shells on the German positions in our front. They pounded the points we were to enter, the high explosive tore great paths through the barbed-wire entanglements, and at the end of the preparation they lifted and laid their shells on the enemy battery positions to do as much as possible to reduce the opposing fire.

From the beginning of the bombardment to the end of the raid our machine guns whined away constantly. We were using the French St. Etienne (called familiarly "Insanity Ann") but with whatever gun and on whatever field, we had no better troops than our machine-gun battalions, which had been the old Second Missouri, or the companies with the infantry. These stormy petrels of battle never were called upon in vain.

It did not take the German guns long to answer our artillery. Their fire was aimed at the top of Hilsenfirst, for the German officers knew that the preparation indicated that was the spot at which the raiders would come across. There was daylight to the end of the raid. Our 200 men had been taken to the top of Hilsenfirst before the bombardment started, and placed in dugouts there. At 8:15 p. m. they were led out by the Lieutenants to our front-line trenches, there to crouch until the "zero" hour.

Awaiting the Zero Hour.

That was the hardest time of all. Scores of German guns were shelling the brow of the hill just outside and there was no protecting shelter of a dugout roof above them. Immense shells hurtled over them with the swish of an express train, hundreds of other shells broke just in front of them beyond the wire, there was the constant hiss of machine-gun bullets, and, almost as terrifying, there was the constant roar of gun and shell. Every officer and man knew that just as soon as he climbed out of the trench he would be in the face of all that current of fire. All watches had been synchronized, and as the hand moved nearer to the set time the strain grew tenser. One man watching the face of his wrist watch in the last few minutes twice saw it disappear from sight when shell-thrown earth covered it. Every man who went over the top that evening knew into what danger he advanced.

Lieut. John Moll and his scouts who had cut the wire the night before, showed the way through the gaps, and the fighting men went out on the field. Lieut. Leahy was in command of the raid. With him on the branch of the V on our right (the point of the V was in German territory) were First Lieutenant Oliver W. Spencer and Second Lieutenant William F. Sweeney. On the other branch of the V was Second Lieutenant William S. Bryan with a platoon and a half, and Sergt. George O. von Land, with a half a platoon. First Lieutenant John E. Mitchell had charge of the 22 moppers up.

Comported Themselves Like Veterans.

Spencer and Mitchell led out their commands, and behind them came Leahy and Sweeney. On our left Bryan led the way with Von Land's party next. Into the torrent of fire the men marched like veterans. Some went down, and the stretcher-bearers gathered them up and took them back. The riflemen pressed ahead at the set speed appointed, and with a calmness and courage which could have been excelled by no troops in the world. Down the mountain side they went, some in the trench, others on either side on the surface above, every German machine gun in range trying desperately to play upon them.

Spencer's objective was the dugouts lying below the point of the V, but as he passed another cluster of dugouts on the way down, he stopped to bomb them, just to get going and to loosen up the throwing arms of his men. Mitchell and his moppers up came charging down the hill very jealously.

"Here, you quit that!" Mitchell shouted. "That's my objective. Get on down the hill where you belong." Spencer went ahead.

Spencer went on down the hill, bombed his dugouts, but found no prisoners. They had escaped or had been killed by the artillery. Mitchell took the job of handling the dugouts nearest him, and sent Sergt. Michenfelder with two men to clean up those in the middle of the field. He sent Corp. Omar Carroll with five men, including Mechanic William Hand to work on the dugouts farther up the trench. Mitchell got no prisoners. All the Germans he encountered showed fight and all were killed with pistol shots or hand grenades. Carroll and his party had great luck. They took eight prisoners and got back with five of them. One died of wounds and two were killed while trying to escape. They had fighting all the way, and killed more men than they captured.

How a Croix de Guerre Was Won.

On the other branch of the V, Lieut. Bryan's band ran onto a most active machine gun before they had progressed far. Bryan ordered his men to take cover, and he gave Sergt. Errett the task of silencing the gun. Errett took a few men armed only with pistols and hand grenades, crept forward until in range, and killed the gunners and silenced the gun with hand grenades. He did not know he was winning the Croix de Guerre, but he was. Bryan had little difficulty after that. He followed his branch of the V to its junction with the one on the right, found Spencer there and with him started back up the hill.

Sweeney had little opposition in entering the field, but on the return, when he commanded the rear guard, he was called upon to beat off a counter attack made by automatic riflemen, which he did with his own automatic rifles.

They came back up the hill, many of the men with their rifles swung over their backs, like good workmen who had finished their day's labor and were carrying their tools home.

Our losses were four men killed and 18 wounded. Seven prisoners were brought back, at least 25 of the enemy had been killed, and his dugouts, defenses and communications in the selected area had been destroyed. According to the scales of war, it was a highly profitable raid.

The 137th, not to be outdone, soon after put on a performance of its own, and reached its objectives, took prisoners and destroyed enemy strong places.

Croix de Guerre for 19 Men.

The French Government later bestowed the Croix de Guerre on the following officers and men for valor shown in the Vosges. The first 19, all of the 138th, won them in the Hilsenfurst raid: First Lieutenants William H. Leahy, John E. Mitchell and Oliver W. Spencer; Second Lieutenants William S. Bryan and William F. Sweeney; Sergts Albert Michenfelder, George O. von Land, Charles E. Newman, Peter G. Errett, Fred L. Edwards and Albert E. Elsea; Corps. Clayton H. Moore, Walter E. Ficke and L. Bartels; Privates Herman Harrison, Elmer Grupe, Joseph Reynolds, Francis M. Fierce and Fred L. Laird. Of the 137th Infantry, Capt. Roy W. Perkins and Lieut. Emil Rolfe received the same decoration, as did also Lieut. Thomas Hopkins of the 139th.

The months of July and August spent in the Vosges saw the culmination of the training period for the Thirty-fifth, for, while they held sectors of trench, there was no quieter place along the line from Switzerland to the sea except when the Americans stirred up trouble. The real business of the Americans was to fit themselves for the big fight which they knew they would get into some day.

The training in the Vosges was not of great value to the men in the Argonne battle. There they learned trench warfare, but that form of fighting was done. There were few places in the sector held by the division where it would have been possible to maneuver much more than a company of troops, and we were so near the enemy and under such constant observation that the few available open places could not be used, because such an assemblage of men would be sure to draw fire. Men in rest billets at the rear, where they went after a spell in the trenches, got some training, but it was not in the open warfare known of old.

Quietude of sectors in a war such as the great one just ended is altogether comparative, and many men of the Thirty-fifth did not know how peaceful and serene was their summer home in the high mountains until they moved into other sectors, called "lively." In later days the men of the division came to know just how grim war could be, and the Vosges became in recollection a pleasant vacation, where the hot summer days were spent in the high, cool forests.

But we left about 100 of our men there in the foothills of the Alps. They were killed in action, died of wounds or of disease or accident. I had not realized the number was so large until I came to count them up. It shows how heavy is the toll even in the quietest of sectors.

The 60th Field Artillery Brigade, which was a component of the 35th Division and which had enviously watched the infantry depart and leave the big guns behind, reached England about June 1. It landed in Liverpool, and, after a stop of a week, proceeded to France, landing at Le Havre, and proceding June 12 to Angers, where it received its equipment. From there it went to Camp Coetquidan for training. Two months were put in there getting acquainted with the guns and perfecting technique, and on Aug. 14, the artillery joined up with the division, which then had headquarters at Gerardmer.

Up to that time all artillery behind the 35th had been French. Under the French sytem, artillery units usually held their places in the mountains, because of the difficulty in moving guns into and out of the emplacements, and because of the additional value a prolonged experience gave to the gunners in that difficult territory.

The 110th Sanitary Train and the 110 Field Signal Battalion, though they had not traveled together, reached the division at the same time, June 12, and joined up at Arches.

Pleasant Days at an End.

Pleasant, easy or comfortable days for the Thirty-fifth Division had now come to an end. The men had sworn mightily at the discomforts of the Vosges, and had been much disgusted with fighting above the clouds, sleeping in old French barracks, and wearing overcoats in midsummer as the high altitude made necessary, a land where it was dusk at 9:30 p. m. and dawn at 3:30 a. m. They were also vexed with those absurd and unseen officers in high places who would not let them fight. They wanted to walk through the Boche lines and right into Germany.

A war of action had developed in the Marne Valley while the Thirty-fifth lay in the Vosges. The enemy had attacked on June 15 and had been stopped. The allied troops had attacked on July 18 and for the first time in four years, things had a very roseate glow. Gen. Pershing had applied for and obtained permission to reduce the salient above Saint Mihiel. The German army had occupied this position in 1914 in an attempt to flank Serrail who stubbornly kept the line of fortified hills which upheld Verdun. They are called the "Grand Couronne de Nancy." The Germans failed to flank Serrail but they had held onto the salient ever since.

Many a time Verdun seemed the only rock which kept the Hun tide from sweeping over France, and the Grand Couronne de Nancy was what supported Verdun. The point of the salient left by the early operation reached to the town of St. Mihiel on the Meuse.

Importance of St. Mihiel Salient.

After the failure of the long and bitter battles against Verdun, where the Crown Prince's thin glory faded, the salient had no value to the Germans for offensive purposes, but as a part of the defense of Metz it was most valuable. The French had attempted to straighten the line, but the enemy held most tenaciously, for at that time, he still hoped successfully to attack Verdun. The field called Les Esparges was one of the most sanguinary of the war. There France lost the flower of its new class of soldiers, youths who had just finished their training after being called to the colors.

What degree of resistance the Americans would meet and what forces would be necessary to overcome it was unknown, but it was to be an all-American affair and plenty of men, munitions and guns were provided to take the salient, however hard the enemy fought. Most of the divisions in the fighting were the older, well-tried ones. In support were other divisions ready to enter the fray, while behind them was the reserve, ready to go to the needed point. The Thirty-fifth Division was in the army reserve and its business was to be mobile and ready to strike wherever needed.

Of course, none of the men of the Thirty-fifth and few of the officers had any idea of the operation to which they were assigned. Troop movements usually look very silly to the man in the ranks who has no knowledge of the underlying purpose. That is why confidence in higher officers is one of the best sustainers of morale. The soldier should be able to say, "Well, the old man is doing it, and he knows his business. I'm willing."

The Saint Mihiel operation plans were guarded with great secrecy and knowledge of the purpose kept within a circle as restricted as possible. But our men suspected there was a hen on when the shuffling commenced.

Entering Upon a Memorable Month.

On Aug. 27, 28 and 29, those elements not in the line were grouped about the town of Gerardmer, and on the thirty-first the division was relieved. The last elements came out on the night of Sept. 2, and on the fourth, fifth and sixth the division entrained for what was known vaguely as the Rosieres area, some 100 kilometers away. That first of September was a notable day, although it did not appear so at the time, for it was the last time the men were to sleep under cover for more than a month, and that month the most trying in their histories.

Few of the men had opportunity through that September to remove their clothing, except to change underwear or socks. They were not able to do that often, possibly once or twice, for there was a chronic shortage of new stuff to change into. Very few of them had a bath that month.

Rosieres-aux-Salines proved to be a pretty good sort of town in a pretty, little, flat valley. The 138th was at Vignuelles, and the other sections of the division were scattered about the countryside.

Then came days of waiting and policing and equipping and rain. Just about the time the pup tents were well set and drained and a fellow had a chance to make himself approximately comfortable there would come the order to march. Everything was done by night in that period, to avoid enemy observation, and the feeling that something was about to happen was heavy in the air.

Headquarters and the Field.

The directors of the operation, sitting in conference back at Souilly, would look at their immense battle maps, and after calculating angles and distances for a while, one would say: "It seems to me the field would be better balanced if the reserve was a little further down the valley here," and that would be discussed and finally agreed to. "Do it," the commanding General would say. A code telegram would be started to the headquarters of the Thirty-fifth Division, the pins indicating the reserve on the battle map moved and the conference would proceed.

At headquarters of the Thirty-fifth, as soon as the telegram was received, there would be much bustle and preparing of orders. Motor cycle orderlies would stream away in a deafening clatter, and soon in all the towns and fields where units of the Thirty-fifth were stationed, pup tents would be coming down, blankets rolled, packs made up, and at the given hour the men would fall in and the long column take up again the same old hike.

It grew very, very tiresome, and the conviction that great things were soon to happen did not make the work easy or pleasant. There is a fearful monotony to marching, marching, marching. It is hard work. Making a pup tent of two shelter halves and setting it up in the rain is not a pleasant pastime, and there is a physical revulsion against the discomforts of living outdoors in the rain.

The two or three weeks preceding the Argonne battle seemed to me to be very tiresome and disagreeable. Knowing as we do now that the division was just about to go on the stage in one of the greatest dramas in history, does not help to gild those days. They were days of mud and rain and weariness, not complete exhausion, but weariness which demanded sound sleep, and there was no comfortable place to sleep. Soon the eyes of the world were to be upon this division and its eight companion divisions, but that was a matter of not much interest. They had no stage fright. They wanted more grub and wanted it oftener and hotter, and they wanted a dry place to sleep and they wanted somebody to kill "that damned bugler" just before time for reveille.

The march of the night of Sept. 10-11 was into Tomblaine, Jarville and Maron, which are suburbs of Nancy, but that beautiful city few of the men were able to see at that time. The next night the division marched again—through the edge of the city of Nancy and into the Foret de Haye, where they went into concealed bivouac.

Those were trying times. The roar of the guns seemed very near, and the men knew that a big fight was on close at hand, and it was quite impossible to rest easy. Sometimes they could see the flash of the guns, like distant lighting near the horizon. At night enemy airplanes came over and dropped bombs on the forest, and a good part of the time it rained. The Missouri and Kansas doughboys found it difficult to comprehend the denseness of a commander who would let a good division like theirs lie out in the rain night after night and rust when there was a fight going on right close by that they might just as well be in as not. Really, Pershing ought to know better, they thought.

As a matter of fact, the St. Mihiel affair proved very easy. The operation had been planned largely by Col. R. McCleave, former Chief of Staff of the Thirty-fifth, and at that time chief of operations of the First Army. It was tactically perfect, and the toll of enemy prisoners alone was said to be more than twice our total casualties in the salient through which the Americans crashed at will. There was no occasion to call upon the reserves, who had to content themselves with being present with a "willingness to serve."

Its Part at St. Mihiel.

The part the Thirty-fifth played was not big, but it was very important. Gen. Pershing was able to order his combat battalions in whatever way he chose because he had a reserve behind them. The reserve is an essential part of the attacking force, even if it never moves a foot or fires a shot. The Thirty-fifth Division was the essential, unseen force behind the line. It was ready to fill any gap the enemy might make, or to take the place of any weakening or shattered force in front of it.

I believe the division would have been better prepared for the Argonne fight if it had had a place in the line in the St. Mihiel operation. Its losses would have been light, and it would have then gone into the Argonne with battle experience, and with the assurance and confidence which the other divisions gained at St. Mihiel.

On Sept. 15 new orders came, and the air began to charge again with the electricity of coming action. That night the division moved to the region about Charmontois. The most of the infantry moved in motorbusses, those immense lumbering cars which were stripped from the streets of London and Paris at the beginning of the war, and which had rambled all over the North of France since, hauling soldiers to many threatened fields, carrying wounded back and at times playing the part of trucks and taking supplies forward.

Becomes Part of the Third Army Corps.

In the Charmentois area the division came under the Third Army Corps, and, as a result, was in the Second French Army for tactical control and supply. At this stopping place, which also was out of doors, the air bombs grew more frequent.

The Sixty-ninth Brigade moved up near Auzeville on the night of Sept. 19-20, and the next night the remainder of the division went to the neighborhood of Grace-le-Comte Farm and into the woods east of Beauchamp, where the division relieved the Seventy-third French Division in charge of the sector. Because of their familiarity with the sector and that the relief might not be noted by the enemy, the French outposts remained in position. Thus there was a screen of French between the Americans and the enemy.

The Sixty-ninth Brigade held the line, with the Seventieth in support. The formation was for each regiment of the Sixty-ninth to have two of its three battalions in the line, each battalion having a machine-gun company attached. One battalion and a machine-gun company was in reserve to each regiment. This formation was maintained up to the morning of Sept. 26.

Our division was now just behind the scenes, the stage was set, and our actors ready. The Sixtieth Brigade of Artillery was in its place, and tuning up its guns. That was about all they were allowed to do before the great artillery preparation began.

Our men did not take over the trenches, as they had done before when going into a sector. They were happily finished with trenches for all time.

Coming to Open Warfare.

A paragraph of recapitulation is in order here. This was a division of men who formerly belonged to the National Guard, in which they had had a certain training in open warfare, the kind of war for which the American soldier is primarily, essentially and everlastingly fitted. They had not been more than a year in the Federal service, undergoing intensive training nearly all of which was designed to fit them for the peculiar conditions incident to the fixed and established conflict known as trench warfare.

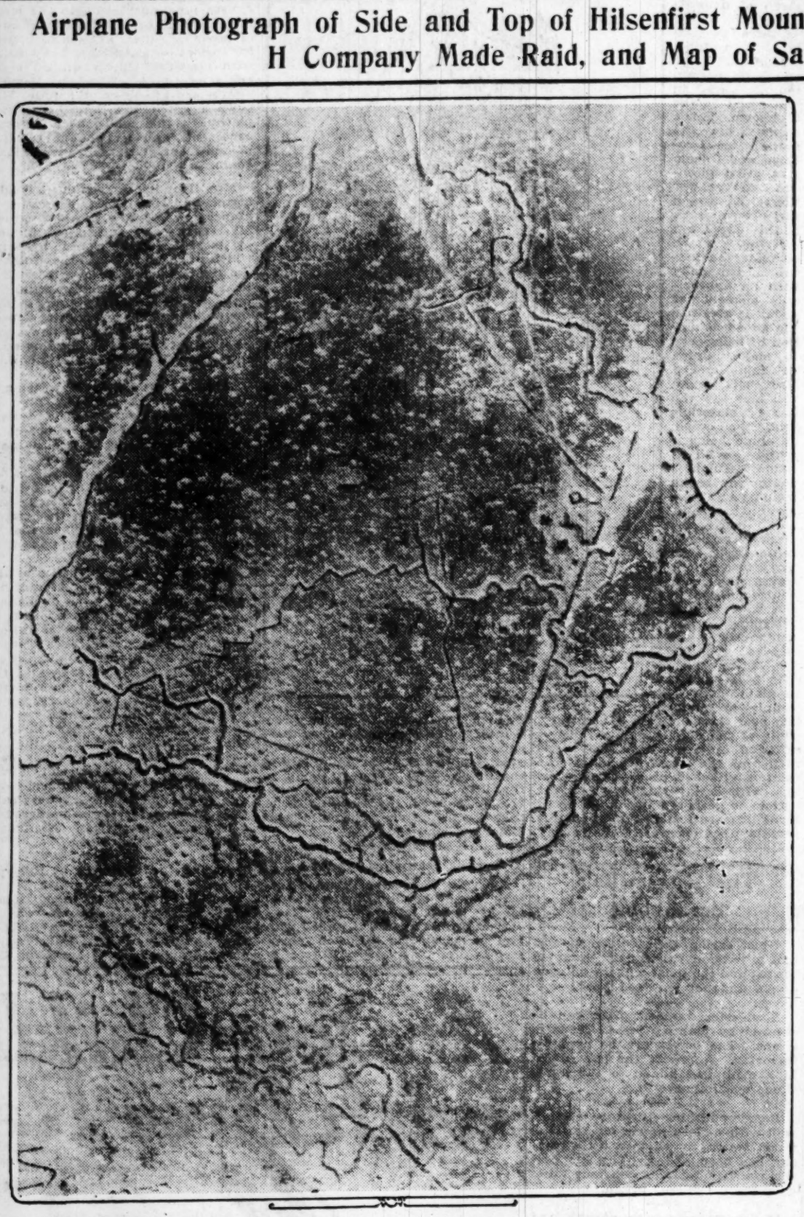

They had had two months of trench service in the Vosges, but the Vosges was a territory where their officers could not train them for open warfare, however anxious they might have been to do so, and however keenly they may have felt the troops needed such training. Now the last battles of the war were about to begin, and they were to be fought, as many persons had suspected they would be fought, out in the open.

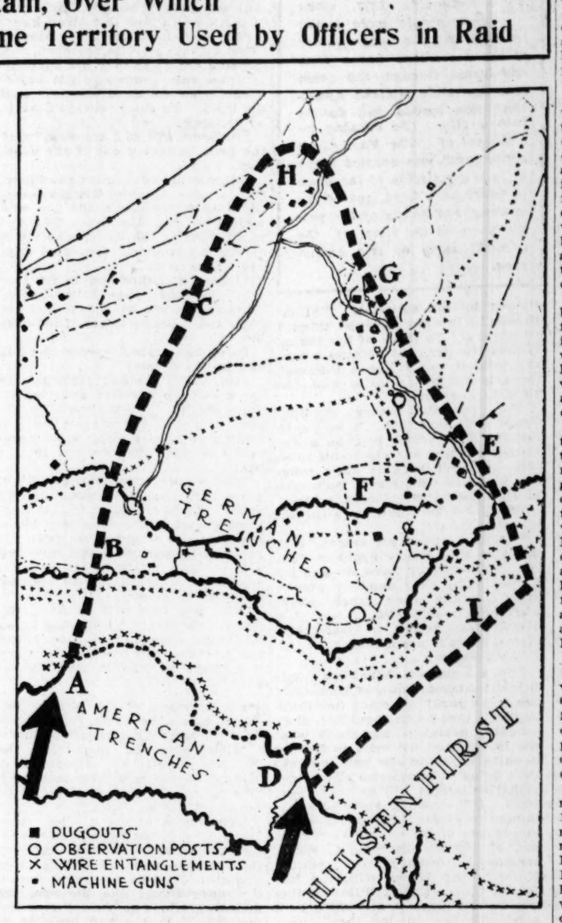

Trench warfare and open warfare are as unlike as night and day and they have some of the same differences.

In trench warfare there is the fixed series of trenches, no movement, seldom seeing the foe, fighting and raiding nearly always in the dark, the specialized work of throwing hand grenades, sapping, mining and counter mining, keeping wire fields in repair and maintaining listening posts for the detection of the smallest movement of the enemy. Formations are not used and there is no maneuvering of troops.

Open warfare is a war of movement with the field constantly changing, and the endeavor always uppermost to drive the enemy back and off the field. Troops try to keep in sight, or surely in touch with the enemy, the action continues day and night except for some special cause, the weapons are artillery, machine guns and the master tool of all, the rifle, to which issues in modern war always come for settlement. There is no burrowing in the ground, except when a soldier scoops out a hole to sleep in. There is no

The Magnificent Ambersons

An Epic of the Rise of an American City

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Monsieur Beaucaire," "The Gentleman From Indiana," and Other Notabe Stories.

"Yes, sir, the rest'll eat 'em, whether they get sick or not! Looks to me like some people in this city'd be willing to go crazy if they thought that would help 'em to be as high-toned as Ambersons. Old Aleck Minafer—he's about the closest old codger we got—he come in my office the other day, and he pretty near had a stroke tellin' me about his daughter Fanny. Seems Miss Isabel Amberson's got some kind of a dog—they call it a Saint Bernard—and Fanny was bound to have one, too. Well, old Aleck told her he didn't like dogs except rat-terriers, because rat-terriers cleans up the mice, but she kept on at him, and finally he said all right she could have one.

Then, by George! she says, Ambersons bought their dog, and you can't get one without paying for it; they cost from $50 to $100 up! Old Aleck wanted to know if I ever heard of anybody buyin' a dog before, because, of course, even a Newfoundland or a setter you can usually get somebody to give you one. He says he saw some sense in payin' a nigger a dime, or even a quarter, to drown a dog for you, but to pay out $50 and maybe more—well, sir, he like to choked himself to death, right there in my office! Of course everybody realizes that Maj. Amberson is a fine business man, but what with throwin' money around for dogs, and every which and what, some think all this style's bound to break him up, if his family don't quit!"

One citizen, having thus discoursed to a visitor, came to a thoughtful pause, and then added, "Does seem pretty much like squandering, yet when you see that dog out walking with this Miss Isabel, he seems worth the money."

"What's she look like?"

"Well, sir," said the citizen, "she's not more than just about 18 or maybe 19 years old, and I don't know as I know just how to put it—but she's kind of a delightful lookin' young lady!"

Synopsis of Opening Installment

MAJ. AMBERSON had made a fortune in 1873, when other people were losing fortunes, and the magnificence of the Ambersons began then and lasted through the years that saw their midland American town spread and darken into a city. The opening installment of "The Magnificent Ambersons" was devoted largely to a description of the place in which they lived, and of the customs and habits of the people there at the time of the greatest sway of the Ambersons.

CHAPTER II.

ANOTHER citizen said an eloquent thing about Miss Isabel Amberson's looks. This was Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster, the foremost literary authority and intellectual leader of the community—for both the daily newspapers thus described Mrs. Foster when she founded the Women's Tennyson Club; and her word upon art, letters and the drama was accepted more as law than as opinion. Naturally, when "Hazel Kirke" finally reached the town, after its long triumph in larger places, many people waited to hear what Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster thought of it before they felt warranted in expressing any estimate of the play. In fact, some of them waited in the lobby of the theater, as they came out, and formed an inquiring group about her.

"I didn't see the play," she informed them.

"What! Why, we saw you, right in the middle of the fourth row!"

"Yes," she said, smiling, but I was sitting just behind Isabel Amberson. I couldn't look at anything except her wavy brown hair and the wonderful back of her neck."

The ineligible young men of the town (they were all ineligible) were unable to content themselves with the view that had so charmed Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster; they spent their time struggling to keep Miss Amberson's face turned toward them. She turned it most often, observers said, toward two; one excelling in the general struggle by his sparkle, and the other by that winning if not winsome old craft, persistence.

The sparkling gentleman "led germane" with her, and sent sonnets to her with his bouquets—sonnets lacking neither music nor wit. He was generous, poor, well-dressed, and his amazing persuasiveness was one reason why he was always in debt. No one doubted that he would be able to persuade Isabel, but he unfortunately joined too merry a party one night, and, during a moonlight serenade upon the lawn before the Amberson Mansion, was easily identified from the windows as the person who stepped through the bass viol and had to be assisted to a waiting carriage.

One of Miss Amberson's brothers was among the serenaders, and, when the party had dispersed, remained propped against the front door in a state of helpless liveliness; the Major went down in a dressing gown and slippers to bring him in, and scolded him mildly, while imperfectly controlling strong impulses to laughter. Miss Amberson also laughed at this brother, the next day, but for the suitor it was a different matter; she refused to see him when he called to apologize.

"You seem to care a great deal about bass viols!" he wrote her. "I promise never to break another." She made no response to the note, unless it was an answer, two weeks later, when her engagement was announced. She took the persistent one, Wilbur Minafer, no breaker of bass viols or of hearts, no serenader at all.

A few people, who always foresaw everything, claimed that they were not surprised, because though Wilbur Minafer "might not be an Apollo, so to speak, as it were," he was "a steady young business man, and a good churchman," and Isabel Amberson was "pretty sensible—for such a showy girl." But the engagement astounded the young people, and most of their fathers and mothers, too; and as a topic it supplanted literature at the next meeting of the "Women's Tennyson Club."

"Wilbur Minafer!" a member would say, her inflection seeming to imply that Wilbur's crime was explained by his surname. "Wilbur Minafer! It's the queerest thing I ever heard! To think of her taking Wilbur Minafer, just because a man any woman would like a thousand times better was a little wild one night at a serenade!"

"No," said Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster. "It isn't that. It isn't even because she's afraid he'd be a dissipated husband and she wants to be safe. It isn't because she's religious or hates wildness; it isn't even because she hates wildness in him."

"Well, but look how she's thrown him over for it."

"No, that wasn't her reason," said the wise Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster. "If men only knew it—and it's a good thing they don't—a woman doesn't really care much about whether a man's wild or not, if it doesn't affect herself, and Isabel Amberson doesn't care a thing!"

"Mrs. Foster!"

"No, she doesn't. What she minds is his making a clown of himself in her front yard! It made her think he didn't care much about her. She's probably mistaken, but that's what she thinks, and it's too late for her to think anything else now, because she's going to be married right away—the invitations will be out next week. It'll be a big Amberson-style thing, raw oyster floating in scooped-out blocks of ice and a band from out of town—champagne, showy presents; a colossal present from the Major. Then Wilbur will take Isabel on the carefulest little wedding trip he can manage, and she'll be a good wife to him, but they'll have the worst spoiled lot of children this town will ever see."

"How on earth do you make that out, Mrs. Foster?"

"She couldn't love Wilbur, could she?" Mrs. Foster demanded, with no challengers. "Well, it will all go to her children, and she'll ruin 'em!"

The prophetess proved to be mistaken in a single detail merely; except for that, her foresight was accurate. The wedding was of Ambersonian magnificence, even to the floating oysters; and the Major's colossal present was a set of architect's designs for a house almost as elaborate and impressive as the Mansion, the house to be built in Amberson Addition by the Major. The orchestra was certainly not that local one which had suffered the loss of a bass viol; the musicians came, according to the prophecy and next morning's paper, from afar; and at midnight the bride was still being toasted in champagne, though she had departed upon her wedding journey at 10. Four days after the pair had returned to town, which promptness seemed fairly to demonstrate that Wilbur had indeed taken Isabel upon the carefulest little trip he could manage. According to every report, she was from the start "a good wife to him," but here in a final detail the prophecy proved inaccurate. Wilbur and Isabel did not have children; they had only one.

"Only one," Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster admitted. "But I'd like to know if he isn't spoiled enough for a whole carload!"

Again she found none to challenge her.

At the age of 9, George Amberson Minafer, the Major's one grandchild, was a princely terror, dreaded not only in Amberson Addition but in many other quarters through which he galloped on his white pony. "By golly, I guess you think you own this town!" an embittered laborer complained, one day, as Georgie rode the pony straight through a pile of sand the man was sieving. "I will when I grow up ," the undisturbed child replied. "I guess my grandpa owns it now, you bet!" And the baffled workman, having no means to controvert what seemed a mere exaggeration of the facts, could only mutter "Oh, pull down your vest!"

"Don't haf to! Doctor says it ain't healthy!" the boy returned promptly. "But I tell you what I'll do: I'll pull down my vest if you'll wipe off your chin!"

This was stock and stencil: the accustomed argot of street bandinage of the period; and in such matters Georgie was an expert. He had no vest to pull down; the incongruous fact was that a fringed sash girdled the juncture of his velvet blouse and breeches, for the Fauntleroy period had set in, and Georgie's mother had so poor an eye for appropriate things, where Georgie was concerned, that she dressed him according to the doctrine of that school in boy decoration. Not only did he wear a silk sash, and silk stockings, and a broad lace collar, with his little black velvet suit; he had long brown curls, and often came home with burrs in them.

The Sandman Story for Tonight.

Gretchen's Gift.

GRETCHEN was tired. She had swept the kitchen, washed and put away the dishes, and arranged her mother comfortably in bed. By the open window she sat enjoying the cool spring breeze which swept over the valley below.

Presently she fell into a doze from which she was awakened by hearing a small rootstep in the room. By the light of the rising moon she saw three little men all in dark green wandering about the kitchen.

"I am awfully hungry," said one. "I think I will take this bit of bun."

"Oh, no!" interrupted the second. "That belongs to little Gretchen, and it would not do to take her supper."

"I am sure she would not object if she knew we were hungry," said the third, "for she is always kind to up prixies."

"Well, we will go home now," said the first, hastening out of the doorway.

But they did not remain away long. Out of the shadow Gretchen saw the little fellow creep, the one who wished to steal the bun. The girl was hidden in the chair, which was so big it completely concealed anyone sitting in it.

"I have a chance now to get that bun," laughed the little robber; "Gretchen must be asleep in her room and it is easy to get at the cake box."

So up he climbed, opened the box and leaned over.

"Oh, ho!" laughed Gretchen as she sprang to her feet and clapped down the lid, "you wicked little fellow, to get at my cake when you think that I am esleep. I have you safe now and can lock you in if I wish."

"Oh! please let me out, and I will never steal again," moaned the prixie. "I was not going to take anything except one teeny, weeny bit of bun that you would never miss. If you will let me out I will give you a lovely gift, which means that everything you touch for 10 minutes will turn to gold."

"Oh! my, that will be fine," exclaimed the girl. "I will make heaps of things change, and then I can buy mother a nice house and get her a carriage to ride in every afternoon."

SO Gretchen let the prixie out. He said a few words, then rubbed Gretchen's right palm four times.

"Everything you touch for the next ten minutes will become hard, cold, glittering gold," he exclaimed. "But be careful what you do handle, for all will be as I said."

Gretchen went about the room touching with her right hand the tables, chairs, stove, pictures and even the pots and pans. Soon the room was glittering like a jewelry store—the stove shone like the sun, the utensils gleamed as if they were diamonds. Then the bad little prixie thought he would do a mean trick to Gretchen. He would tell her to rub her nose, and that would immediately turn her to gold, and she would cease to be a girl at all. So he cried as if in alarm, "Gretchen! there is a spider on your nose; brush it off at once, it might bite you."

It happened that as the prixie said this the child was standing on a chair. In her fright at the idea of a spider being on her nose she sprang to the floor and fell as she did so. But she did not touch her own nose at all. On the contrary, she grabbed the prixie around the body and held him tight—and found when she rose to her feet that she was holding a heavy chunk of gold shaped exactly like the prixie.

"My but I am glad those ten minutes are over!" she gasped. "Something awful might have happened to me. Now I have enough gold to keep us in comfort for the rest of my life, so I will just let the prixie remain golden and set it in the parlor on the table."

And there on the table the little prixie still sits in solid metal till some day a fairy will happen to find out and change him back to his original form. But it serves him right for playing mean tricks.

Diamonds in Great Demand

ONE of the largest of American diamond dealers reports that the sales of diamonds by his firm in January were greater than in any month for the last five years, and greater than the sales of the entire years of 1909 and 1910. Dealers generally declare there are not enough new diamonds in the world to supply the demand, which has increased in all countries to unprecedented proportions. The shortage is due chiefly to two causes—the closing down of the South African mines for a year and a half during the war and greatly increased diamond buying, especially in the United States, brought about by the high wages of the war period.

Diamonds have increased 33 per cent in value in the last 12 months and are expected to score an 18 per cent further advance in the next few months. The South African mines, which furnish 98 per cent of the world's diamonds, have resumed operations but much below the pre-war scale. In the meantime, the popularity as jewels was never so great in history.

Probably the man who really makes the most out of politics is the one who is defeated but achieves enough prominence in the campaign to be appointed receiver of some good-sized corporation.—Ohio State Journal.

Crepe de Chine and Lace Frock for Graduation

Designed by Mildred Lodewick.

THE young girl graduates of today differ in many ways from those in their mother's time. Today, instead of ranging in age from 18 to 20 they are from 16 to 18, and instead of depending on doting mothers to prepare a suitable "trousseau" these young girls begin months ahead to plan and make their own. This I know from the many letters I receive, and I deem it a great pleasure to answer them. A young girl's own frock is this one I am offering, which combines an artful simplicity with an appreciable element of style. It also has the added attraction of being easy to make. Crepe de chine and a pretty silk thread run lace are the two materials used, the crepe de chine being a fabric which Dame Fashion is going to make popular once again this summer both for dresses and separate skirts. In this frock it leaves the main bodice portion to the lace, though offering itself generously for sleeves and for the entire skirt. The lace portion is plain with a couple of plaits laid over the shoulders if necessary, while at the neck a dainty relief is afforded by three tiny picot-edged ruffles of the crepe de chine. The skirt is attached at a raised waist line, with a tiny ruffle, and at the bottom is gathered into a group of three little ruffles like those at the neck, applied on a band of the lace. The lace reveals itself only for three-quarters of an inch or so below these ruffles, which is enough to lend its quality of transparent daintiness at the ankle. The finishing detail of this little frock is the tiny sash ribbon, made from the crepe de chine, that ties on the side or back in short loops and long ends.

The Housewife's Scrapbook

When frying ham or bacon add half a teaspoonful of dark syrup to the fat and the meat will fry an even brown and not look too hard.

A pleasing kitchen plant can be secured by planting lemon seeds in a pot. The leaves can be used for flavoring. A few of the leaves tied in a cloth and added to the apple sauce will improve it.

Before polishing furniture, clean it well with a cloth wrung out of lukewarm water, to which a little vinegar has been added. This cleanses the wood and a clean surface takes on a more brilliant polish.

If the flannels have shrunk and become hard, soak them in gasoline and they will be restored to their former softness.

You will save fuel and have a better heated oven if the coal does not reach above the top of the fire bricks in your kitchen range.

When your black silk dress becomes shiny or rusty looking sponge it with ammonia and a few drops of alcohol.

Any of the road oils can be removed from most fabrics with kerosene oil and it will not injure the material.

Blankets should be washed and hung out on a windy day. Use a little borax and ammonia in the water in which they are washed and they will be soft and white.

Lace collars will not lose their shape nor get torn if they are basted on a piece of white cloth before washing. They shouldn't be starched.

You can readily remove stains from the zinc top kitchen table if you rub them with a cloth dipped in vinegar.

If stockings and socks are soaked in warm water for two hours before they are worn they will last twice as long.

Wanted Them on Hand.

I want a pair of the best gloves you have," said Mrs. Nuritch at the glove counter.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the polite salesman. "How long do you want them?"

"Don't git insultin', young man! I want to buy 'em, not hire 'em."—London Tit-Bits.

Fashion Brevities.

The new tunic skirt has the tunic coming only to the knee.

Gray and black form the smartest combination of the moment.

A good deal of Chinese filet is used on flesh crepe blouses.

Dressy taffeta suits are seen, some with cape coat effects.

The suit coat has made excellent use of the deep shawl collar.

Copper, tete de negre and black are the favorite color for veils.

The oxford shoe topped by a ribbed stocking has no rival for street wear.

Fashions at the Capital

By MARGARET WADE

WASHINGTON April 4.

COLOR, even more than fabric, appears to be the test of smartness in the dinner gowns which in spite of the Lenton season, are in constant requisition. The Countess of Reading, wife of the British Ambassador, one of the best gowned women in Washington, wore to a dinner at the Misses Patten, a satin and tulle gown in a new purple tone. A very pink purple not in the least like the royal or ecclesiastical purple of other seasons. Like most gowns for formal occasions this has a train with graceful, closely draped skirt and square neck. The long, flowing sleeves are of self-colored tulle. The gown is untrimmed, but her large placque of diamonds, as a corsage ornament, and a pendant of diamonds from platinum and diamond chain.

Mrs. Chandler Anderson of Washington and New York, is wearing a dinner gown of faile, in a dark green tone, that gains further distinction by its exceedingly clever drapery, which appears to be wrapped about the figure from neck line to ankles, then drops into a narrow train. A huge bow of self colored tulle marks the waistline in the back. The sleeves are as severely plain as the gown, but lose fitting and straight, ending midway between shoulder and elbow.

Mrs. Sidney Ballou is wearing a dinner gown in the new tone of taupe, in which satin, tulle and crystal fringe, all of one tone, are combined. The satin skirt is quite narrow and possibly six inches off the floor. The overdress of tulle is becomingly full at the waistline, describing a sharp point back and front. This is edged in the crystal fringe, which also outlines the V-shaped bodice of tulle over satin.

Among the youthful belles at the mi-careme ball not in costume, but wearing becoming gowns of distinct color, were Miss Katherine Foss of Chicago and Miss Cecelia McCallum of Washington. Miss Foss wore a rose pink satin with peplum overdress cut in points on each side, the points overhung in gold embroidered tulle. The same embroidery, which is close and rich, decorated the top of the bodice, cut in smart, straight lines; also the short sleeves; the latter much like the ordinary coat sleeve except in length, which was six inches. Miss McCallum's gown was of red tulle in close, fine pleats, with an apron overdress bordered in gold. Her sleeves were of tulle in half length folding effect.

Among the dowagers at this one ball of the Lenten season, which was given in aid of Neighborhood House, and scored great social as well as financial success, were Mrs. Richard Ely, who wore a bright pink brocade on modish lines with beautiful diamond corsage ornaments, and Mrs. John P. Jackson in white brocade with pearls.

Mrs. Lane, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, a guest in one of the boxes, wore a pink brocade satin and Mrs. Houston, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, a trained gown of satin with angel sleeves of tulle, all in a dull but becoming mauve.

Mrs. Heatwole, widow of a former Representative from Minnesota, who is being very delightfully entertained during her visit to the family of Mrs. William Phelps Eno, wore at one of last week's dinner parties a gray satin gown embroidered in the now popular steel beads. There is a train, of course, with the front of the skirt a shallow box pleat, on which the beads form a panel effect in very delicate embroidery. The top is surplice with short flowing sleeves, also much beaded. Mrs. Heatwole recently returned from 18 months in France.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Being the Confessions of the Seven-Hundredth Wife Concerning Brains—and the Woman.

MY DAUGHTER, what will a retrousse nose profit thee if thou hast an aquiline mind?

What will beauty profit if thou art likewise gifted with brains?

What will dimples avail thee if thou hast also opinions?

What will blonde hair gain thee if thou possessest a brunette temperament?

Go to the lemon grove, thou Scholarette! For how few women with both brains and beauty have ever plucked a peach, in the garden of Matrimony!

Verily, verily it is not given unto one woman to possess both happiness and opinions; both real love and real logic; both reasoning powers and romantic devotion!

Peradventure a plain woman may overcome her handicap with humility and conceal her intelligence with dissimulation and camouflage. She may learn to watch her P's and "cues" and "yes-dears" and to cultivate her "What - dost - THOU - think-darlings."

But an intelligent opinion in the mouth of a pretty woman horrifieth a man even as the scissors in the mouth of a babe or a slingshot in the hands of a mischievous boy.

And a woman with judgment which exceedeth his own and with wit which outshineth his repartee is more uncanny than a pet parrot which saith the appropriate thing at the right moment.

Be not deceived, then, when a man saith unto thee:

"Go to! I could not endure life with a stupid woman!"

For, verily, NO woman is stupid, in his opinion, who AGREEETH with him.

But a woman with "convictions" affecteth him as a cold bath on a January morning. She shocketh him!

And a woman who can be SILENT in one language is more "interesting" than one who can be brilliant in seven languages.

Behold, in high Olympus, Minerva, the wise, had the respect of the gods.

And Diana, the strenuous, had her independence.

And Venus, the beauty, married the blacksmith.

But Psyche, the simple, was LOVED.

And Juno, the bovine, married the "GREAT CATCH!"

Then, whatsoever thou receiveth in the Love Game, oh, thou Scintilating One, accept it gladly and rejoice thereat.

For, whether it be a babe snatched from the cradle or an octogenarian spared from the grave, it is thy portion. Therefore cherish it.

For, verily, verily, in the logic of man, brains-and-beauty are an impossible feminine combination——

Nay, not impossible to find! But impossible to ENDURE once thou hast married it!

And Solomon himself had not been happy had he suspected that there was an IDEA afloat among all his 700 wives!

A New Game.

UNCLE JACK and Uncle James had come to see their sister and her sweet little children, and, like the good-natured fellows they are, they were soon inveigled into the nursery.

For a while there was nothing more than the usual amount of uproarious riot which denoted that the little ones were perfectly happy; but at last the noise increased to such a terrific extent that mamma hurried up to find out the cause of it.

"Why, children, children!" she cried, "whatever is all this noise about?"

But little Freddy only smiled.

"It's all right, mummy," he said; "we're playing a new game; we've locked Uncle Jack and Uncle James up in the cupboard; an' when they get a bit angrier I'm going to play going into the lions' den. Will you stop and see us play?"—Pearson's Weekly.

STOCKS FAIRLY FIRM IN EASTERN MARKET

Some Specialties Record Substantial Gains; Trading Is Moderately Active.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The dominant influence on the Stock Exchange today—where transactions again exceeded a million shares—was the increasing spirit of financial cheerfulness; and that was helped along, in about equal measure, by the evidence of a comfortable money situation, by the growing confidence in the full success of the Victory Loan, and by the very extraordinary forecast of the winter wheat crop by the Department of Agriculture. The last-named influence, though not as much discussed as the others, actually superseded them in immediate importance. The harvest prospect may in a sense be the key to the loan campaign.

"Without any great activity, rates for exchange on London and Paris moved slightly in favor of both markets today.

"Neutral exchange rates as a rule shifted somewhat further in New York's favor. In general, the whole exchange situation was steadier, with no signs of immediate resumption of recent movements in either direction.

"The events of foremost importance in the day's news bearing on finance and industry was the Government's first report of the season on the winter wheat crop. That the forecast would be for a yield of unprecedented magnitude everyone was aware; the grain trade's advance predictions had ranged around 98½ per cent for the average condition of the crop, and 825,000,000 bushels for the indicated yield.

"But the department's figures go beyond expectation; they put the 'condition percentage' at 99.8, which is the highest April figure named in 30 years, and probably the second largest ever reported. After allowing for average loss through 'winter killing'—which is not officially reported until next month, but which has certainly been small—the Government gives 837,000,000 bushels as its present forecast of the yield of winter wheat. That would not only run 278,000,000 bushels beyond last year's winter harvest, an increase of 50 per cent, but it would exceed by 152,000,000 bushels, or more than 22 per cent, the highest previous record.

"Nobody can doubt what would have been the moral effect on financial sentiment of such a forecast, say in 1914 or 1911, or what would have been the tangible effect of such a yield on American prosperity. Nowadays, we have come to regard the wheat crop as somehow tangled up with 'Government guaranteed prices' and advances to foreign buyers of our grain. These problems, however, stand by themselves.

"The essential fact, so far as concerns the American producer, is that he will get $2.26 per bushel for this enormous harvest. But it is also to be remembered that, with Russia's old-time wheat crop of 600,000,000 to 800,000,000 bushels now eliminated from the market, with the 250,000,000 of the Danube states no longer a possibility, and with Western Europe's grain fields devastated by war, the foreign crop of 1919 will certainly run short. Our own crop, if the spring wheat reaches even the yield of 1917, will again exceed a thousand million bushels, but the world needs every bushel of it."

COTTON IS OFF 36 POINTS; SOUTHERN SELLING FACTOR

NEW YORK, April 8.—There were reactions in the cotton market during today's early trading. The news from Paris seemed to be rather disappointing, and the South was an active seller here at the opening.

First prices were barely steady at a decline of 5 to 25 points on new style contracts and of 20 to 25 points on the old style months, in consequence, with new style May selling off to 26c and October to 22.35c shortly after the call, or about 28 to 36 points net lower on the general list.

Trade interests were buyers on the decline, but there was a good deal of scattered realizing and probably some local selling for a reaction.

Offerings were readily absorbed on the early decline and the market became very active and strong later in the morning on continued trade buying and covering by near-month shorts. This started a general buying movement and by midday all months had made new high records for the life of the new-style contracts, with May selling at 26.60c and October at 22.50c or 25 to 32 points net higher.

The market showed continued firmness during the middle of the afternoon, although there was enough realizing to hold advances in check around 26.60c for May and above 22.90c for October, or about 25 to 32 points net higher.

Reports from the South claimed that in some instances holders of spot cotton were withdrawing their cotton from sale, owing to the strength of futures.

Record-Breaking Receipts of Eggs in Chicago Market.

By the Associated Press.

WINTER WHEAT ESTIMATE IS 837,000,000 BUSHELS

Condition of Crops on April 1 Was Almost Perfect at 99.8 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Winter wheat production this year was forecast at 837,000,000 bushels by the Department of Agriculture today, basing its estimate on the condition of the crop April 1, which was 99.8 per cent of a normal.

The Department of Agriculture issued a statement commenting upon the condition of winter wheat, saying:

"Ninety-nine and eight-tenths per cent is the highest percentage on record, on the largest acreage ever planted in this country. The condition improved during the winter, an unusual occurrence, due to the very favorable winter weather, particularly the absence of alternate freezing and thawing, which appears although to have resulted in a minimum of winter killing. A striking feature of the present situation is a uniformly good condition in practically all important wheat producing states, ranging from 104 in Ohio down to 96 in North Carolina, among the states having one million acres or more. The lowest figure reported from any state is 89 in Wisconsin. Kansas, with approximately 11,000,000 out of the United States' total of 49,000,000 acres, shows a condition of 101. The present moisture conditions throughout the entire country, with unimportant local exceptions, are very favorable.

"The winter wheat promise on April 1 of 837,000,000 is nearly double the yearly average production in the United States for the five years before the war (442,000,000 in 1909-1913) and is nearly 50 per cent larger than the production during the war years 1914-1919, when the average was 56,-000,000.

"The condition of the crop is higher than has been reported on April 1 since 1912, and the indicated yield is higher than any actual yield in any year with the exception of 1914, when the yield per acre was 18.5 bushels per planted acre, following an April 1 condition of 95.6."

CORN FUTURES UP 2 CENTS IN MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE

Corn sold nearly 1c higher in the early market here today, despite forecast of a bearish crop report on winter wheat, to be issued at 10 o'clock. Trading was influenced by small receipts, excessive cash premiums over futures and talk of wet weather delaying the movement. Foreign news also was construed as bullish.

Oats futures were firm and fractionally higher with corn in Chicago, but here the market was quiet.

There was light selling of both corn and oats in the wheat crop report, which showed a condition of 99.8, against 79.3 last year, and a crop of 837,000,000 bu. against 560,000,000 bu. estimated April 1 a year ago.

May corn opened ¼c higher, at $1.61⅛, sold at $1.61¼, then lost to $1.60⅝. July opened ⅜c to ½c higher, at $1.52⅛, sold at $1.52¾, lost to $1.51¾, then rallied to $1.52⅞. Sept. opened ⅛c up, at $1.45, then rallied to $1.45½. May oats were quoted ⅜c higher, at 69½c.

Corn receipts here today were 51,-000 bu., against 201,000 bu. last year. Shipments, 48,000 bu., against 97,000 bu. Oats receipts 138,000 bu., against 314,00 bu. Shipments 125,000 bu., against 103,000 bu. Wheat receipts 27,000 bu., against 17,000 bu. Shipments 27,000 bu., against 14,000 bu.

Corn was strong in the late session, owing to an advance in cash grain, and distant futures reached the top level on the crop. Final prices were more than 2c over yesterday's closing. Oats were almost 1c higher.

Brookhall's Argentine cable says the weather continues favorable. Labor situation is generally regarded optimistically. Port loadings have been increasing and a fair part of the congestion of the port of Buenos Aires has been relieved.

The weather forecast said: Illinois and Iowa—Fair and cooler tonight and Wednesday. Missouri—Fair tonight and Wednesday; cooler tonight. Wisconsin, Minnesota and Dakotas—Cloudy with probably rain or snow tonight and Wednesday. Nebraska—Fair and cooler tonight; Wednesday cloudy. Kansas—Part coludy tonight with freezing temperatures; Wednesday unsettled, possibly rain or snow.

Minneapolis stocks of wheat decreased 725,000 bu.; oats increased 65,000 bu; for three days. Shipments—Flour 87,000 bbls; wheat, 153 cars.

Clearances of wheat today, 257,000 bu; corn and oats, none; flour, 83,-000 bbls; wheat and flour, 636,000 bu.

A GOOD old Quaker was milking a cow whose lively disposition had often taxed his patience severely. The pail was nearly-full of foaming milk, when, in some manner, the cow managed to overturn it. Bad Place for Eyes.

"RATHER a dangerous place to visit is described in this paper," said a wag to his neighbor.

"What place is that?" asked the latter.

"Well," responded the first speaker, "it's a historical mansion in the Midlands. This is what the account says: 'On first entering the hall, the visitor's eye is caught by a long sword over one side of the mantel, and then drawn to the old flint-lock on the other side; after which it naturally falls on the mantel itself, and from that to the old brick-tiled hearth.' Neither of my eyes would stand that sort of thing!"—London Tit-Bits.
